Has Carter Wiped Out Opposition?

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jimmy Carter has virtually wiped out his active opponents for the Democratic presidential nomination, and now he is ready to confront Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey if it comes to that. It may not, if Carter can keep rolling at the rate he managed in Pennsylvania's presidential primary election. He won Tuesday's popular vote with 37 per cent and a landslide margin over Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

And he held a surprising lead today as the ballots were counted in the separate election of national convention delegates. Carter beat the field, and he also beat the union leaders and organization Democrats who had tried to stop him for Humphrey's sake.

It was his seventh primary victory in nine tries, and it may have been his most important because it came against the odds and the organizations. Furthermore, it gave him new momentum to carry into a hectic six weeks in which 22 states will hold their primary elections. Carter is running again Saturday in the Texas primary, and he hopes the Pennsylvania outcome will bolster his cause there. He is entered in four states next Tuesday.

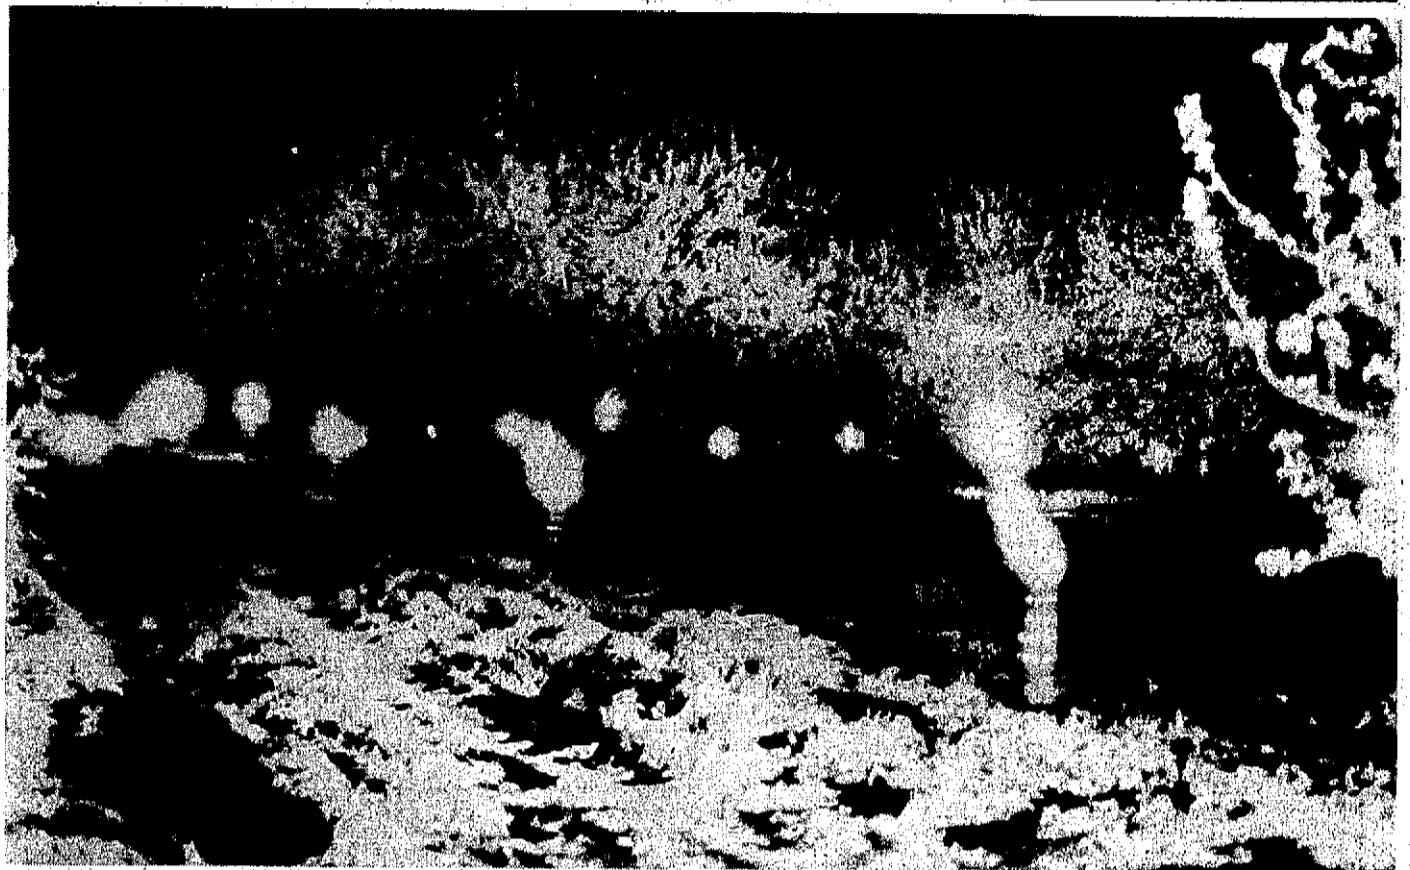

This is not to say that Carter has the nomination won; he acknowledges there is a long way to go, and he said in advance that a Pennsylvania win would not make him unstoppable. But everybody who has tested him so far has lost, and if the former Georgia governor is going to be stopped now, it apparently will have to be done by challengers who have not yet been in the arena.

Johnson can't do it. He had everything going for him in Pennsylvania, but he ran a distant second. He chose the state for a major test against Carter, and got beat on his own territory.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona ran third. Udall's campaign is heavily in debt, and he is still looking for his first victory against major competitors. Nonetheless, Udall, like Jackson, said he means to keep running and will campaign all the way to the convention.

Damage To Fruit Mounts!

By JERRY KRIBGER
Farm and Features Editor

Fears of much greater damage to tree fruit crops in southwestern Michigan than were expressed earlier were being sounded today by growers and horticultural agents.

The cumulative effects of three consecutive nights of frost and of a strong wind and snow Sunday afternoon probably have reduced crop prospects for most major fruit crops of the area well below normal this season. A nearly total loss of primary grape buds had been recognized by Monday afternoon, but optimism had prevailed that tree fruits generally had suffered no more than a thinning.

Herb Teichman, Eau Claire grower, said he felt his peaches have been hurt to the point that only a partial crop can be expected. Pear buds suffered very heavily, he said, and apple injury varied considerably by location and variety. Cherries, injured earlier, suffered further cuts.

Clare Musgrove, Berrien county Extension Service director, said the three nights of frost and the combination of wind and snow and cold Sunday afternoon undoubtedly caused more than just a beneficial thinning of the developing buds and blossoms.

Musgrove also said the full effects of the cold damage will unfold some weeks later, when the young fruit will drop off as result of disabling injury in the last three nights.

A number of growers contacted this morning said it appeared that tree fruit on the better locations would still come through with crops, but that orchards on less favorable sites are hurt to the point they will yield little or even no fruit this season.

A few observers, however, said they were not as pessimistic about tree fruit damage, but did concede that grape losses were severe. What grapes will be produced this year will have to come from a system of secondary buds that were not advanced when the cold hit. Damage to some of the secondary buds has been noted.

Temperatures through the area last night generally ranged from 27 to 32, with the coldest readings occurring between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m.

Strawberry growers, who have run irrigation on their patches for long hours each of the last three nights, indicated they probably have saved their crop. But, they added, the patches are extremely soggy from the combination of nearly three inches of rain late last week and prolonged irrigation Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights.

Blueberry growers in the South Haven and Grand Haven areas said their early varieties were coming into bloom and may have sustained some loss. But the major, midseason varieties were at a stage that could withstand the temperatures recorded. Readings in some of the low-lying blueberry plantations have dipped to around 22 to 24 degrees on the last three nights.

Mike Thomas, new district horticultural agent, agreed that most tree fruits had suffered more than a thinning, and said it will be several weeks before the extent of the loss can be fully gauged.

Thomas also pointed out that fruit that survives to maturity may show russeting of the skin. Russeting, he said, reduces the value of the fruit, especially on the fresh market.

Fire Hits Du-Wel's Bangor Plant

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

BANGOR — Fire early today heavily damaged the Bangor plant of the Du-Wel Metal Products company, causing damage that is expected to exceed $100,000.

Firemen from four communities worked through the night before bringing the blaze, which was punctuated by several explosions, under control.

Two firemen were injured. Bangor fireman Edward McCabe, 29, was admitted to South Haven Community hospital suffering smoke inhalation, while William Jackson, 34, a Hartford fireman, was released after treatment for an injured foot.

Approximately 25 employees escaped injury when the fire started shortly before midnight in the finishing department of the plant which is located on Cemetery road on the city's northeast side.

Fires of a minor nature have been a frequent occurrence in the finishing area of the plant, because of dust buildups, according to Bangor firemen.

"In the past these fires have smoldered awhile and we have been able to extinguish them with our own fire extinguishers," said an unidentified employee. "We didn't have a chance this time, however. Before we could get our fire extinguishers the fire had already spread to the roof."

Bangor firemen said flames already had broken through the roof when they arrived at the scene.

Bangor firemen were joined by units from the Hartford, Lawrence and South Haven fire departments. The outside departments remained at the scene until 5 a.m. while Bangor firemen continued to pour water on the twisted ruins late this morning.

The blaze gutted the center of the sprawling cement block building, destroying the finishing department where buffing, painting and packing occurred. Production areas were spared from the fire, but were damaged by water.

Abortion Foes In Senate Taking Case To The Floor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators opposed to abortion are taking their bid for a constitutional amendment against the procedure directly to the Senate floor.

Senate action was slated today on a proposal by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to include a "right-to-life" provision in the Constitution.

But Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said he would move to have the Helms measure rejected, and he claims he has the votes to do it. Bayh is chairman of the Senate judiciary subcommittee, which last September rejected Helms' proposal and several other antiabortion measures.

Bayh says he personally opposes abortions but that he doesn't feel amending the Constitution is the way to deal with the emotionally charged issue. And he says he supports the landmark 1973 ruling by the Supreme Court, which limited state powers to enact antiabortion statutes.

Helms went around Bayh's judiciary subcommittee in a parliamentary maneuver that brings the issue directly to the floor for a vote.

His proposed constitutional amendment states that "every human being... shall be deemed from the moment of fertilization to be a person and entitled to the right to life."

It also would give Congress and the states the authority to enforce antiabortion laws.

The measure requires two-thirds approval by both the House and Senate and then ratification by three-fourths of the 50 state legislatures to become part of the Constitution.

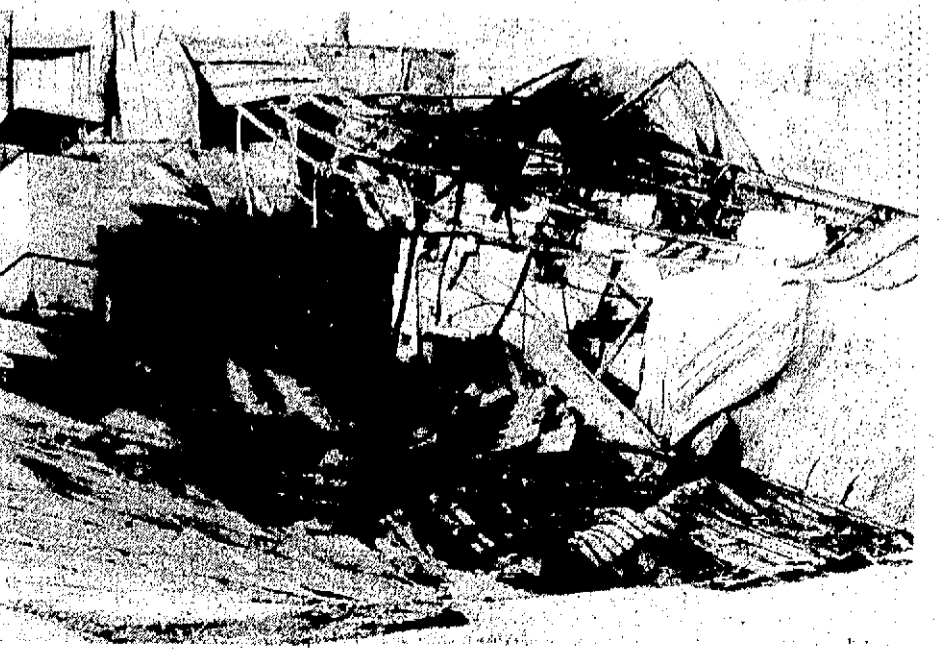

Even advocates of such an amendment concede that obtaining the needed votes in Congress appears slim, at best. But Helms said that, if nothing else, he wants "the full Senate to deliberate the proposition before the eyes of the nation and go on record for or against the Supreme Court decision which created our present crisis."

Sen. James L. Buckley, R-Con-N.Y., said he would offer a substitute to Helms' proposal that would make abortion permissible in cases when it is deemed necessary to save the life of the mother.

The Helms proposal would be a blanket ban on all abortions, although a Helms aide said that abortions to save a mother's life would probably be permissible.

Several other senators, including Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., have indicated they favor an approach that would restore the situation to what it was before the 1973 ruling, with states making their own decisions on whether to prohibit abortions and under what circumstances.

MANGLED WRECKAGE: Twisted metal beams and caved-in roof in core of Du-Wel Metal Products company plant, Bangor, were all that remained this morning in aftermath of fire which caused an estimated $100,000 damage to structure. More fire photos on inside pages. (Tom Renner photo)

Calculated To Help Foreign Competition

The idea that workers in one industry are "entitled" to the same wages as workers in another industry has surfaced again in connection with the strike against some of the major companies in the rubber industry. It is an erroneous argument, totally lacking in merit, which seems to have the saving grace of providing the only argument some labor leaders can think of to justify their demands.

Workers in tire manufacturing plants has a common interest with workers in automobile assembly plants — the sale of automobiles, which obviously helps tire sales. But that is as far as the relationship goes.

In case some have forgotten, every major American industry and a good many minor ones are competing today not only with other domestic manufacturers but against an array of foreign producers who export their products to the American market. American manufacturers are doing their best to increase business in foreign markets. International trade has become tough and competitive as trade barriers have fallen.

Gearing wages to some formula which entirely overlooks productivity is an excellent way of helping the competition. Not many workers in the rubber, auto or any other industry want that to happen. But somehow the message has not been getting through to some of their bargaining representatives.

Economic News Is Good Ammunition For Ford

Undoubtedly the good economic news of late (Gross National Product up at an annual rate of 7.5 per cent in the first quarter, inflation down to less than 4 per cent) provide the Ford administration powerful ammunition in this election year.

Pocketbook issues, the President's campaign rivals have been saying, will rank high on the voter's checklist when he goes to the polls. And indeed they might, if they had not been showing such a strong improvement.

That does not mean the White House is going to gain much from the issue come November, even if the economic recovery continues at a strong pace. Pocketbook issues are among those strange topics which seem to be mostly one-sided. It is very easy to be against a sour economy, but when a reasonable facsimile of prosperity rolls around again memories tend to dim.

It is easy to become angry with an incumbent when inflation, the GNP and unemployment are unfavorable. But when the indicators more or less return to normal, voters begin looking for other issues to ignite their voting interest.

Defusing an opponent's issues is part of good political strategy. That is about the most the Ford campaign can expect to gain from the pocketbook issue.

This Is The Season To Get Out And Weed

Already it has begun — advice to the would-be gardeners who had hoped to prolong their off-season idleness a little longer.

Now is the time, according to those who dispense the advice, to get at those weeds. A vigorous attack now will save much time and energy later, we are told. If weeds are not mastered early in the season, they will take possession of the field.

All of which unfortunately is true, as the gardener is forced to admit after looking at his plot. Weeds seem to be better adapted to taking advantage of good growing weather than cultivated crops.

They appear overnight, add inches to their stature seemingly in a few hours, and soon they are seven feet tall and ready to go to seed.

There are always weeds too close to the rows to be handled by modern mechanized methods. Therefore it is necessary to take hold and pull.

It is not exactly fun, but to get in the spirit of the game is to experience a certain savage joy. It is a pleasure to see the scragged stalks fall and then wilt in the sun. It is even a pleasure to yank the interlopers out by the roots and place them in a pile to wither and die.

With weeds as with other things, the bigger they are the harder they fall. Except that the process soon begins anew.

International Ice Patrol Resumes Its Annual Hunt

Like shepherds of large, white sea creatures, the International Ice Patrol is criss-crossing the North Atlantic again on its annual task of sighting and plotting the courses of icebergs which could endanger shipping.

Born in the aftermath of the sinking of the Titanic, with the loss of 1,500 lives, the patrol is a responsibility of the U.S. Coast Guard but is funded jointly by 20 seafaring nations. From March to mid-summer the patrol's work becomes vital. It is during those months that the huge ice masses could wander into shipping lanes.

This season so far has been an unusually light one. By mid-April only 31 potentially dangerous icebergs had been sighted. Hundreds usually have been found by this time, leading members of the patrol to speculate the season this year may be unusually short.

No way as yet has been found of controlling or destroying icebergs before they travel South into the danger zone, cast off from the giant glaciers of the North. The only warning ships have, aside from on-board instruments, is the patrol.

Only the crews of the ships plying the North Atlantic can fully appreciate the work performed by the men flying the planes and manning the ships of the ice patrol. The cost of slightly more than a million dollars a year is well worth it.

OSHA INSPECTORS CAN BE BALTED

Farmers aren't quite as much at the mercy of OSHA as the MSU Extension Service bulletin would suggest. OSHA inspectors don't have the legal right to force themselves onto a farm or business site for inspection without notice. A John Birch society bulletin reports a federal court in Texas ruled that a businessman has a right to demand an inspector from OSHA go to court and get a warrant, under the rules of probable cause. In order to conduct an investigation.

In another instance, US District Court Judge Andrew Bogue in South Dakota ruled that an employer can demand an OSHA inspector prove his identity by filling out a "Public Servant's Questionnaire."

Conservative congressmen have pointed out that the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) is clearly unconstitutional on at least a couple counts. The bureaucrats have been getting away with it so far simply because they haven't been effectively challenged on the constitutionality of their regulations. Hopefully, farmers and businessmen will pay close attention, in the elections, to their Representatives' and Senators' views on abolishing OSHA all together.

SOCIALISM VS. THE INDIVIDUAL

Socialism or Communism is a beautiful way of life for a Community and it dates back to way before Marx and Lenin. The first fellowship of Christians, as recorded in the Book of Acts, was ideally communalistic. All worked for the group and each was fed and sheltered by the group, and they pooled their resources. But Ananias and Sapphira tried to hold back a little for themselves and met sudden death.

The ardent and unselfish socialists and communists of yesterday and today mean well, but their idealistic plans invariably founder, because they ignore the fact that it takes ideal people to make it function as planned. Thus, their attempts are doomed from the start.

A completely different approach to a beautiful way of life found its beginning on our shores two centuries ago. It was based on the Individual: the Individual good, rather than the Common good; the Individual responsibility, rather than Community responsibility; Individual rewards, rather than Group rewards; Individual freedom, rather than National freedom.

From a common starting point of everyone created equal, and a common guarantee of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, the Individual could have a go at it as he saw fit.

True, there were restrictions placed on him. Laws restrained him from harming his fellow man, and provided a basis for common effort in specific areas, such as national defense and essential government functions. But, aside from the few designated restrictions, the Individual was free to shape his own destiny. And this approach made our Nation flourish brighter and longer than any other form of government.

Therefore, I deplore the inroads may during this 20th century by well-meaning supporters of the socialist ideals — they're beautiful, but don't work!

Thus far they have only succeeded in harming the successful continuation of the growth of American Freedom. They have given respectability to the welfare recipients, protection to the criminals, the vote-to-spend to those who do not contribute, and they have taken away the incentive to work and to shoulder one's own responsibility.

They continue their efforts to reduce America to dull mediocrity, penalizing work and success with exorbitant taxes, and rewarding incompetence, irresponsibility, and outright laziness with equal status.

Steel Price Hike Figure In Error

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Associated Press erroneously reported on Tuesday that price increases announced by Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. on flat rolled steel were 5.4 per cent.

The company actually said that its revenues would be increased by 5.4 per cent. It did not say what the price increase was in terms of percentage. However, experts estimate they averaged about 8 per cent.

Do You REMEMBER?

— 10 Years Ago —
A total of four southwestern Michigan students have been named winners of 1966 National Merit Scholarships. They are Jill Mason, Benton Harbor high school; Peter Hickner, Niles high school; Dawn Houdek, Bangor high school, and Alice Wahnhoff, Fennville high school.

— 25 Years Ago —
Of much interest locally this week was news of scientific honors bestowed upon the son of a former Benton Harborite. Last Monday night the American Chemical Society honored Dr. Lewis H. Sarett. At the age of 27, Dr. Sarett synthesized the anti-arthritis drug, cortisone, in one of the great forward steps of science during the century. Dr. Sarett is the son of Lew Sarett, poet and lecturer at Northwestern university. Lew Sarett spent his boyhood and young manhood in Benton Harbor.

— 50 Years Ago —
Preparatory to the selection of a Blossom Week queen, the queen committee of the Blossom Week pageant, visited the high schools of Paw Paw, Lawrence, Hartford, Dowagiac and South Haven, this morning. Ballots were left at these schools, each one of which is to elect a candidate. From those candidates and those of the Benton Harbor and St. Joseph high schools, the queen will be selected next Tuesday evening at the Liberty theatre. It is reported.

— 75 Years Ago —
After being covered up for 20 years, L.M. Winans discovered Friday morning the three hot mineral springs on the old Winans place north of the Paw Paw river, about a mile from Benton Harbor. The springs are strongly impregnated with three different salts, one is an iron, another a sulphur and the third potassium. They were first discovered by Dr. Richard Winans, over 30 years ago and he used the water extensively in his practice. It was the common talk among the people that Dr. Winans with the assistance of the water could cure many cases given up as hopeless by other doctors. Old residents of this city remember the wonderful curative power of the waters. Dr. Winans has been dead for twenty years and since that time the springs have been lost. The location of the springs are similar to the celebrated Eastman Springs, being in low marshy ground. The three springs will be developed by Rouse & Winans and it is expected they will yield over 600 gallons of water, which will be carbonated and bottled and sold for medicinal and family use.

Jimmy Carter And Big Government

PITTSBURGH — About this time a year ago, before Jimmy Carter became Jimmy Carter, I visited the peanut farmer at his home in southwest Georgia. He was then trying to convince the earless nation he was a presidential candidate, and I arranged to listen to the argument in between a morning date at a cocktail and an evening meeting with two Atlanta prostitutes who said they had information (they didn't) on the morals of some Watergate figures.

Carter was at the rear of his home — a nice but not sumptuous place of the suburban-gentleman category. He had been clearing growth from a small woods, "holding back the jungle" as he put it. He was dressed in tan jeans and sneakers. And sweating. We retired to a kind of recreation room study — books on the walls and do-it-yourself vinyl ties on the floor. At his wife's asking, he requested a Coke and I nipped; it being Georgia we both got Coke.

It was a time when the image of Richard Nixon was still that of a dangerous man rather than a sexless vegetable. Only a few days earlier I had been told by another White House hopeful, North Carolina's Terry Sanford, that the power of the "imperial president" must be harnessed. But Carter would have none of the popular notion; in our form of government, he said, one man has to have ultimate responsibility, thus in effect ultimate control.

"If people want a softer president," he added, "they shouldn't vote for me."

I suggested that his position might be abrasive to many, that people were increasingly worried about the government's muscle. He would not be swayed. Removing his sneakers to let the steam escape, he said people are not so much worried about strong government as inefficient government.

For instance, Carter said, one paramount government failure — or inefficiency — is its lack of vision. "We simply do not plan well." And then he told a story of meeting a high West German official at a cocktail party.

"He told me that in his country every possible eventuality is thought out, and preparations made for it. If the price of oil goes up 5 per cent and the supply goes down 10 per cent, they have already mapped strategy as to what they can do. And they have it down in writing. We could do the same in America."

So it is that when I left J. Carter to his backyard jungle last spring, he had made it clear that he was not against big government, he was in fact for big government, it was worthless and weak government he condemned. He had talked of "planning," of "programs," of "organization of priorities," the latter especially synonymous with government strength. And I, came away feeling he was an FDR with an accent, a new New Dealer, a man like JFK who wanted to move the planets.

Now, one year later, as Carter has at last convinced the nation of his presidential chances, it is clear that he has yet to convince it of his philosophic fundamentals. He is projected as a Washington outsider, a conservative running against the government, and we take this falsely to mean he is aiming his lance at centralized power.

It's not that he's tried to deceive us. He's been consistent from the beginning: big government is necessary, good government is the argument. The only change I see in Carter in 5 years' time is a quaint one; I have in my notes of my early visit with him that he "seems too serious," and I remember in our long talk he did not smile much at all.

Can Reagan Cost Ford Election?

WASHINGTON — President Ford is no longer very worried that Ronald Reagan can deny him the Republican presidential nomination — but he is very much worried that Reagan can deny him the election in the fall.

The President's strategists fear that Reagan may be so bitter after the August convention in Kansas City that he might refuse to support the President actively during the campaign.

An open rejection by Reagan or even a weak verbal endorsement unaccompanied by any visible effort to help would be an invitation to party conservatives to stay home on Election Day. Only 17 per cent of the nation's eligible voters are registered Republicans, a majority of whom consider themselves to be conservatives. The President simply cannot afford to lose this natural base of support.

Reagan has given no public indication of what he would do if he lost the presidential nomination. But, since his first primary victory in North Carolina, the former California governor has sharpened his attacks upon Ford, charging that the Administration has allowed the nation to become second in military strength to the Soviet Union, has failed to bring the economy under control and has bungled the energy problem.

"The strident warfare will continue, through the Texas primary on May 1, the next big test for the two men. But if the President wins there, his strategists are urging that he cool it and be gentler with Reagan to reduce the level of acrimony and enhance the prospects of a strong Reagan endorsement."

The Texas contest looks pretty much like a toss-up, but some politicians there believe Reagan may have the edge. He has been successfully appealing to conservative Democrats, who might have backed Gov. George Wallace, to cross party lines and vote for him.

But the political odds heavily favor Ford, and that is why his strategists are already looking ahead to what they see as the biggest danger after the convention. "Reagan is just the kind of fellow who might refuse to join the team," a Ford adviser moaned recently.

If indeed Reagan seems to signal a lack of enthusiasm for Ford after the nomination, Ford may find it necessary to win him over by giving him a veto over the vice presidential nomination. If Reagan has run well in the primaries, in fact, the President will almost certainly have to make the gesture of offering the second spot to Reagan himself. Reagan has said he is not interested in being Ford's running mate, but that is traditional campaign talk and need not be taken seriously.

Thus the fear of a Reagan walkout may mean that Ford will pick a conservative as his running mate, rather than a liberal such as Secretary of Commerce Elliot Richardson. The main possibilities include Reagan, former Secretary of Treasury John Connally and Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker.

Calculated To Help Foreign Competition

The idea that workers in one industry are "entitled" to the same wages as workers in another industry has surfaced again in connection with the strike against some of the major companies in the rubber industry. It is an erroneous argument, totally lacking in merit, which seems to have the saving grace of providing the only argument some labor leaders can think of to justify their demands.

Workers in tire manufacturing plants has a common interest with workers in automobile assembly plants — the sale of automobiles, which obviously helps tire sales. But that is as far as the relationship goes.

In case some have forgotten, every major American industry and a good

Economic News Is Good Ammunition For Ford

Undoubtedly the good economic news of late (Gross National Product up at an annual rate of 7.5 per cent in the first quarter, inflation down to less than 4 per cent) provide the Ford administration powerful ammunition in this election year.

Pocketbook issues, the President's campaign rivals have been saying, will rank high on the voter's checklist when he goes to the polls. And indeed they might, if they had not been showing such a strong improvement.

That does not mean the White House is going to gain much from the issue come November, even if the economic recovery continues at a strong pace. Pocketbook issues are among those Already it has begun — advice to the would-be gardeners who had hoped to prolong their off-season idleness a little longer.

Now is the time, according to those who dispense the advice, to get at those weeds. A vigorous attack now will save much time and energy later, we are told. If weeds are not mastered early in the season, they will take possession of the field.

All of which unfortunately is true, as the gardener is forced to admit after looking at his plot. Weeds seem to be better adapted to taking advantage of good growing weather than cultivated crops.

International Ice Patrol Resumes Its Annual Hunt

Like shepherds of large, white sea creatures, the International Ice Patrol is criss-crossing the North Atlantic again on its annual task of sighting and plotting the courses of icebergs which could endanger shipping.

Born in the aftermath of the sinking of the Titanic, with the loss of 1,500 lives, the patrol is a responsibility of the U.S. Coast Guard but is funded jointly by 20 seafaring nations. From March to mid-summer the patrol's work becomes vital. It is during those months that the huge ice masses could wander into shipping lanes.

This season so far has been an unusually light one. By mid-April only 31 potentially dangerous icebergs had been sighted. Hundreds usually have been found by this time, leading members of the patrol to speculate the season this year may be unusually short.

No way as yet has been found of controlling or destroying icebergs before they travel South into the danger zone, cast off from the giant glaciers of the North. The only warning ships have, aside from on-board instruments, is the patrol.

Only the crews of the ships plying the North Atlantic can fully appreciate the work performed by the men flying the planes and manning the ships of the ice patrol. The cost of slightly more than a million dollars a year is well worth it.

OSHA INSPECTORS CAN BE HALTED

Editor,

Farmers aren't quite as much at the mercy of OSHA as the MSU Extension Service bulletin would suggest. OSHA inspectors don't have the legal right to force themselves onto a farm or business site for inspection without notice. A John Birch society bulletin reports a federal court in Texas ruled that a businessman has a right to demand an inspector from OSHA go to court and get a warrant, under the rules of probable cause, in order to conduct an investigation.

In another instance, US District Court Judge Andrew Bogue in South Dakota ruled that an employer can demand an OSHA inspector prove his identity by filling out a "Public Servant's Questionnaire."

Conservative congressmen have pointed out that the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) is clearly unconstitutional on at least a couple counts. The bureaucrats have been getting away with it so far simply because they haven't been effectively challenged on the constitutionality of their regulations. Hopefully, farmers and businessmen will pay close attention, in the elections, to their Representatives' and Senators' views on abolishing OSHA all together.

Sincerely,

SOCIALISM Vs. THE INDIVIDUAL

Editor,

Socialism or Communism is a beautiful way of life for a Community and it dates back to way before Marx and Lenin. The first fellowship of Christians, as recorded in the Book of Acts, was ideally communistic. All worked for the group and each was fed and sheltered by the group, and they pooled their resources. But Ananias and Sapphira tried to hold back a little for themselves and met sudden death.

The ardent and unselfish socialists and communists of yesterday and today mean well, but their idealistic plans invariably founder, because they ignore the fact that it takes ideal people to make it function as planned. Thus, their attempts are doomed from the start.

A completely different approach to a beautiful way of life found its beginning on our shores two centuries ago. It was based on the Individual: the Individual good, rather than the Common good; the Individual responsibility, rather than Community responsibility; Individual rewards, rather than Group rewards; Individual freedom, rather than National freedom.

From a common starting point of everyone created equal, and a common guarantee of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, the Individual could have a go at it as he saw fit.

True, there were restrictions placed on him. Laws restrained him from harming his fellow

Jimmy Carter And Big Government

PITTSBURGH — About this time a year ago, before Jimmy Carter became Jimmy Carter, I visited the peanut farmer at his home in southwest Georgia.

He was then trying to convince the earless nation he was a presidential candidate, and I arranged to listen to the argument in between a morning date at a cocktail and an evening meeting with two Atlanta prostitutes who said they had information (they didn't) on the morals of some Watergate figures.

Carter was at the rear of his home — a nice but not sumptuous place of the suburban gentleman category. He had been clearing growth from a small woods, "holding back the jungle" as he put it. He was dressed in tan jeans and sneakers. And sweating. We retired to a kind of recreation room study — books on the walls and do-it-yourself vinyl tiles on the floor. At his wife's asking, he requested a Coke and I a Pepsi; it being Georgia we both got Coke.

Det. Schadler Again Says Hoosier Was Triggerman

For the second time in the past four months, Benton Harbor Det. Thomas Schadler yesterday identified Maurice Henry Carter of Gary as the man who shot him six times in December, 1973.

Tuesday's testimony came during the first day of a Berrien Circuit court trial for Carter, charged with two counts of assault with intent to murder stemming from the Dec. 20 shooting of Schadler.

Carter, 31, is charged with shooting Schadler and also with firing a shot at the detective's wife while the two were Christmas shopping at Harbor Wigs and Record shop in downtown Benton Harbor. Mrs. Schadler was not injured.

Schadler and his wife, Ruth, both identified Carter as their assailant during preliminary hearings in January in Berrien Fifth District court.

Carter was arrested Jan. 5 in Gary, more than two years after the shooting.

Schadler was one of only two witnesses called Tuesday by Chief Assistant Prosecutor Robert McDowell.

During cross-examination by Atty. James Jesse, Carter's counsel, Schadler said he didn't recall any of the clothing his assailant wore or what kind of a weapon was used and that he never heard his assailant say anything during the entire incident.

The first witness, Det. Robert Massingale, testified that no gun ever has been located.

Jesse, in his opening statement, said he felt the prosecution's evidence will show nothing to connect Carter to the crime and contended that a description of the assailant does not fit Carter.

He also said there is no physical evidence to link Carter with the shooting and that Carter was released by a police officer at the scene shortly after the shooting when an unidentified witness told the officer Carter was not the assailant.

During cross-examination, Jesse called Schadler from the witness stand to face Carter in the center of the courtroom and give a description of his physical characteristics.

Schadler earlier testified that he never lost consciousness although wounded six times and recounted details of the shooting. The store, which has since gone out of business, was located at 128 East Main street.

The 36-year-old detective, a veteran of seven years on the Benton Harbor police force, recovered from the wounds and has returned to duty.

Schadler was scheduled to give more testimony this morning before the all-white jury of nine women and five men, which later will be reduced to 12 members.

Before the jury was finally selected, the defense challenged the racial composition of the jury panel, since there were no blacks from whom to choose.

Presiding Circuit Judge Julian E. Hughes denied the motion, challenging the composition of the jury after an explanation that two blacks on the panel had asked to be dismissed because of employment reasons.

Hughes said the excuses "had nothing to do with race" and that "there was no calculated effort to exclude blacks."

He noted it was unusual for the number of blacks on a jury panel to be so small, but that the racial makeup came "from the chance of the draw" used to select potential jurors.

Panel OKs $540,000 For Migrant Health

A $540,000 migrant health project grant was recommended yesterday for federal funding by the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association's health services committee.

The recommendation, passed unanimously by 10 health services committee members, will go directly to the Chicago regional office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). Rod Goodchild, regional health planner, said.

Goodchild said no further hearings or meetings will be necessary. The Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association board, likewise, would not have to review the committee's findings, Goodchild said.

The $540,000 grant request has been made by Berrien, Cass and Van Buren Health Services, Inc. (BCV), to HEW. The organization conducts health services in Berrien, Cass, Van Buren, Allegan and Ottawa counties.

Mrs. Vera Solis, director of BCV, said today that if the number of migrants in southwestern Michigan declines health care funds will be spent only as needed. She was questioned because of reports that frost damage will cause a major reduction in the fruit crop, resulting in less farm labor needs. About 30,000 migrants would be expected in normal times.

Another recommendation made by the health services committee, was that BCV recruit its staff from the five county area because of high unemployment. Goodchild said there are plenty of prospects, including those speak Spanish, in the area to fill all positions.

Rev. Arnold Bolin representing the Berrien County Council of Churches, and Amelia Scherer of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, endorsed the work done by BCV.

The committee met yesterday at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor.

Firemen Get Free Assist At 2 Blazes

Benton Harbor firemen, short-handed from layoffs, got help from one laid-off fireman and three other off-duty firemen in two almost simultaneous fires Tuesday afternoon.

Fire Capt. Richard Nichols said two trucks were sent to a garage fire in an alley behind 881 Empire avenue at 5:21 p.m. Nine minutes later a house fire was reported at 592 Pipestone street. Both trucks were sent to that fire and one fireman was left at the garage fire, Nichols reported.

The garage, owned by Gerstein

Sherrill, was completely burned out. It was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived, Nichols reported.

Fire at 592 Pipestone, the home of Henrietta Cohn, was confined to the attic. Causes of both fires were undetermined and are under investigation, firemen said.

Nichols said Deputy Fire Chief John Billups, who manned the central station radio was called out about 8:15 p.m. Nichols said an alarm "fortunately it was only an odor of gas and no fire or we'd have really had problems."

Nichols identified the laid-off

Benton Harbor fireman as Dave Garlanger. Robert Jones, an off-duty Benton Harbor fire captain, assisted at the Pipestone street fire as did an unidentified Benton township fireman and a fireman from Portage, Ind., who was visiting in this area, Nichols said.

With the layoffs of 11 regular firemen, the duty crew at the main fire station is six men. On April 17 the city shut down the southside fire station which had three men. "If southside was in operation we'd have handled both fires without problem," Nichols said. The layoffs for firemen took effect April 18.

Woman Held After BH Stabbing Death

A Benton Harbor man died of a stab wound to the throat Tuesday, and city police reported a woman was arrested on an open charge of murder.

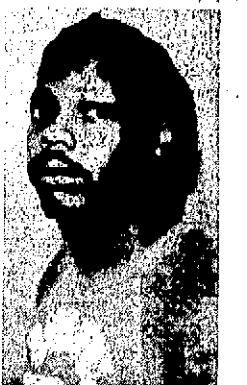

Pronounced dead on arrival at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, at about 9:15 p.m. was Llewellyn Lee Lynn, 24, 430 Payne street.

Booked at the Berrien county jail was Angelus Domin DePriest, 29, also of 430 Payne street. Police reported the incident occurred about 8:15 p.m. at the DePriest apartment and followed an apparent argument. Police confiscated a large butcher knife at the scene.

It was the fourth homicide recorded this year in Benton Harbor. In all of 1975, just one homicide was recorded in the city.

Republican Women Plan Bicentennial Quilt Show

Berrien County Republican Women's club is sponsoring a Bicentennial Quilt Show Saturday and Sunday, May 8 and 9, from noon to 5 p.m. at the Old Courthouse museum, Berrien Springs.

Many old quilts from family collections and of varied backgrounds will be displayed. A special feature will be a red, white and blue Bicentennial quilt for which each of the 30 blocks was made by a member of the club. The star-patterned quilt was hand-quilted by women of the Berrien Springs United Methodist church.

The Berrien Springs museum has been established as the oldest courthouse building still standing in Michigan and is now registered as a state historical site. In the interest of history and the renewed interest in the colonial craft of quilt-making, the beirlooms will be displayed in the court room of the building recently renovated by the Berrien County Historical association, according to Mrs. James W. Walton, chairman for the show.

The quilt show is registered as a Bicentennial activity in Berrien county.

Anyone wishing to display a quilt may contact Mrs. James W. Walton, Berrien Springs, or bring the quilt to the Old Courthouse museum between 9 and 11 a.m. Saturday, May 8.

There is no fee for displaying and admission is free.

A live demonstration of quilting will take place throughout the entire show.

Finale For Springtime Menus

Flavor Surprise

For a light finale to your springtime party menus, try this tasty Toffee Chiffon Pie. The flavor surprise in this frothy dessert is the crunchy goodness of English toffee candy nestled into the luscious filling to crown the top of this tempting treat.

A perfect dessert for special occasions, Toffee Chiffon Pie is easy enough to prepare that it can be served for family meals.

TOFFEE CHIFFON PIE
Two envelopes (tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
One-half cup cold water
Three eggs, separated
One and one-half cups milk
One-half cup brown sugar, packed

One-half teaspoon salt
One teaspoon vanilla
One cup (six ounces) chopped English Toffee candy bars
One-fourth cup granulated sugar

One envelope (two ounce) whipped dessert topping
One nine-inch baked pastry or favorite crumb pie shell, chilled Soften gelatin in cold water. Beat egg yolks slightly. Add one cup milk, brown sugar, salt; stir. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture coats a spoon. Add softened gelatin; stir until it melts. Blend in vanilla and three-fourths cup candy bits. Chill until mixture starts to set.

Beat egg whites until frothy; add sugar gradually, continuing to beat until stiff and glossy. Fold into gelatin mixture.

Prepare dessert topping as directed on package using remaining one-half cup milk. Fold into gelatin and egg white mixture. Pour into chilled crust. Sprinkle with remaining one-fourth cup candy bits, or more if desired. Chill until firm.

Note: A quick and easy way to chop toffee candy is to freeze candy bars first, then crush with blender, food grinder, grater or chopper, or wrap bars in waxed paper or cloth and crush with a rolling pin.

Celebrate spring with elegant menus featuring turkey. Turkey is more than holiday fare and an ever-popular entree to offer your family and guests.

For festive springtime fare, serve roasted turkey with fresh asparagus salad and Lime-Fluff Dessert.

To prepare the asparagus salad, use fresh or frozen spears. Precook and chill the asparagus. At serving time, arrange the asparagus on a large serving platter with cherry tomatoes. Heat Italian salad dressing and pour over the salad before serving. Crisp crumbled bacon may be added, if desired.

Lime-Fluff Dessert is an easy to prepare dish which can be made in advance. Lime gelatin is added to whipped evaporated milk creating a cool, refreshing dessert, perfect for springtime and an elegant turkey dinner.

LIME-FLUFF DESSERT

Thirteen and one-half ounce can evaporated milk, chilled

Three ounce package lime gelatin

One-half cup boiling water

One-half cup sugar

Juice of one lime

Whip evaporated milk until stiff. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add sugar to gelatin. Gradually fold gelatin mixture into whipped milk. Add lime juice. (Green food coloring may be added for brighter color.) Pour into a thirteen by nine by two-inch pan or into a two-quart souffle dish. Garnish with fresh lime slices and strawberries.

Burritos Developed For Yankee Tastes

The fifth of May is like the Fourth of July to our neighbors south of Rio Grande.

It's Cinco de Mayo, a holiday that celebrates Mexico's long drive for freedom. In the United States, it's Mexican-American Day, too, marked with songs, parades and satisfying Mexican food.

This recipe for Burritos was developed for Yankee tastes, with a mild chili flavor. Serve Burritos with tomatoes stuffed with guacamole.

BURRITOS

Makes 12

Three tablespoons cooking oil

Three-fourths pound stew beef, cut in one-half-inch pieces

Three-fourths pound pork shoulder, cut in one-half-inch pieces

One cup chopped onion

One clove garlic, crushed

One teaspoon salt

One and one-half cups water

One can (four ounce) green chilies, drained

refried beans

One-fourth cup shredded cheddar cheese

Twelve flour tortillas

Heat two tablespoons oil in a large skillet; cook beef, pork and onion until meat is browned and onion is tender. Add garlic, salt and water; heat to boiling.

Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for two hours or until meat is tender and begins to fall apart. Add chilies and, with fork, gently flake meat. Continue cooking, uncovered, until all liquid has evaporated.

Heat refried beans in one tablespoon oil. Add cheese; heat until cheese is melted.

In center of each tortilla, spread about two tablespoons bean mixture in a thin layer. Spoon about two tablespoons meat mixture near one edge of tortilla. Roll up, folding ends in securely, forming a rectangular roll. Place burritos on a cookie sheet; cover with foil. Heat in preheated 325 degree oven for 15 minutes. Serve with taco sauces or chili hot dog sauce. Eat like a sandwich.

TOMATOES STUFFED WITH GUACAMOLE

Makes 6

Six medium tomatoes

Three large ripe avocados, peeled and seeded

Two tablespoons chopped onion

One tomato, peeled, seeded and chopped

Salt

Dash hot pepper sauce

Lettuce leaves

Make three crosswise cuts in top of tomatoes, cutting almost but not through the bottom. Spread sections apart to form a cup. Mash the avocados. Mix with onion, chopped tomato and lemon juice. Add salt and hot pepper sauce to taste and mix well. Stuff the tomatoes with the avocado mixture and arrange on crisp lettuce leaves.

BURRITOS

Salad Bowl Month

May is salad bowl month at most produce counters says Maryann Beckman, Extension Food Marketing Agent.

Volume supplies of lettuce are coming to market along with all the other "goodies" that made salad eating fun.

It's a peak season time for radishes and green onions and there are plenty of carrots, cabbage and celery at low prices.

Carrot prices have been so low, in fact, that some supplies have been marketed for cattle feed. Though cucumbers and tomatoes aren't in peak volume yet, supplies are increasing rapidly and prices are lower, especially on cucumbers. Tomato demand still exceeds supply so prices are still high.

Fresh mushrooms will be in steady supply during coming weeks at unchanged prices. Add a few "other" greens, such as escarole, endive, leaf lettuce, romaine and spinach to add interest to salads. Though prices are up on these, as supplies decline, remember a little goes a long way.

Peak of the artichoke season ends in May, but increased supplies of green beans, beets, eggplant, summer squash (primarily zucchini) and sweet corn will all be heading to market in increasing volume. Broccoli, cauliflower and other winter vegetables will all but disappear from markets as soon as their season ends.

Biggest vegetable news for May is the arrival of Michigan asparagus. Supplies of this "snapped," no waste, locally grown product reach peak supply in May. Some have already appeared due to warm days and increased moisture.

New this year for consumers will be quantity packs (10 pound and larger units) for home preservation needs. Cut asparagus from California (that contains 47 to 50 per cent waste due to the tough white, woody portion included) has been available since February.

Fruit supplies are good, with apples, bananas, oranges, grapefruit, lemons and limes still the volume, value leaders, but are now being joined by watermelon, cantaloupe, honeydew melons and increasing supplies of strawberries. Pineapple should be in good supply all month, along with both hothouse and new field-grown rhubarb.

Pork prices will remain fairly steady all month as will turkey and broilers. Broiler marketings may increase about 10 to 12 per cent over a year ago, but this is the start of the months of peak demand for outdoor picnics and barbecues so prices won't change much. Prices have been running lower than expected for this time of year so chickens are excellent value choices.

The beef specials seen during the past months may be ending, with few, if any specials anticipated for May. Fed cattle prices may have reached their lows for the year for prices have been rising since late March and are expected to continue upwards. Eggs should be another excellent value for May. Prices traditionally drop after Easter and this year is no exception, so specials are likely in many stores.

May is the month of the fisherman too. If you don't get a hearty catch from the "fisherman" in your family, pick from increasing supplies in the grocery stores.

Canned apple juice, frozen lemonade, canned grapefruit juice and frozen orange juice concentrate look like excellent beverage values for May. Most will be specialized in many markets. Fruit cocktail, canned cling and freestone peaches and some brands of canned pineapple will also be featured. Look, too, for canned and frozen green beans, peas and sweet corn specials, along with sauerkraut, canned tomatoes and tomato products and dry beans, which are just in time for the baked bean season.

Sparkling wines need to be opened cautiously to preserve the precious bubbles of carbon dioxide. Chilling slows the action of the bubbles. To avoid agitating them, handle the bottle gently. Remove the foil and the wire guard from the neck of the bottle, and then ease out the cork. The ideal cork-screw has a wide metal thread, and is long enough to penetrate well into the cork. A type popular with many waiters is the one that has a small blade for cutting the capsule, a screw and lever device all in one.

For a fantastic selection of wines, whiskeys, brandies and cordials stop by RITTER'S LIQUOR LOCKER, 3872 Red Arrow Hwy., 429-4921. We also carry many convenience items such as smoking supplies, film and flash bulbs, picnic supplies and of course bagged ice cubes. Hours: Mon.-Sat. 10 am-11 pm, Sun. noon-9 pm.

WINE WISDOM:

Pneumatic extractors are adequate and quick; the needle pierces the cork, and air is pumped through it to force the cork out.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

A Puppy Replaced Her Baby

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the couple who bought a monkey and dressed her in organdy pinafores and patent leather shoes. You answered, "Of course the pets are substitutes for the real thing, but if people prefer substitutes, that's their business."

How do you know they prefer substitutes? When I gave birth to a stillborn child, I was given a small puppy. I didn't have the strength to care for a baby if one had been available. The puppy was a warm, live, lovable creature, and better than nothing.

Yet some of our friends made aside remarks about "selfish, sick people" who spend money feeding and grooming a poodle when there are hungry children in Biafra.

Why buy an organdy dress and patent leather shoes for a monkey? Only the couple who did it knows the answer. But have you checked the adoption agencies lately? God alone knows why some parents who have children abuse them while thousands of childless couples have to settle for dogs, cats and monkeys. — Tears in Tulsa

Dear Tulsa: Thank you for a thoughtful and provocative letter. I learned something today and I'm sure many others did, too.

Credentials

Dear Ann Landers: I am a member of a Jewish congregation. Doctors, lawyers, teachers and other professionals are willing to submit their credentials for approval at all times. I've noticed that many so-called rabbis, when interviewed for a position, resent being asked to present their ordination papers. I know of one instance where a "rabbi" became indignant and treated the request as an insult. Nevertheless, he was invited to occupy the pulpit the following Friday night and made an impressive presentation. He was almost hired on the spot, but a secret committee decided to check him out. They discovered the man had no formal religious training for the rabbinate and had never been ordained.

How can people protect themselves against such fakes? — Close Call In Philadelphia

Dear C.C.: Every now and then we read about someone who was caught "playing" doctor, lawyer or college professor. No field is free of imposters.

including the rabbinate. The best protection is the one you described. Insist on credentials, then check them out to make sure they are legitimate.

Luncheon Lecture

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who is a health food nut. She doesn't eat enough to keep a bird alive. Of course she is skinnier than a rat. In fact, she eats like a rat. Cheese, cheese, cheese.

When we have lunch together we usually go to a cafeteria. The minute we sit down she looks at my tray and says, "Look! How can you eat that junk? Do you have any idea the number of calories in that piece of pie?" Then out comes her chart and my lunch is ruined.

I am not fat. I'm in good health. I enjoy food. What can I do to get her off my back? — Sick Of The Put-Down

Dear P.D.: Probably nothing, so find someone else to eat with. While she is undoubtedly a fanatic, you must also be a little wacky to subject yourself to such unpleasant company.

A Cure For Stress

Do you know what Mayva said to me the other day? She said, "You are under stress."

"Why would you say a thing like that?" I asked.

"Because you just dusted the coffee table with a deodorant. Besides, you don't seem to have any energy anymore."

"A lot of people rest between chewing while they eat," I said defensively.

"Ice cream? I'd like to see you get into some kind of a meditation technique. I can't tell you what it's done for me."

"I know what it's done for you," I said. "You're so content you're no fun anymore. A REAL friend, Mayva, is fat when you are fat, depressed when you are depressed, and overdrawn when you are overdrawn. I liked you better when you cried when you returned empty to the recycling center."

"You don't mean that," she said gently. "It's not that I have any fewer problems than you do. I'm just able to handle them better. What would you say if I told you all it takes for peace of mind is a few minutes out of each day sitting in a chair relaxing with your eyes closed?"

"You show me a woman sitting in a chair in the middle of the day with her eyes closed and I'll show you three kids having a peanut butter orgy!"

"Just try it," she pleaded. "Here, just sit in this chair and get comfortable."

"I hear flushing!" I said, gripping the arms of the chair. "Just put everything out of your mind."

"Listen! Are those marbles in the cold air ducts?"

"It would help if you had a mantra."

"I'm not that cold, but there's probably one in the hall closet."

"No, a mantra is a thought-sound—a word that we use to meditate on and reduce mental activity."

"Do you have one?" I asked. (Mayva nodded.) "Then, maybe I could borrow yours."

"I can't do that," she smiled. "I can't even tell you what my mantra is."

"That's terrific!" I said. "When you were pregnant, I offered to carry the baby for you and you can't even loan me your mantra for a few minutes. It's all right. I'll get my own!"

"They tell me they found me in my chair 40 minutes later. The kitchen was a disaster area; the front door was open, there was no hint of dinner, the phone was ringing, and the dog was eating cottage cheese out of an ashtray. They found me rocking back and forth with a smile on my face reciting over and over

Not a day passes that I do not receive letters attacking me for my stand against the use of marijuana.

Some of the letters are from young people who want to enlist my support in "telling the world" that marijuana is not dangerous. I am certain that those who write these letters would like to use me to ease their own guilt for using "pot."

Some parents write, hoping that I will assuage their anxiety about their children's pot smoking. They do not want my support against marijuana. Rather, they want my assurance that physical harm will not result.

Almost invariably, there is another type of letter which states, "If my father can drink and my mother can smoke cigarettes why can't I smoke pot?"

This argument is heard on every campus and, unfortunately, in every high school in the country today.

The parents' alcohol and tobacco does not justify the use of marijuana, cocaine, heroin, amphetamines or barbiturates.

It took many years of scientific study to prove the relationship between tobacco and cancer of the lungs, cancer of the larynx and circulatory disease. It took many years, too, to prove the destructive effects of alcoholic abuse on the liver, the brain and other organs.

Some of my readers ask me to substantiate the proof that marijuana can be harmful. This is not difficult because many reports have already shown dangerous changes in body organs in chronic pot smokers. The medical and scientific literature is filled with studies that indicate: diminished reflexes, alteration of judgment, loss of alertness and impaired memory.

Until these scientific studies are accurately refuted and counterbalanced by reliable investigators, I feel that marijuana must be considered a potential danger.

Ongoing studies in many laboratories around the country are continuing to shed new light on the physiological, psychological and social effects of marijuana. Only when all of the evidence is in — and this may take years — will the danger or safety of marijuana be positively established.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Your material resources are in good aspect today as long as you don't rock the boat. Let matters proceed naturally and all will go well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Do your own thing today. You have a feeling of self-power that is lucky for you. You must, however, avoid erratic associates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Behind the scenes happenings favor you today because your hunches are good. Have faith, too, in the unseen and the unknown.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Big rewards are in store if you keep your goals realistic. Others will be willing to assist as long as you don't spring last-minute changes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Today you should have a broad outlook that will add impetus to your bright ideas. Be just and fair, and keep promises at all costs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

It's a good day for joint ventures, but work with the resources of others. You're not being selfish, just very realistic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Others can do more for you than you're able to do yourself, so let them take the lead. Agreements made today are extremely promising.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Your career will get a big boost today if you finish what you start. Burn the midnight oil if necessary. Treat co-workers with respect. They'll help you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Social success is yours today. You can be the most popular person at the party. You'd be wise to pay more attention to old friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

For you, it's live for today, and let tomorrow care for itself. You should give family matters priority. You're especially fortunate in that area.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Good news is in the offing today, but analyze the best way to use it without being too obvious. Don't depart from proven methods.

Your Birthday

April 29, 1976

Select associates with care. They could have a crucial bearing on your accomplishments this year. Once you've decided collectively, stick to your course.

National Baby Week --200 Years Later

What was being a baby like 200 years ago?

The 1776 baby wore diapers cut from bed sheets, played with mother-made cloth animals and slept in a rough-hewn, feather-bedded box with wooden rockers attached to the bottom. It was over 100 years later, before babies even enjoyed the comfort of baby powder!

Today's 1976 baby enjoys an array of delicious prepared formulas and foods, spends playful hours with colorful, safe toys of every description and is carried, pushed, bounced, back-packed and wheeled by conveniences of every imagination.

No one knows exactly when the first National Baby Week was (this year it's April 24 to May 1) but this year, again, it celebrates the one thing that hasn't changed since 1776 — that special fling of love between mother and baby.

And today's 1976 mother is certainly a different one from her counterpart 200 years earlier. All sorts of time and labor-saving devices have come along to allow her to spend more time loving baby. Disposable diapers, for example, free her from the drudgery of constant washing — and they're more absorbent to keep baby drier and happier than cloth diapers. With drier babies, the 1976 mother has to worry less about diaper rash, too.

Spending time with baby — cuddling, talking, cooing, carressing — those are the things that today's mother knows are important for her baby because, child behavior experts agree, they're vital to good psychological development.

Mother love hasn't changed a bit since 1776. And babies haven't either. It's just that today, 200 years later, both mother and baby are able to enjoy more of those special loving times together.

Thirty-Seven Believed Dead In Virgin Islands Crash

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands (AP) — American Airlines today reported 37 persons dead or missing in the crash of a Boeing 727 jetliner on a runway that officials say is dangerously short.

The Knud-Hansen Hospital said it treated 57 persons injured in the crash Tuesday afternoon. There was still some confusion, but it appeared that 51 of the injured were aboard the plane and six were bystanders on the ground.

The hospital said it was holding 19 of the injured for further treatment. Two others who were badly burned were flown to Puerto Rico. The rest were released from the hospital.

The airline said there were 81 passengers and a crew of seven aboard the plane, including three infants. It said the dead or missing included 35 passengers and two flight attendants. It withheld their home addresses, but the Knud-Hansen Hospital made public those of the injured.

The big jet was arriving on a flight from Providence, R.I., and New York. Most of the passengers were vacationers from the East Coast.

Witnesses said the plane overshot the landing mark at the Harry S. Truman Airport and tried to regain full power but failed to get in the air again.

They said it hit a four-foot embankment at the end of the runway, skidded 300 yards across the road that connects the airport and Charlotte Amalie and slammed into a Shell gasoline station and the St. Thomas Bay Rum factory.

The tail section ripped off and turned over. The fuselage skidded several hundred yards further. Its nose smashed into a palm tree. The right wing and landing gear were thrown 50 feet.

A huge ball of fire shot hundreds of feet into the air. Heavy black smoke covered the scene as survivors scrambled from emergency exits.

The wreckage burned for nearly two hours. Firefighting efforts were hampered by a lack of water, and private water trucks responded to an emergency call.

The plane also brought down telephone and electrical lines, blacking out a third of Charlotte Amalie for several hours.

Pilots have complained for years that the airport's 4,850-foot main runway is too short. "We have a very short runway," Fire Chief Rudolph Jennings said. Another fire department official said it is "extremely short and they know it is critically dangerous."

Federal Aviation Administrator John McLucas inspected the airport on April 13, and the Virgin Islands Ports Authority gave him a $50-million improvement proposal. FAA officials and airline representatives at the time described the airstrip as marginal in terms of safety.

FAA officials began an immediate investigation of the crash. Three inspectors arrived from San Juan, Puerto Rico, William R. Haley, who heads a nine-member National Transportation Safety Board team, was expected in St. Thomas today.

The pilot, Arthur Bujnowski, 53, of Huntington, N.Y., and his first officer and flight engineer were among the survivors who were released after treatment. They refused to talk with reporters.

The two surviving stewar- deses were among those hospitalized.

Dennis Doyon, the owner of the St. Thomas Flight Center at the airport, said the crash "was like an earthquake, a deep roar."

"I've seen two other crashes here. This was the worst," said Walter Tressen, who owns an automobile agency 400 yards from the crash site.

The crash was similar to one involving a Transcaribbean Airlines Boeing 727 on Dec. 28, 1970, in which two persons were killed and 110 survived. That plane overshot the runway and slid up a hill to the right of Tuesday's crash scene.

JETLINER CREW: American Airlines identified these people as part of crew of its 727 jetliner which crashed Tuesday on St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. From left: Capt. Arthur Bujnowski, First Officer E.R. Offchiss, Flight Engineer Donald C. Hestler, and Flight Attendants Joan Carrara and Betty Pickett. An American spokesman said the entire crew was based in the New York area. (AP Wirephoto)

INVESTIGATING CRASH: Investigators from the Federal Aviation Agency examine wreckage of an American Airlines 727 jet which crashed while attempting to land in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. Eighty-eight people were aboard. Thirty-seven people were reported dead or missing. (AP Wirephoto)

Allegan Board In Support Of Second District Judge

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county board yesterday went on record in support of legislation which would give the county a second district court judge.

The commission unanimously passed a resolution endorsing the legislation now being considered by the state senate's judiciary committee.

Board members indicated it would cost the county about $40,000 a year for the second judgeship to pay for additional staff, another assistant prosecutor and to pay the county portion of the judge's salary.

The resolution noted that Allegan county handles more cases per judge than any other county in the state.

In another area, Commissioner Dennis Nickels of Wayland became the third member to announce he will not seek re-election this year. Nickels joined Chairman Jerry Lohman of Hamilton and Ralph Senese of Otsego.

Dennis Doyon, the owner of the St. Thomas Flight Center at the airport, said the crash "was like an earthquake, a deep roar."

"I've seen two other crashes here. This was the worst," said Walter Tressen, who owns an automobile agency 400 yards from the crash site.

The crash was similar to one involving a Transcaribbean Airlines Boeing 727 on Dec. 28, 1970, in which two persons were killed and 110 survived. That plane overshot the runway and slid up a hill to the right of Tuesday's crash scene.

Allegan Board In Support Of Second District Judge

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county board yesterday went on record in support of legislation which would give the county a second district court judge.

The commission unanimously passed a resolution endorsing the legislation now being considered by the state senate's judiciary committee.

Board members indicated it would cost the county about $40,000 a year for the second judgeship to pay for additional staff, another assistant prosecutor and to pay the county portion of the judge's salary.

The resolution noted that Allegan county handles more cases per judge than any other county in the state.

In another area, Commissioner Dennis Nickels of Wayland became the third member to announce he will not seek re-election this year. Nickels joined Chairman Jerry Lohman of Hamilton and Ralph Senese of Otsego.

Austin Sees His Name A Big 'Plus' In Senate Race

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Richard Austin has ridden his well-known name to the forefront of the Democratic race for the U.S. Senate, and he's counting it will provide a victory over less-well known rivals. In formally announcing his long-expected candidacy for the job Tuesday, he did little to dispel the notion he is banking heavily on the familiarity of Michigan residents with his position as secretary of state, and not his stand on key issues, to win the August primary. U.S. Rep. Donald Riegle of Flint, also pursuing the seat to be vacated by the retiring Sen. Philip Hart, lost no time in questioning Austin's age — 63 on May 8 — and challenging him to focus on the issues. But Austin chose to avoid emphasizing issues strongly in news conferences in Detroit and Lansing, took no controversial stands and spoke in generalities for the need of more jobs and restored integrity in government.

"I think my record as secretary of state demonstrates that I care, I listen and I get things done," he said. "Public service has become my life's work."

A liberal blurb, he declined to say he found Alabama Gov. George Wallace unacceptable as a presidential nominee — a step many Democrats, including at least one of his opponents, have taken. Instead, he called the question "academic," since Wallace is obviously not going to win the nomination, and only when pressed acknowledged he would "have difficulty" supporting Wallace.

Political observers feel Austin is counting on his name — spread throughout Michigan by the Department of State's local offices, its numerous brochures and television spots, and the tasks the department performs which directly affect the public. To remind them, his bumper sticker is a smaller version of Michigan's bicentennial license plate, with "AUSTIN" written across it.

Some feel he will avoid taking hard stands on controversial issues in the hopes of retaining as much of the support he has from those who simply recognize his name but don't associate it with any particular position.

"Everything he says will only lose him votes — he'll never have as many votes as he has now," said state Sen. Anthony Derocinski, D-Muskegon. "Everything he does now is to hold on to what he has."

Meanwhile, his two most powerful opponents — Riegle and U.S. Rep. James O'Hara of Utica — find themselves suddenly behind, as gauged by most experts. Their strategy must be to attack on the issues Austin may want to avoid, and urge Michigan residents to keep him as secretary of state, saying he's done such a good job.

Riegle lost no time in baiting Austin: Welcoming him to the race, he said he'd be sorry to see Austin resign if he wins and surrender the secretary of state's job to the Republicans via a gubernatorial veto. And, Riegle said, "I think we need some younger blood" in the U.S. Senate.

Riegle, 38, said Austin has not taken positions on "major national and international issues" and that voters will want to know where Austin stands. He said he looks forward to a "full and frank debate" with Austin and the other candidates.

Austin dismissed the idea he might be too old by noting he's the same age as President Ford — who seems to be healthy — and saying he feels fine.

Austin said his background as a certified public accountant would be valuable in grappling with the fiscal problems of the cities and states. He said pressing problems "demand a fresh, new approach."

When questioned on various issues, Austin said:

—The creation of jobs is the most important issue facing the country. —He personally disapproves of abortion but would oppose a constitutional amendment prohibiting it.

—He opposes a constitutional amendment banning busing to desegregate schools, but said he does not like busing because "it is costly, and often generates dissension." He said alternatives should be pursued, such as magnet schools, attendance boundary changes and school financing to improve education. —He hasn't decided who to support for the Democratic presidential nomination, but said he could accept former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

—He supports the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Austin said he will not take a leave of absence as secretary of state, and said he will place the job ahead of his campaign.

136 Plants Seized In Narc Raid

DOWAGIAC — Armed with a search warrant, a team of Cass metro narcotics officers raided a house near Dowagiac yesterday afternoon and seized what they described as 136 marijuana plants but made no arrests.

Deputies said 84 of the plants were found in an upstairs bedroom at the house on M-51 south which is occupied by Joseph Sherniot, 26.

Officers said 36 six-inch high plants were found growing in cups by the window in the bedroom. In a nearby closet, officers said they found 58 plants about a foot high growing under three heat lamps.

Several hundred feet behind the house, officers said they found 40 more plants, most victims of Monday night's freezing weather. All of those plants were found covered with fruit jars, officers said.

Capt. Paul Parrish said this morning a warrant is being sought for Sherniot's arrest on charges of possession of marijuana and cultivating marijuana.

Trailer Fire Hits At Niles

NILES — An explosion and fire of undetermined origin ripped through a storage trailer outside the Tyler Refrigeration plant on Lake street here yesterday afternoon, according to Niles city firemen.

Marion Fuller, acting Niles fire chief, said no foul play is suspected and no damage estimate has been made. However, he indicated damage to refrigeration parts stored in the trailer and to the structure itself would be "several thousands of dollars."

Impact of the explosion, reported about 4:30 p.m., blew off one end and the top of the 10 by 40-foot structure, Fuller said. He said a subsequent fire damaged the parts stored in the trailer.

Fuller said no one was injured by the blast and fire. He said the trailer was unoccupied when the explosion occurred.

Ford, GM Likely Strike Targets In Summer Talks

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers probably will pick Ford Motor Co. or General Motors Corp. as its strike target during contract talks with the auto industry this summer, UAW officials are hinting.

"I think Ford is ripe for being the target," union Vice President Ken Bannan said Tuesday at a UAW-Ford Council meeting, where 250 delegates are polishing contract proposals for presentation to the No. 2 auto maker in mid-July.

But UAW President Leonard Woodcock, asked if he agreed Ford should be the target, said he could "make several good arguments" for picking industry giant GM.

"We won't make a decision until August," he added.

Union officials previously have singled out GM and Ford as logical targets this year because of their expected strong recovery from a two-year industry recession.

The officials have said Chrysler Corp., the target in 1972, may be too weak this year as a result of losses totaling more than $300 million during 1971 and 1972. However, Woodcock said Tuesday he could not rule out Chrysler as a target because the No. 3 auto maker "is the most vulnerable in the industry."

Because of its recent sales slump, he said it is highly unlikely American Motors Corp., smallest of the auto makers, would be selected as the target.

Current three-year contracts covering some 725,000 hourly auto workers expire Sept. 14. Talks open at each of the companies during the week of July 18.

Woodcock also attacked warnings from GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy that the union should not seek a settlement that exceeds in cost any gains in productivity by the industry.

"But they won't tell us what their productivity is," Woodcock said. "They know what the cost is for a single screw down to three decimal places, but they say they don't know the productivity rate in the industry."

He said the industry is expected to show near-record profits of from $1 billion to $1.2 billion for the first quarter of this year combined with an aggregate loss of $212 million for the same quarter last year.

"This tremendous swing back now has come, while 60,000 of our members are still on layoff with recall rights," he added.

"This can only be explained by one thing — productivity of the work force in the plants."

Final Senate Vote Today On 'Lemon' Payment Bill

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A final vote is slated in the state Senate today on a bill designed to protect auto buyers from having to continue payments on defective cars.

Currently, if a person stops payment on a defective car, the financial institution can repossess the car or take other measures to obtain the money due — such as attachment of bank accounts or garnishment of wages.

The House, meanwhile, approved a bill intended to reduce hazards from abandoned or unoccupied dwellings with Housing Code violations. It went to the Senate on an 89-12 vote.

The bill would permit an auto buyer to defend himself in court if he stopped payment on a "lemon," instead of risking automatic repossession of the car or loss of other property.

The bill would give the consumer a chance to raise as a defense in court the fact the car was defective before suffering such losses. The judge could order a settlement if he agreed.

Under the bill, local agencies would have to seek injunctions to stop uncorrected Housing Code violations in unoccupied dwellings if the public health and safety are endangered. Current law requires this action only for occupied dwellings with dangerous violations of the code.

The bill survived an attempt to weaken it Tuesday as the Senate defeated an attempt to limit the time period during which the buyer could raise such a defense.

The measure, which has passed the House but must return for agreement in minor changes, repeals the state's "holder in due course" doctrine.

The doctrine often forces a car buyer to continue payments on a car which was defective when purchased. That is because the financial contract is held by a bank or other financial institution, not the car dealer.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

IN THE SPRING of 1781, the Spanish governor of Louisiana, Bernardo de Galvez, led a siege on the British-held Fort George at Pensacola, Fla. In a brilliant naval maneuver, Galvez landed 7,000 troops on March 9. On April 28 the Spaniards broke through the outer fortifications and by May 8 they succeeded in dropping a shell on a powder magazine. The explosion killed or disabled 100 of the 900 British defenders and brought the fort's capitulation the next day. The World Almanac notes.

Probers Hit LSD Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence-oriented experiments with the mind-affecting drug LSD violated Pentagon rules "and disregarded moral and ethical standards of conduct governing the use of humans in research," Army investigators say. This judgment is contained in a 259-page report by the Army inspector general's office on its investigation of Army experiments using LSD and other hallucinogenic drugs on soldiers and others, dating back to the mid-1950s. The Army last summer suspended testing of all chemical compounds on human volunteers after disclosure of LSD experiments conducted with 585 officers and enlisted men between 1956 and 1967.

The officials have said Chrysler Corp., the target in 1973, may be too weak this year as a result of losses totaling more than $300 million during 1974 and 1975. However, Woodcock said Tuesday he could not rule out Chrysler as a target because the No. 3 auto maker "is the most vulnerable in the industry."

Because of its recent sales slump, he said it is highly unlikely American Motors Corp., smallest of the auto makers, would be selected as the target. Current three-year contracts covering some 725,000 hourly auto workers expire Sept. 14. Talks open at each of the companies during the week of July 19. Woodcock said the union's strike fund will hold about $175 million by September, enough to support an eight- or nine-week strike against GM, a 16- or 17-week strike against Ford and a 22-week strike against Chrysler. Strike benefits, to be increased $10 a week beginning next month, will provide members with a maximum $50 a week. A 10-week walkout against GM in 1970 cost the union $160 million in strike benefits. Woodcock also attacked warnings from GM Chairman Thomas A. Murphy that the union should not seek a settlement that exceeds in cost any gains in productivity by the industry. "But they won't tell us what their productivity is," Woodcock said. "They know what the cost is for a single screw down to three decimal places, but they say they don't know the productivity rate in the industry." He said the industry is expected to show near-record net profits of from $1 billion to $1.2 billion for the first quarter of this year combined with an aggregate loss of $212 million for the same quarter last year. "This tremendous swing back now has come while 60,000 of our members are still on layoff with recall rights," he added. "This can only be explained by one thing — productivity of the work force in the plants."

Final Senate Vote Today On 'Lemon' Payment Bill

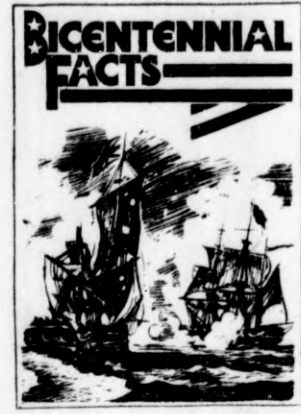

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A final vote is slated in the state Senate today on a bill designed to protect auto buyers from having to continue payments on defective cars. The bill would permit an auto buyer to defend himself in court if he stopped payment on a "lemon," instead of risking automatic repossession of the car or loss of other property. The bill survived an attempt to weaken it Tuesday as the Senate defeated an attempt to limit the time period during which the buyer could raise such a defense.

The measure, which has passed the House but must return for agreement in minor changes, repeals the state's "holder in due course" doctrine. The doctrine often forces a car buyer to continue payments on a car which was defective when purchased. That is because the financial contract is held by a bank or other financial institution, not the car dealer.

Currently, if a person stops payment on a defective car, the financial institution can repossess the car or take other measures to obtain the money due — such as attachment of bank accounts or garnishing of wages. The bill would give the consumer a chance to raise a defense in court the fact the car was defective before suffering such losses. The judge could order a settlement if he agreed. The bill has failed to pass in previous years, and is strongly opposed by auto dealers this time as well. But its supporters were encouraged by the Senate rejecting, 10-7, an attempt to place a 90-day limit on raising a court defense for stopping payments. The sponsor of the amendment, Sen. Hal Ziegler, R-Jackson, said giving buyers unlimited power to stop payments would increase the costs of car buying, limit the availability of credit and hurt low income purchasers. Supporters of the bill, however, said 90 days is sometimes too short a time to determine if a car is a lemon and the ability to stop payments should not be restricted. The House, meanwhile, approved a bill intended to reduce hazards from abandoned or unoccupied dwellings with Housing Code violations. It went to the Senate on an 89-12 vote. Under the bill, local agencies would have to seek injunctions to stop uncorrected Housing Code violations in unoccupied dwellings if the public health and safety are endangered. Current law requires this action only for occupied dwellings with dangerous violations of the code. The House also approved, 64-37, and sent to the Senate a bill to appropriate an extra $99.9 million to the Department of Social Services to help it meet its welfare costs for the rest of the fiscal year.

The United States produces over three billion pounds of peanuts.

Probers Hit LSD Tests
WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence-oriented experiments with the mind-affecting drug LSD violated Pentagon rules "and disregarded moral and ethical standards of conduct governing the use of humans in research," Army investigators say. This judgment is contained in a 259-page report by the Army inspector general's office on its investigation of Army experiments using LSD and other hallucinogenic drugs on soldiers and others, dating back to the mid-1950s. The Army last summer suspended testing of all chemical compounds on human volunteers after disclosure of LSD experiments conducted with 585 officers and enlisted men between 1956 and 1967.

Suburbs Don't Need Force, Mrs. Hills Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carla A. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development, says local communities will see a need to supply low-income housing for the poor outside of city ghettos without the government forcing it on them.

She said in an interview Tuesday that current federal incentives in the form of money for low-income housing and community development projects are adequate to entice suburbs to provide housing for low-income workers who need to follow the jobs in the suburbs. Mrs. Hills' comments came a week after the Supreme Court ruled in a case involving low-income housing in Chicago that a federal court has the authority to order metropolitan-wide public housing programs for Chicago and that HUD could be ordered "to foster projects located in white areas" as a cure for the agency's past complicity in discrimination.

Civil rights advocates have said the significance of the decision will be determined by HUD's willingness to disperse concentrations of low-income and segregated public housing, located mostly in central cities, which have become generally poorer and blacker as people and businesses move to the suburbs.

She said she doesn't know what the district court will do in Chicago or what the full repercussions of the Supreme Court decision will be there, where HUD and the local housing authority are to draw up a new housing plan. But she said as far as the national impact is concerned "I think federal policy has caught up to the spirit of the court decision."

Mrs. Hills says it is indispensable that the suburbs receiving the benefits of the shifts should shoulder the burden of housing the people who are attracted to the relocated businesses.

HUD has two primary programs affecting low-income housing. One involves $3.2 billion spent last year and $3.8 billion earmarked this year for comprehensive community development grants replacing the former categorical grants for model cities, urban redevelopment and other programs.

The community development money generally can be spent as the recipients choose, but there are some strings attached.

Maine Eases Penalties On Prostitution And Pot

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
Associated Press Writer

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Prostitutes in Maine won't have to worry about jail terms after Saturday. Possessing a small amount of marijuana will no longer be a serious crime. But a five-year prison sentence will mean just that — no early release on parole.

A new state Criminal Code, adopted last year and revised this year, takes effect Saturday. It is the first comprehensive rewriting of the criminal statutes since Maine became a state in 1820.

"Most of the controversial provisions of the code pertain to the question of what areas of human behavior should be subjected to criminal law," says state Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Brennan. "We tried to get a lot of junk off the codes to make more time available for police to concentrate on genuine antisocial behavior."

The code includes such stringent provisions as elimination of parole for sentenced prisoners, mandatory life imprisonment for murder under certain circumstances, and mandatory prison terms for repeat burglars and criminals who use firearms.

Homeowners would be allowed to take the life of any criminal intruder, even an unarmed one, who refuses to leave after being warned.

In eliminating indefinite sentences, the code makes Maine unique in the nation. Judges must fix a sentence at a specific number of years or months, not subject to early release on parole. Prisoners can still get some time off for good behavior, however.

"Once a prisoner is released, he's released with no strings attached and no close supervision," said Brennan, who says parole has proven ineffective in Maine.

Among victimless crimes taken off the books are sexual acts between consenting, but unmarried, adults, such as adultery.

Brennan said prostitution is not a major concern of law enforcement officials in this mostly rural state of 1 million. He said he could recall prosecuting only one case in two years of service as county attorney in the area that includes Portland, Maine's largest city.

Under Maine's old laws, prostitutes could be jailed for three years. The new law provides fines of $250 or twice the fee a prostitute receives. Those promoting prostitution or compelling others to become prostitutes can still be jailed, however.

Brennan said the new marijuana laws may have more effect. "I suspect there's going to be more marijuana around," he said.

But Gerald A. Petrucci, who teaches at the University of Maine Law School, wrote in the Maine Law Review that "personal use of marijuana in and of itself — apart from such matters as driving under the influence, consequential loss of employment or the like — is definitionally harmless to persons other than the user."

The code provides fines, but not jail terms or criminal records, for possessing less than one and a half ounces of marijuana. The old law provided fines up to $1,000 and jail terms up to 11 months.

Chicago Bears' Mike Adamle To Ride In Parade

Mike Adamle, running back for the Chicago Bears, will appear in the Blossomtime Grand Floral parade Saturday, May 8, according to Blossomtime, Inc., President Don Young.

Young also announced that Timothy R. Cuthbert of Coloma has been named chairman of the Grand Floral parade judges committee for the third consecutive year.

Adamle also has been invited to attend the celebrities reception Friday, May 7, and the Grand Floral Ball after the parade Saturday, Young said.

The leading career-rusher at Northwestern University, Adamle entered the pros in 1971 as a fifth round draft choice of the Kansas City Chiefs and was traded to the New York Jets in 1973. He went to the Bears in 1975 as a result of a trade that sent Carl Garrett to the Jets. He and his wife, Randi, live in Glencoe, Ill. His father is former Cleveland Browns linebacker Tony Adamle.

Cuthbert, who has worked with the Grand Floral parade judges committee since 1967, is responsible for procuring parade judges who will be objective and impartial. Judges cannot be residents of southwestern Michigan and must have no connection of any kind with anyone participating in the parade, Cuthbert said.

Other duties of Cuthbert and his committee include serving as reception committee and hosts for judges and other Blossomtime dignitaries. Cuthbert, a product manager at Whirlpool's consumer affairs training department, and his wife, Sheryl, live at 6861 Beck road, Coloma.

Years ago a friend said that one does not start reading the obituaries in the paper until he or she is 35 — and quits somewhere in the 50s. Not being a sadist, I have tended to skip the obits. As a consequence my wife and I missed the death of a dear friend, one who has for the past 30-odd years enjoyed our spare time and summer reading.

"Alors," as the French say, "je suis desole": Hercule Poirot (and Dame Agatha Christie, his chronicler) will never again use the "little grey cells" to solve some formidable murder. Quite by accident, we discovered from reading "Curran" (Dodd, Mead & Co.) that the mustachioed Belgian detective has gone to his reward — and eulogues the world over must have breathed a sigh of relief. We probably have 30 of some Agatha's books around the house, and — because of their completely fair intellectual complexity — reread them

Public Shuns Two CBS Specials

NEW YORK (AP) — A CBS dramatization of how Boss Tweed bilked New York City of millions of dollars in the late 1800s didn't hack it last week with viewers. Neither did a CBS study of public TV in America.

The two programs, according to Nielsen Co. audience estimates made public Tuesday, were the least-watched evening shows in the week ending April 5.

The most-watched program was a rerun of CBS' "All in the Family," which, according to Nielsen estimates, was seen in more than 20 million homes.

According to the Nielsen figures, the 19 most popular evening shows last week after "All in the Family" were: "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley" (both ABC); "Phyllis" and "M-A-S-H" (both CBS); "City of Angels" (NBC); "Kojak" and "Maude" (both CBS); "Baretta," "Starsky and Hutch," "Welcome Back, Kotter" and "Wonder Woman" (all ABC); "Judge Horton and the Scottsboro Boys" (NBC); "Sunday Movie," "Barney Miller" and "Friday Movie" (all ABC); "One Day at a Time" and "Sonny and Cher" (both CBS); "Domestic and Marie" (ABC); and "Bob Hope Special" (NBC).

every three or four years. You simply can't remember the endings so that, even if you have seen the movie, you reach the conclusion of "And Then There Were None" wondering who knocked off all those strange characters.

The compelling aspect of Agatha Christie's mystery stories was they played fair. Unlike, say, the Englishman who writes under the name of Michael Innes and can be quite intriguing, you never encounter undecipherable conclusions. You could be baffled by Hercule Poirot, but it was your own fault. When you reached the conclusion, you realized that the clues had been there all the while, and that you, along with the amiable Captain Hastings, simply kept putting 2 and 2 together and getting 22.

Indeed, when a new Christie came out, my wife and I would have a competition. Which of us first identified the Bad Guy? This involved a higher security clearance than membership on the National Security Council because the temptation to spill the beans was almost irresistible. For whatever it is worth — particularly since one is supposed to have second-sight to write political commentary — my wife almost invariably spotted the rascal before I did. But I justify my tendency to miscalculate on the ground that a good detective story, unlike politics, is built on a logical foundation.

Now Agatha Christie/Hercule Poirot are dead. And the classic mystery story has been mongrelized by mating it with Eric Ambler (a master in his own right, but of a different genre). The consequence: One is no longer engaged in a duel of wits with the author. In contrast, the reader now awaits with resignation the arrival of the strange man in the Burberry coat who, with the aid of a micro-dot on a piece of toilet paper, straightens everything out.

Actually the murderer, who has been skiing in Switzerland, and made no prior appearance, did it all with a laser beam aimed from a spacecraft.

All I can say is that, with Hercule Poirot gone, Maigret must live! Otherwise we shall be forced, in addition to rereading Christie annually, to return to the idols of our childhood: A. Conan Doyle ("Sherlock Holmes") and R. Austin Freeman ("Dr. Thorndyke"). It would also help to get wide American distribution for the feats of "Bony," the Australian "Abo" who ranks with the best of the deceased.

Soliah May Be Back In Court

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Steven Soliah, judged innocent in a federal bank robbery trial, may still face charges of harboring his underground lover, Patricia Hearst.

Federal prosecutors in San Francisco refused Tuesday to rule out the possibility that charges of aiding the newspaper heiress would be reinstated against the 27-year-old housepainter.

"There are a number of possibilities," said Asst. U.S. Atty. David Bancroft. "We are evaluating all options and reviewing all evidence which has come to light since Sept. 18."

Soliah, who has said he lived and slept with Miss Hearst during her last days as a fugitive, was charged with harboring her when they were arrested in San Francisco Sept. 18. But that charge was dropped after Soliah was indicted here for allegedly helping steal $15,000 from a Crocker National Bank branch in suburban Carmichael on April 21, 1975.

A customer, Myrna Opsahl, was killed by a shotgun blast fired by one of the robbers. Prosecutors said Soliah was not the triggerman.

A jury of eight women and four men found Soliah innocent in the bank robbery case Tuesday after 5½ hours of deliberation.

"The verdict came moments after state officials said a key witness for Soliah, Emily Toback, might not have been where she said she was on the morning of the robbery."

Soliah said later the jury's decision was the "right thing. I didn't know what to expect, but I'm glad it happened."

During the trial prosecutors produced two eyewitnesses who identified Soliah as one of four bandits who entered the bank shortly after it opened at 9 a.m. They said he ran down the center of the bank, wielding a shotgun.

But Soliah said he was in San Francisco when the robbery took place, and Miss Toback, a San Francisco masseuse, partially supported his story.

Bill Would Require ID Plate On All Cars

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Cars would need special identification under legislation supporters claim will reduce auto thefts, although opponents say the new law only duplicates present safeguards.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Michael Novak, D-Detroit, is up for House debate. Under his bill, motorists would pay a $2 fee for the so called "vehicle identification apparatus" and its first imprinting and $1 for later changes.

The ID plate, placed beneath the hood of a vehicle, would consist of a bracket covered with a special material. It could be embossed with information such as the name and address of an auto's purchaser and seller, a description of the vehicle, its mileage, the lien holder and insuring agency.

The Secretary of State would have a copy of the information stored in a computer. When the vehicle is sold or transferred, the purchaser would have to ask the state to change the identification plate.

After opponents claimed the bill would give one company a state-granted monopoly, Novak withdrew it. Legislative analysis complained the device was similar to the "Instant Vehicle Title Verification System," which is patented and owned by a New York firm.

Novak later offered amendments, which the House approved, allowing a governmental agency or state prison to make the device, possibly at a savings to consumers.

The bill would require that all cars have an ID plate after Jan. 1, 1979. Passage apparently would mean extra work for the Secretary of State's office, as there are about 2.6 million title transfers yearly in Michigan and the ID plate would have to be changed each time a vehicle got a new owner.

Novak insists the device would deter auto theft since "under this system, forgery is impossible."

Michigan State Police are neutral. They say they realize the bill might do some good, but add the advantages of the system over present safeguards would not be worth the cost.

The state already maintains an extensive computer system on the 6.5 million registered motor vehicles in Michigan and critics contend the apparatus would duplicate much of that information.

Also, the Secretary of State's office says the device will duplicate information in identification numbers placed on the car by the manufacturer.

The cost of implementing the bill would be $2.8 million.

Soliah May Be Back In Court

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Steven Soliah, judged innocent in a federal bank robbery trial, may still face charges of harboring his underground lover, Patricia Hearst.

Federal prosecutors in San Francisco refused Tuesday to rule out the possibility that charges of aiding the newspaper heiress would be reinstated against the 27-year-old housepainter.

"There are a number of possibilities," said Asst. U.S. Atty. David Bancroft. "We are evaluating all options and reviewing all evidence which has come to light since Sept. 18."

Soliah, who has said he lived and slept with Miss Hearst during her last days as a fugitive, was charged with harboring her when they were arrested in San Francisco Sept. 18. But that charge was dropped after Soliah was indicted here for allegedly helping steal $15,000 from a Crocker National Bank branch in suburban Carmichael on April 21, 1975.

A customer, Myrna Opsahl, was killed by a shotgun blast fired by one of the robbers. Prosecutors said Soliah was not the triggerman.

A jury of eight women and four men found Soliah innocent in the bank robbery case Tuesday after 6½ hours of deliberation.

The verdict came moments after state officials said a key witness for Soliah, Emily Toback, might not have been where she said she was on the morning of the robbery.

Soliah said later the jury's decision was the "right thing. I didn't know what to expect, but I'm glad it happened."

During the trial prosecutors produced two eyewitnesses who identified Soliah as one of four bandits who entered the bank shortly after it opened at 9 a.m. They said he ran down the center of the bank, wielding a shotgun.

But Soliah said he was in San Francisco when the robbery took place, and Miss Toback, a San Francisco masseuse, partially supported his story.

Pope Paul's Successor Likely Will Be Italian

By ENRICO JACOMINI
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — The 19 new cardinals Pope Paul VI has named reduce the Italian bloc in the Sacred College to only 29 of the 118 eligible to vote for the next Pope. But the general feeling in the Vatican is still that Paul's successor will be an Italian.

"Anything can happen, but nobody here is prepared for a non-Italian pope," said one veteran Vatican journalist. Only three of the 19 cardinals named Tuesday were Italians. The announcement stressed the international character of the Roman Catholic Church and said the Pope's choices were a "significant" selection that made the College of Cardinals "a faithful image of the entire church."

The elevation of the 19 at a consistory on May 24 will bring the total membership in the Sacred College to 138, but 15 of these could not vote in an election for a new pope because they are 80 years old or over.

Pope Paul said he named two other cardinals "in pectore," keeping their identities secret. It is a procedure used in the past for prelates in Communist countries; and they will not sit or vote with the other cardinals until their identities are revealed.

The naming of the first cardinals from the Dominican Republic, Senegal, Uganda and Nigeria gave the Third World countries 47 representatives among the 138 princes of the church. But no one believes that they could ever get together as a solid voting bloc.

This leaves the Italians the largest national group. The United States is second with 12. Then come France and Brazil with seven each and Spain with four.

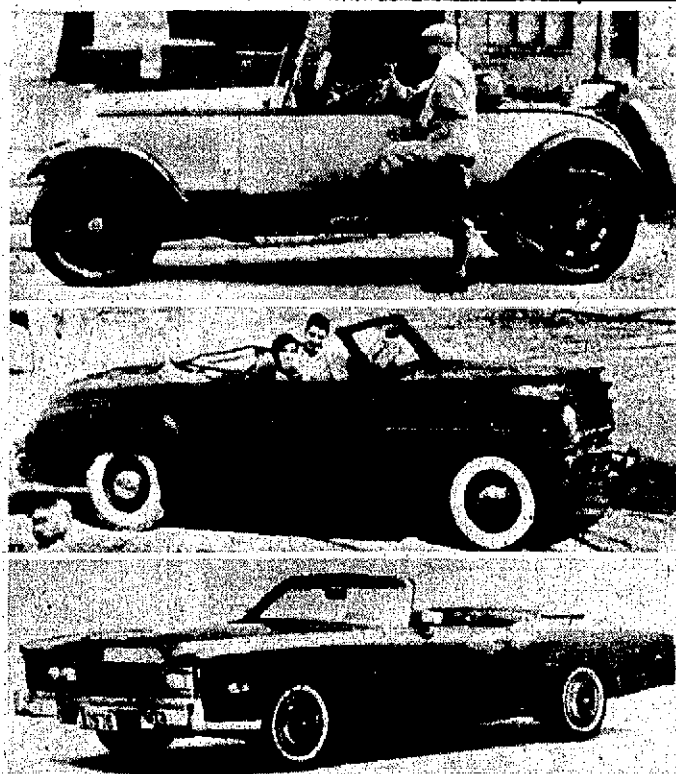

The Italians have the advantage of tradition; the last "foreign" pope was Adrian VI, a Dutchman, who headed the church briefly more than 400 years ago.

The Italian cardinals have another enormous advantage. Most of them are members of the Curia, the church's central administration. They live in Rome, and they are skilled far beyond most of their colleagues in other countries in church politics at the center.

Hartford Area Sewer Plan Hits New Stumbling Block

CASSOPOLIS — A proposed $5.6 million sewer system for Hartford city, Hartford township and a portion of Bangor township ran into a new stumbling block here Tuesday.

The Southwestern Michigan Regional Planning Commission voted to clear the project for further review by federal agencies, but only with the stipulation that all portions of the service area south of I-94 be deleted from the project.

The entire sewer project met with heavy opposition at two public hearings in Hartford township during the past month and Supervisor Donald Drake indicated the board would bow to the will of residents and decline to participate in the project.

Staff planner James Muldoon said the planning commission's action Tuesday was in line with land use studies recommending that the land south of I-94 in the concerned area be part of the proposed sewer system.

The planning commission is the official area review agency for federal grant applications from Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties.

A decision by the Hartford township board on its role in the sewer project is expected at its next regular meeting May 12.

Muldoon said a companion $2.8 million sewer system for Lawrence township included under the same federally-funded wastewater treatment study was cleared with no adverse comments.

The planning commission also gave final clearance to grant applications for five criminal justice programs in the tri-county area. The programs, with total cost in federal, state and local funds, include:

— Berrien county Metro Crime Unit, $240,000 for nine months, third year grant.

— Benton Harbor Crime Prevention Unit, $38,340 for nine months, third year.

— Cass county Metro Unit, $87,500 for 15 months, second year.

— Cass county Drug Enforcement Unit, $62,445 for 15 months, third year.

— Van Buren county Youth Services, $58,800 for 12 months, third year.

Acceptance of third-year grants commits local units to accept.

Third-year grants must be matched equally by local units while first and second-year grants involve only five per cent local funds.

Also approved was an application for FTA insurance on a $2.8 million mortgage for the proposed 158-unit Lake Pines apartment complex at Lake Shore drive and Mulden lane in Lincoln township.

Muldoon said zoning for the project already has been cleared by the township.

A proposed $2.3 million grant application for construction of a sanitary sewer system in the Indian Lake area of Silver Creek township in Cass county was held at the request of the Cass county planning commission until a detailed application of the project is studied.

Also held at the request of the City of Dowagiac was a $60,000 grant application for acquisition of a wildlife area that the city hopes to purchase. The request was held until purchase agreements can be worked out.

facilities in Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties by the Southwestern Michigan Health Services Association.

In other action Tuesday, the planning commission:

— Submitted a formal application for a $103,500 grant from the Environmental Protection Agency for an in-depth study of water management control in the tri-county area authorized by the commission last month.

— Submitted a proposal to the Michigan Department of Social Services for a one-year pilot study of existing human service programs and facilities in the area.

— Approved a study of transportation in the three-county area that will be funded by an $18,000 state grant.

— Received a report from local assistance planner David Hoffman that land use plans and zoning ordinances have been completed for Bainbridge, Chikaming and Watervliet townships in Berrien county and Keweenaw township in Van Buren county, to various state and federal agencies involved.

Former Commissioner Runs Again In Cass

DOWAGIAC — Dean Bussler, who served from 1971 to 1974 as District Three commissioner on the Cass county board, announced today he will run again this year for the commission seat. Bussler said he will file nominating petitions as a Republican in the Aug. 3 primary.

So far, there are no other announced Republican candidates for the position currently held by Charles Ritter, a Democrat.

Ritter has not yet said whether he will run again.

The Third District covers part of Wayne township and a portion of the city of Dowagiac.

Bussler, 58, lives with his wife, Judy, and two children at 413 Louise avenue, just outside the Dowagiac city limits in Wayne township.

He is a life-long resident of Cass county and a graduate of Dowagiac Union high school. He attended Benton Harbor Community college for two years.

For the past 13 years, he has been employed by Radio Station WDWJ in Dowagiac as sales and sports director.

Bussler did not run for the commission seat in 1974, but he has continued as a member of the county health board.

And here's why.

Milnot does everything canned milk can do, only better, and it sells for less than national brands.

Democrats Nominate Dead Man

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Democrats in the 1st Congressional District here nominated a dead man Tuesday, just as party leaders wanted.

The winner was the district's longtime congressman, William Barrett, who died April 12. His name remained on the ballot because it was too late to remove it.

Barrett's victory by a 3-1 margin over Robert G. Allman, an attorney, means the Democratic organization can choose a candidate to run for the seat in November.

Who Can Stop Jimmy Carter?

vania vote read:
Carter 481,871 or 37 per cent.
Jackson 321,350 or 25 per cent.
Udall 245,306 or 19 per cent.
Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace 146,512 or 11 per cent.
Antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack had 3 per cent. So did Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who quit the presidential campaign. Sen. Birch Bayh and former Sen. Fred R. Harris, two more dropouts, had one per cent apiece.
In the delegate competition, the vote counting was slower. Two districts weren't even tallying ballots until Friday. But the partial count showed a surprising pattern in Carter's favor.
With 82 per cent of the precincts counted, would-be delegates committed to Carter led for 68 national convention seats, uncommitted Democrats for 42. Udall was ahead for 24, Shapp for 17, Jackson for 15 and Wallace for 4.
Those figures were sure to change before the count was completed. Nonetheless, they pointed to a Carter upset. In competition Jackson had expected to win. Jackson's labor and party alliances were more important in the complex, crowded delegate competition than in the preferential vote. Nonetheless, Carter was ahead.

There is substantial Humphrey support among the uncommitted delegates, but no one is sure exactly how much. There also is Jackson support there and among the Shapp delegates, but, again, the numbers are not clear. Carter said he thought it would be several weeks before the real preferences of the 178-member Pennsylvania delegation are known.

President Ford won the Republican primary without opposition, since Ronald Reagan skipped Pennsylvania and is making his next stand in Texas on Saturday. Ford, campaigning in Longview, Tex., took a moment to assess the Democratic race and said he thought it pointed to Carter as the nominee. "I don't see how the Democratic smoke-filled rooms in New York can take the nomination away from him," Ford said.

Carter seemed to feel the same way. He called Humphrey a good Democrat who knows that party unity is essential. He also said Democrats would suffer in November if they nominated a candidate who has spurned the primaries, the way Humphrey has. "I think our party might be committing political suicide if we don't let the people's will be expressed at the convention," he said in Newark, N.J., campaigning for a June 8 primary in which the anti-Carter forces already are at work.

There will be campaign newsmen testing Carter next month. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California is running in Maryland and began his national campaign there today. Sen. Frank Church of Idaho will face Carter in Nebraska on May 11. Their arrival may change the pattern, may cause Carter problems. But as matters stand now Humphrey appears to be the one Democrat in a position to head off Carter, and the odds seem to be mounting against him.

Humphrey is positioning himself to enter the race after the primaries. If there is still a chance for a late-running entry. There may be, but Carter's Pennsylvania victory made it less likely. Said Humphrey, "I want to see the Democratic party win. If Jimmy Carter can win, I'm not going to try and stop him at all."
"We've just completed the first phase of the presidential campaign of 1976 in Pennsylvania by wiping out every possible obstacle," Carter told his supporters. Their cheers drowned out the rest of the sentence. He said his goal is to emerge from the primaries on June 8 with at least 1,000 of the 1,500 delegates needed to win nomination. Carter said he will leave Pennsylvania with a total of more than 400 delegate commitments.

The Associated Press count of delegate commitments puts his total at 289, not counting the seats for which he leads in Pennsylvania.

structural damage from explosions of magnesium and acetylene tanks that sent firemen and onlookers scurrying several times.

Du-Wel also has plants in Dowagiac, Hartford, and South Haven. The firm's administrative offices are located in another building, several miles away, on M-43, west of Bangor.

The Bangor plant, which manufactures zinc die casts for the automotive and appliance industries, is the largest of the company's facilities with 175 hourly and 40 salaried employees.

No production could be conducted at the plant today, and company officials said it would take three to four days to determine a course of action.

High School Lunch Now 'Beer Break'?

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The practice of Michigan high school students quaffing beer during their lunch hour instead of milk or soft drinks has some educational groups wanting to restore 21 as the legal drinking age.

"The kids who have an open lunch hour are coming back somewhat inebriated," said Dr. Clyde Gehring of Alma, chairman of the Michigan PTA's alcohol project. "Older kids are buying for young kids."

The PTA is expected to adopt a resolution backing an increase in the legal drinking age from 18 to 21 at its convention next weekend in Marquette.

The Michigan Association of School Boards and the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals say they have noted an increasing number of students washing their lunches down with beer.

Dr. Norman Weinheimer, executive director of the school board association, said the problem appears to be state wide.

"The older kids go out and get a six-pack and then it's free for all who want to get in on the party. It's causing a certain amount of rowdiness."

Eighteen-year-olds go out and buy it and bring it back to school, feeding the young kids. There have been some disruptions," said J. Hayes, administrative secretary for the principals' group. "We favor raising the age to 19."

State Liquor Control Commission officials say the current 18-year-old limit has not been especially troublesome but they are beginning to have misgivings.

"The biggest problem we've had is 18-year-olds having a beer at noon," said Richard Nowell, commission business manager. "That's the only thing we don't like about it."

Two bills introduced by Rep. Melvin deStigter, R-Allendale, to raise the age from 18 to 21 are pending before a House committee. Committee Chairman Stephen Stoenykowski, D-Detroit, said he favors raising the age limit but doubts the legislature will go along. He suggests putting the issue to a public vote.

LESS ACCENT

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — German-born Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger felt self-conscious about his accent when he met Kenyan President Jomo Kenyatta at the start of Kissinger's African tour. Kissinger told reporters that he had met a foreign president "who speaks English with less of an accent than I do."

KING GAINS IN POLL

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A private opinion poll says Spain's new ruler, King Juan Carlos, has gained slightly in popularity since taking power five months ago and has the support of nearly two-thirds of his subjects.

Court Says Ruling Violated Equal Rights

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Revoking probation for a man who failed to meet required payments violated the man's equal protection rights, the state appeals court ruled today.

The court made the ruling on an appeal filed by James Patrick Terminelli, whose probation was revoked after he failed to pay $400 in court costs. The payment was a condition of Terminelli's probation after he pleaded guilty to breaking and entering.

Terminelli argued that revoking an indigent person's probation for failing to meet costs that are a condition of that probation violates equal protection.

He also argued the revocation was improper because he was not permitted to demonstrate his inability to pay. The appeals court agreed with both arguments in reversing the ruling by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge James Thorburn.

Man, Woman Accused Of Having Pot

BERRIEN SPRINGS — A St. Joseph woman and an Eau Claire man were arrested on charges of possession of marijuana here early this morning.

Arrested after the auto they were in was stopped in an alley between US-31 and Main street about 1:35 a.m. today were Richard Rybicki, 20, 4720 Union street, Eau Claire, identified by police as the driver of the auto, and Janice Vanderaue, 21, of 2102 Washington avenue, St. Joseph.

Police said a suspected marijuana cigarette was in the ashtray of the auto and two small bags containing suspected marijuana were found in a woman's purse. Two other men in the auto were not charged, police said.

Gunshot Victim Is 'Critical'

A 22-year-old man was reported in critical condition today at Memorial hospital with what state police of the Benton Harbor post said was a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Trooper James Delgado said he was called to the home of James Burreson, route 1, US-31-33, Berrien Springs, at 4:40 p.m. yesterday. Delgado said he found Burreson wounded by a gunshot. Delgado said the weapon, apparently was a .44 Magnum cap and bolt pistol, a replica of an old style handgun.

Delgado said Burreson's wife reported he had been despondent.

High School Lunch Now 'Beer Break'?

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The practice of Michigan high school students quaffing beer during their lunch hour instead of milk or soft drinks has some educational groups wanting to restore 21 as the legal drinking age.

"The kids who have an open lunch hour are coming back somewhat inebriated," said Dr. Clyde Gehring of Alma, chairman of the Michigan PTA's alcohol project. "Older kids are buying for young kids."

The PTA is expected to adopt a resolution backing an increase in the legal drinking age from 18 to 21 at its convention next weekend in Marquette.

The Michigan Association of School Boards and the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals say they have noted an increasing number of students washing their lunches down with beer.

Dr. Norman Weinheimer, executive director of the school board association, said the problem appears to be state wide.

"The older kids go out and get a six-pack and then it's free for all who want to get in on the party. It's causing a certain amount of rowdiness."

Eighteen-year-olds go out and buy it and bring it back to school, feeding the young kids. There have been some disruptions," said Ila Hayes, administrative secretary for the principals' group. "We favor raising the age to 19."

had is 18-year-olds having a beer at noon," said Richard Newell, commission business manager. "That's the only thing we don't like about it."

Cabbie's Honesty Pays!

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Washington cab driver is $400 richer today after retrieving an attache case for Dolly Cole, wife of former General Motors Corp. president Edward N. Cole.

Mrs. Cole, 45, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., forgot the case when she left a taxi at the Sheraton Park Hotel after a trip from National Airport Tuesday evening.

Several hours later, cabbie William Taylor of Washington noticed the case and turned it over to a District of Columbia Metropolitan Police substation in Southeast Washington.

Mrs. Cole had filed a report with a downtown police station about her missing case, which contained about $800 in cash, $1,000 in traveler's checks, credit cards and jewelry valued at $48,000, police said.

After she was reunited with her missing bag, the woman peeled off $400 and handed it to Taylor as a reward, adding her husband would be in touch with him today about "a more suitable reward," police said.

Sheriff Seeking His 5th Term In Van Buren

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Van Buren Sheriff Richard E. Stump today formally announced that he will seek re-election to a fifth term. Stump joined the sheriff's department in 1936, was appointed undersheriff in 1968, and won election as sheriff in 1972.

Other previously announced candidates for sheriff in the Aug. 3 Republican primary are Norman G. Rushing and Duane (Duke) Rumsey, both of Paw Paw. James McCaw of Lawrence is the only announced Democratic candidate.

Stump, 51, said he believed he has given the citizens of the county firm, fair, efficient, and experienced law enforcement. He added that he would continue to strive for a more efficient and professional department, expanding programs and divisions if funds became available, but at the same time being mindful of how the taxpayers' money is spent.

Stump, in addition to his duties as sheriff, was appointed county director of emergency preparedness by Van Buren commissioners in 1973. He served in the Navy during World War II and is a former state police trooper.

Stump for the past four years has served on the board of directors of the Michigan Sheriff's association, is a member of the National Sheriff's association, Fraternal Order of Police, and the advisory board of the Ambulance Licensing Division of the state health department.

He is also a member of the Elks club, Southwestern

Paw Paw Rejects School Bond Issue

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A $345,000 school bond issue was rejected by Paw Paw voters by better than a two to one margin in a special election yesterday. According to unofficial totals, the proposition, which would have levied three mills for three or four years, was defeated by a vote of 612 to 219. The bond issue, had it been approved, would have been used to pay for three new buildings, the remodeling of another, and a new high school outdoor track. Included in the program was the remodeling of the present school bus garage into three classrooms for use by students in grades 6-8; the building of a new administration building; a 4,000 square foot bus garage; and a 50 by 150 foot warehouse and maintenance building.

Report Delayed In Van Buren

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Faced with a state imposed deadline of May 3 for adoption of the 1976 county equalization report, Van Buren commissioners last night scheduled a special meeting for Monday night to act on the report.

The report, which is critical because it sets the value of land on which property taxes are based, had been scheduled to be adopted last night.

But Commissioner Donald Hanson said it was not completed because officials in Antwerp township are still trying to modify equalization figures based on a state sales study which they feel put property values unfairly high.

Atty. Harold Schuitmaker, who represents Antwerp, said last night township officials have gone back and conducted their own sales studies. In one instance, a piece of land appraised at $42,100 by the state was sold for only $21,750, he said.

Schuitmaker said the township hopes to work out a modification of the figures with the state tax commission in order to avoid having to file an appeal.

In other areas, Dick Ruse, project coordinator for the Berrien, Cass, and Van Buren County Resource Conservation and Development (RCD) district, presented a slide presentation on his group's activities in such areas as erosion control, soil conservation, and park development.

Hanson said some of the RCD projects under consideration in Van Buren county include drainage work at several South Haven schools, sand erosion control at the Covert township park, erosion control along county roads, and work on the Bloomingdale park.

Patricia Olsen, county library director, told commissioners in her annual report that circulation was up in 1975 by 16.6 percent over the previous year.

She also noted that a library program is underway at the county jail, and that all branch libraries will soon have an information card system listing human services and referral agencies in a 10-county area.

Commissioners also decided to have the county social services board attend the May 11 commission meeting to discuss crowding at the social services office, and the county public works board to attend the May 28 meeting to outline progress on a master solid waste program.

Lawrence Chief Still Fired, Council Says

LAWRENCE — After meeting in executive session last night, the Lawrence village council issued a statement saying it would not change its March 3 decision to fire former police chief Ruseo Earls.

The council met to consider petitions with 154 signatures (134 of which were registered village voters) to it earlier this month asking that Earls be reinstated as police chief. The village has 300 registered voters.

In firing Earls, the council in March said the former police chief, who is 57, lacked interest and motivation and did not cooperate with the council.

The petitions presented on Earls' behalf said the former chief had done a good job in the 18 years he served as chief and that the chief be reinstated.

Earls' wife, Francine, said earlier this month that if the council refused to reinstate her husband after it received the petitions she would press for a recall election.

The complete text of the council's statement follows:

"The Lawrence village council met in executive session on April 27 to discuss petitions that were submitted at the regular April 13 board meeting relative to the reinstatement of Ruseo Earls as police chief of the village.

"The board also discussed for a period of time the amount of support for the council's action and Earls' dismissal, as well as the support for Earls.

"In the final conclusion the council still felt unanimous on the action taken.

"It is felt that cooperation, enthusiasm, attitude and progress made with the present police department to date has been tremendous and that in general the citizens' response has been complimentary.

"The council would like to ask all the village residents for their support in this action, full knowing that there are always two sides to any issue, but that the council is still the governing body that must make the decisions.

"They would also like to thank the community for the interest both positive and negative that was shown on this particular issue."

Questions should be submitted to Mrs. Barbara Robinson, coordinator, Box 177, Coloma. ## Buchanan Mayor Seeking Berrien 11th District Post

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

BUCHANAN — Buchanan Mayor Joseph Garbert II announced here yesterday that he would seek the Republican nomination for the 11th District, Berrien county board of commissioners just in the August primary. Garbert, 28, is the only announced GOP candidate for the post, being vacated by Frank Poorman of Buchanan. Poorman announced earlier this month he would not seek re-election in November.

Garbert said his candidacy has the support of a majority of Buchanan city commissioners and members of the Bertrand and Buchanan township boards. Officials on hand for the announcement included Buchanan city commissioners Gene Wendor and Mildred Anderson; Brayton Yaw, Bertrand township supervisor, and Kenneth Glines, Buchanan township supervisor.

Elected to the city commission as a write-in candidate in 1973, Garbert said he would not seek re-election to the city commission in November. He was named mayor by the commission in March when former Mayor Joseph Bachman resigned. A bachelor, Garbert also said he would not seek reappointment to the Southwest Michigan Community Ambulance Service board when his term expires in May. Garbert is currently chairman of the board.

Garbert said the main issue of his campaign would be the reduction of an "ever-increasing tax burden." He defended a recommended increase in the millage levied in the city, from 12½ mills this year to 14 mills next year, by saying that 13 mills were levied in Buchanan when he took office in 1973.

Garbert is manager of the Sedon Furniture company in Buchanan, owned by his father,

Road Repair Completed In Michiana

MICHIANA — Village workers here have made repairs in two small sections of Lakosho drive damaged by heavy rains over the weekend.

Forest McCance, maintenance superintendent for the village, said that temporary repairs to two small sections of the road, washed out by heavy rains, have been completed.

McCance said the rains, and not the action of Lake Michigan, caused the damage to the road.

"They (the state Civil Rights commission) should look at the facts as they were then."

"I think it does show a good faith effort on the part of the sheriff though," he added.

Last week Stump hired William Robinson, 67, a former Covert police chief, as the department's first black deputy. Stump said Robinson, who has some 16 years of law enforcement experience, came highly recommended by past employers. Stump said Robinson would perform the same duties as any deputy, but that initially he was being started out as a turnkey in the jail, as would any new deputy.

On Jan. 28 Willis appeared before the state Civil Rights commission to appeal a decision in a suit brought against the sheriff's department on behalf of Allen Mingo, 25, Covert. Mingo claimed in the suit that he was denied a job with the sheriff's department in 1972 because he was black.

Following a hearing last May, Charles Waugh, a Civil Rights commission hearing officer from Muskegon, recommended that Mingo be hired and he compensated for all wages and benefits he would have received had he been given the job.

Willis indicated that he had expected a decision on the appeal from the Civil Rights commission by now, but has not heard anything. He said the commission may uphold the recommendations, modify them, or find that they have no merit at all.

The prosecutor said if the commission rules in favor of Mingo he will appeal to Van Buren circuit court.

Willis said he has maintained through the proceedings that the only reason Mingo was not hired was because he was not qualified for the position. He noted that during the original hearing, Stump testified that he had offered both Robinson and another black officer, the late Michael McAllister of the South Haven police, jobs. Both Robinson and McAllister testified at the time that they turned the jobs down because of the extra travel time involved. McAllister was slain Jan. 8 by a gunman just north of the South Haven city limits.

Presentence 'Aide' Faces 'Pot' Charge

A woman who coaches presentence investigations of defendants for the Berrien Fifth District court probation office pleaded innocent Tuesday in court to a charge of possession of marijuana. Pled on $1,000 personal recognizance bond was Carolyn P. Biherrill, 20, of 108 First street, Berrien Springs. She has been suspended from her part-time job, without pay, since her arrest, April 13, according to Lee F. Audle, interim administrator of District court.

She and Charles M. Sims, 24, of 1060 Union, Benton township, were arrested in Berrien Springs. On April 14 Sims pleaded guilty to use of marijuana and was sentenced to fine and costs of $50 and one year probation, court records show. Carolyn Biherrill was referred to the county's deferred prosecution program.

Noel Noggle, head of the program, said the woman decided not to join the program and instead chose to go to trial.

BUCHANAN — Buchanan Mayor Joseph Garbert II announced here yesterday that he would seek the Republican nomination for the 11th District Berrien county board of commissioners post in the August primary. Garbert, 28, is the only announced GOP candidate for the post being vacated by Frank Poorman of Buchanan. Poorman announced earlier this month he would not seek re-election in November.

Hiring Black Seen Having No Impact On Bias Suit

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — The hiring of the Van Buren sheriff's department's first black deputy is expected to have very little if any effect on a discrimination suit now pending against the department, according to Prosecutor Frank D. Willis.

"It should not as a practical matter have any effect," said Willis, who represents Sheriff Richard E. Stump in the suit.

"They (the state Civil Rights commission) should look at the facts as they were then."

"I think it does show a good faith effort on the part of the sheriff though," he added.

Last week Stump hired William Robinson, 67, a former Covert police chief, as the department's first black deputy. Stump said Robinson, who has some 16 years of law enforcement experience, came highly recommended by past employers. Stump said Robinson would perform the same duties as any deputy, but that initially he was being started out as a turnkey in the jail, as would any new deputy.

On Jan. 28 Willis appeared before the state Civil Rights commission to appeal a decision in a suit brought against the sheriff's department on behalf of Allen Mingo, 25, Covert.

Mingo claimed in the suit that he was denied a job with the sheriff's department in 1972 because he was black.

Following a hearing last May, Charles Waugh, a Civil Rights commission hearing officer from Muskegon, recommended that Mingo be hired and be compensated for all wages and benefits he would have received had he been given the job.

Willis indicated that he had expected a decision on the appeal from the Civil Rights commission by now, but has not heard anything. He said the commission may uphold the recommendations, modify them, or find that they have no merit at all.

The prosecutor said if the commission rules in favor of Mingo he will appeal to Van Buren circuit court.

Willis said he has maintained through the proceedings that the only reason Mingo was not

hired was because he was not qualified for the position. He noted that during the original hearing, Stump testified that he had offered both Robinson and another black officer, the late Michael McAllister of the South Haven police, jobs. Both Robinson and McAllister testified at the time that they turned the jobs down because of the extra travel time involved. McAllister was slain Jan. 8 by a gunman just north of the South Haven city limits.

Road Repair Completed In Michiana

MICHIANA — Village workers here have made repairs to two small sections of Lakeshore drive damaged by heavy rains over the weekend.

Forest McCance, maintenance superintendent for the village, said that temporary repairs to two small sections of the road, washed out by heavy rains, have been completed.

McCance said the rains, and not the action of Lake Michigan, caused the damage to the road.

Presentence 'Aide' Faces 'Pot' Charge

A woman who conducts presentence investigations of defendants for the Berrien Fifth District court probation office pleaded innocent Tuesday in court to a charge of possession of marijuana. Freed on $1,000 personal recognizance bond was Carolyn P. Fothergill, 20, of 108 First street, Berrien Springs. She has been suspended from her part-time job, without pay, since her arrest April 13, according to Lee F. Auble, interim administrator of District court.

She and Charles M. Sims, 24, of 1969 Union, Benton township, were arrested in Berrien Springs. On April 14 Sims pleaded guilty to use of marijuana and was sentenced to fine and costs of $50 and one year probation, court records show. Carolyn Fothergill was referred to the county's deferred prosecution program.

Noel Noggle, head of the program, said the woman decided not to join the program and instead chose to go to trial.

Tiger Rookie Shines

Thompson Rips Four Hits In Rout Of A's

DETROIT (AP) — A man named Jason came out of the West.

He was tall and strong. He swung a big club.

He was a stranger in a new land.

Who would know what he would be like? Who would know if he deserved to be among those who had much more experience and bore the title of major league baseball players?

But Ralph Houk knew. The Detroit Tiger manager just knew this blond, youthful Viking of a man belonged and would succeed quickly.

Tuesday rookie Jason Thompson helped indicate Houk didn't err, ripping four consecutive line-drive singles and driving in two runs to help the Tigers crush the Oakland Athletics, 10-2.

Rusty Staub frosted the triumph with a grand slam home run in the eighth inning off ace reliever Rollie Fingers, dooming Vida Blue to his third straight loss in a 1-3 record.

"This is the only one he didn't have something extra on the ball," Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner said.

Joe Coleman, meanwhile, raised his mark to 2-0 with the help of 2 2-3 no-hit relief innings from Bill Laxton, in his first Tiger game.

It was the 21-year-old Thompson's third straight start at first base since the Tigers purchased the left-handed hitter from their Triple-A farm club at Evansville of the American Association last week.

Houk said from the start that the 6-foot-4, 200-pounder from Apple Valley, Calif., would replace Dan Meyer as the regular first baseman.

"Some people you just know have gotta play," Houk said. "If you'd seen him at Dunedin (of the Florida Instructional League) you'd say, 'Now this is a ballplayer!'"

Houk said Thompson, drafted No. 4 last June out of California State University-Northridge, has matured quickly. Then he lumped his name in with the game's greats who also came on strong early.

"The Mantles. Murcers, Berras, Kalines — they matured quick," Houk said. "... He (Thompson) looks like he's for real!"

Thompson, the No. 5 batter, has six hits in three games.

"He walked into spring training camp and acted like a major league ballplayer," Houk said. "So you say, 'Why can't he do it?'"

Thompson said: "I didn't have to worry about doing too well right off because if I didn't, Ralph would know it was from nerves or something.... I really get nervous out there before a game, but once we get started, I calm down."

Detroit tagged Blue for five runs in three official innings.

Thompson singled in runs in the first and fourth. Gary Sutherland doubled in one in the second and another scored when Alex Johnson's single bounced past Claudell Washington for an error.

A fielder's choice grounder by Tom Veryzer scored a run in the third and a bases-loaded walk to Willie Horton sent in another run before Staub's seventh career grand slam in the eighth.

Sal Bando doubled in an A's run in the sixth, and Cesar Tovar singled in the other in the seventh.

In another American league game Tuesday, Brooks Robinson and Mark Belanger, a pair of "good-field, no-hit" ballplayers, drove the California Angels batty.

First the anemic Robinson broke up Nolan Ryan's bid for a no-hitter and then the lighthitting Belanger broke up the ballgame — and the result was a 3-2, 10-inning victory for the Baltimore Orioles.

"I don't have many gamewinning hits," said Belanger, whose bases-loaded single in the 10th knocked in the winning run. "In ten years, I've had two, maybe one."

The game-winning hit came off an "up and in hummer" from reliever Dick Drago.

"He struck me out on a ball up there last time and I was looking for something inside," said Belanger, a .257 hitter this season. "I got it and the ball landed where nobody was."

Robinson, also known more for his glove than his bat, got the first hit of the game off the hard-throwing Ryan — a oneout, run-scoring triple in the seventh inning. Robinson was batting .116 at game time.

Ryan, who has thrown four no-hitters in his career, had struck out 11 batters and walked eight before giving up Robinson's bloop triple into the left field corner that cut the California lead to 2-1.

"I never gave a no-hitter a thought, the way I was throwing," said Ryan. "I was consistently behind the hitters and walking a lot of them. I didn't have the kind of stuff to throw a no-hitter."

In the other AL games, the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Minnesota Twins 7-5 and the New York Yankees nipped the Texas Rangers 1-0. Rain and cold weather wiped out the Milwaukee-Chicago and Boston-Kansas City games.

A pair of solo home runs by George Hendrick, his first homers of the season, and a strong relief performance by Jackie Brown sparked Cleveland past Minnesota.

Brown, 1-0, came on in the fourth inning and pitched out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam. He struck out five while holding the Twins scoreless for 3 2-3 innings before being removed in favor of Dave LaRoche in the eighth.

New York's Oscar Gamble slashed a run-scoring single to center in the top of the ninth inning to snap a tight pitching duel and the Yankees celebrated Manager Billy Martin's return to Texas with a victory over the Rangers. Dock Ellis, 2-0, handcuffed the Rangers with four hits before needing last-out relief help from Sparky Lyle. Gaylord Perry, 2-2, was the hard-luck loser for the Rangers.

Friends, Relatives Bet Against Underdog Young

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — "Even my relatives are betting against me," says Jimmy Young.

The 27-year-old Philadelphia can do nothing about being an underdog against heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali Friday night — "My friends are not too confident" — but he intends to do something about the label: "just another opponent."

"The world is full of surprises," said Young, who did not work out Tuesday and killed time by watching television in his hotel room.

Ali also stayed out of the gym Tuesday, going to Washington to appear on Voice of America radio and entertaining a blushing Susan Ford at his hotel.

"If you knew Susan, the way I know Susan," Ali crooned as the face of the daughter of the President of the United States reddened. He then put his arm around Miss Ford's shoulders as someone shouted: "There goes the Southern vote."

"I hope the President doesn't lose the election now," said Ali. "He should be training."

Young said, when told Ali was not working out. "If he realized what I have in store for him, he'd train."

The fight is worth $85,000 to Young, who five years ago earned some money by fighting three three-round exhibitions with Ali. His biggest previous purse was $7,500, which he got for fighting Joe "King" Roman in Puerto Rico the night in February that Ali knocked out Jean-Pierre Coopman in five rounds.

Ali has said he was not impressed with the performance of Young, who scored a one-sided decision.

"It wasn't my best fight," said Young. "I hope he's not judging that fight with this fight."

Young turned pro in 1969 but has had only had 23 fights. His record is 17-4-2, with only five knockouts. He has been knocked out once, in one round by Earnie Shavers on Feb. 19, 1973. Since then he is unbeaten in 11 fights, including a 10-round draw with Shavers.

The fight that started Young on the road to a title shot came Feb. 11, 1975, when he outpointed Ron Lyle. That fight knocked Lyle out of a title shot, but he got another chance and was stopped in 11 rounds by Ali.

Foreman, Frazier Set Million Dollar Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — The numbers game was taken care of quickly. For 12 rounds of boxing on June 15, George Foreman and Joe Frazier would receive $1 million plus a percentage of the gate from tickets that will range from $25 to $200 and from the money taken in at 307 closed circuit locations across North America and the United Kingdom.

But Foreman and Frazier didn't talk about the money Tuesday, these two former heavyweight champions who face a comeback trail that often proves too long. They talked about what happened the time they met in 1973, when Foreman knocked Frazier down six times in two rounds at Kingston, Jamaica and won the crown Frazier had worn for three years.

"Then George gave my title away without giving me a chance to win it back," said the serious Frazier, a tinge of remorse coloring his voice. "I gave George a shot at the title, and I felt he should have given me a shot back. I thought it was wrong when he didn't. I didn't bypass anybody, so why did he?"

There is no title at stake now, just the hope that victory would earn another — and possibly last chance — to win the crown back.

"There's a lot at stake in a lot of ways," added Foreman, looking trim in a brown tuxedo. "Right now I'm trying to recapture something: the title of the world."

ONE DOWN ONE TO GO: Derrel Thomas (30) of the Giants is forced at second on a double play in the fifth inning Tuesday night by Cards shortstop Don Kessinger. # Canadiens Edge Islanders

Bruins Snap Flyer Streak

From Associated Press

It had been a long time since the Montreal Canadiens had played the New York Islanders — 59 games and five months to be exact. But it didn't seem to matter, as the two closely-matched National Hockey League teams picked up where they left off Nov. 30 and played a tooth-and-nail semifinal playoff game with the Canadiens winning 3-2 Tuesday night.

It had been a long time since the Philadelphia Flyers had lost at home — 25 games and four months to be exact. But it didn't seem to matter to the Boston Bruins, the last team to beat the defending Stanley Cup champion in their Spectrum home last Dec. 28. Boston turned the trick again Tuesday night, upending the Flyers 4-2 in their semifinal opener.

In the World Hockey Association, Indianapolis tripped New England 5-3 to tie their best-of-seven United States semifinal series at three victories apiece, and San Diego ended Houston's 13-game playoff winning streak with a 3-2 triumph over the Aeros in the other U.S. semifinal.

Indeed, it had been a long time since the Canadiens played anybody — having drawn a bye into the playoff quarter-finals, then sweeping past the Chicago Black Hawks in four games, then waiting nine days to see who they'd play next.

Despite some obvious rustiness, the Canadiens proved too much for the Islanders, rallying twice from one-goal deficits to score a 3-2 triumph in the series opener on goals just 1:40 apart by Larry Robinson and Yvan Cournoyer late in the third period. New York defensive star Denis Potvin set up both Islanders goals, which were scored by Ed Westfall and Bill MacMillan.

Having lost at home, the Flyers face another problem with streaks against Boston — namely, the series shifts there after Thursday's second game in Philadelphia. The Flyers have won there only twice since they entered the league in 1967 — once in playoffs — and have absorbed 18 losses and four ties in Boston Garden in the last 22 games.

That didn't seem to matter much to the Bruins, who got goals from two of their poorest marksmen — defenseman Gary Doak and Dallas Smith — along with Ken Hodge and Gregg Sheppard.

"It doesn't mean the series is over," said Boston defenseman Brad Park. "They're a great club. They will come back with fire in their eyes."

Orest Kindrachuk and Reg Leach scored for the Flyers.

Goals by Renald Leclerc and Dave Keon late in the second period brought Indianapolis into position to make WHA history. No WHA team ever has come back from a 1-3 deficit in games to win a playoff series, but the Racers can accomplish the feat by winning Game Seven Thursday night at Indianapolis.

Rookie center Bob Dobek broke a 1-1 tie with his first goal of the playoffs to lead San Diego's victory over Houston and keep the Mariners' playoff hopes alive.

The triumph cut the Aeros' series lead to 3-1 and ended the longest playoff winning streak in pro hockey history at 13 games.

Heart Surgery For Bo?

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — University of Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler says he'll decide soon whether to undergo heart surgery.

Schembechler said Tuesday that tests indicate occlusions in the coronary arteries of his heart. He said he will decide in the next few weeks whether or not to undergo surgery to alleviate the condition with a bypass.

"I've got no problems, other than there are some occlusions in the coronary arteries," said Schembechler. "So the question is, do you treat them or do you increase the flow of blood by doing a by-pass?"

"It's a decision ... not something you have to do, I'm not faced with a critical situation," Schembechler suffered a mild heart attack on the eve of the 1970 Rose Bowl game.

A by-pass is a fairly common surgical procedure in which a valve is inserted to avoid an occlusion.

Mustangs, Comets, Eddies Win Donley Sparks No. 1 Bucks

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer

Buchanan coach Don Hecklinski calls John Donley the "best high school catcher I've ever seen."

Donley justified his coach's praise Tuesday, sparking Buchanan to a thrilling 8-5 Blossomland conference baseball victory over Brandywine at the Bobcat Field.

The 6-4, 185-pound junior was the offensive sparkplug, helping the Bucks raise their league record to 8-0. Everyone else in the league has at least two losses, including Brandywine which fell to 3-2.

In other Blossomland action Tuesday, River Valley downed Cassopolis 7-3, Edwardsburg trimmed Lakeshore 4-1 and Coloma upset Dowagiac 4-3.

"Donley may not have the best arm around, but he has a lot of the other things," Hecklinski said. "He's a very intense competitor and is very consistent as far as making contact."

"He got the key hits so I have to give him all the credit in the world. His home run did more for us than anything else. It added a great deal of confidence in our hitting. He also saved a lot of pitches in the dirt behind the plate."

Donley's home run came with two out in the fourth inning and Buchanan trailing 5-4. It was only the second hit off losing pitcher John Burrow (3-1) at the time, but seemed to put a spark into the Bucks play.

Buchanan then came back with three more runs in the sixth to close the gap to 5-4 and finally pulled the game out in the seventh. Again it was Donley to the rescue.

With one out, Kevin Vanderbush singled and went to second on a passed ball. After Bryan

Virgil bounced out to short, Donley slammed a single between third baseman Greg Gallas and shortstop Pat Grounds to drive in Vanderbush with the tying run. Dan Pinkerton went in to run for Donley and scored the winning run moments later on an error.

Wall Vanderbush went the distance for his fourth Blossomland win without a loss. Vanderbush struggled through the first three innings, allowing five runs, three hits and walking five. But the Buck ace settled down after that and did not allow a hit over the final four frames. Vanderbush fanned 14 to bring his Bud total to 57 in 28 innings.

Leftfielder Mark Bates and Grounds each drove in two runs to help stake Brandywine to the early 5-4 lead before Donley took over.

Jeff Jackson pitched River Valley to its win over Cass. The victory moved the Mustangs to second place in the league with a 4-2 mark, while Cass slipped to 0-6.

River Valley tallied four times in the second frame and added three more in the sixth. Bob Watkins drove in two runs with a pair of singles and Mark Francis added a double and a single.

Lakeshore's Mike Mason yielded just one hit, but still lost a heartbreaker to Edwardsburg. The hit, a sixth-inning single by winning pitcher Dan Correll, did not even figure in the scoring.

The Eddies tallied their only run in the first inning when Correll walked, advanced to second on a throwing error and then to third when Dennis Muck reached on an error. Correll and Muck then engineered a successful double steal with Correll scoring.

Correll fanned four and walked none in helping Edwardsburg even its record at 2-2. Mason struck out 11 and walked just one as Lakeshore fell to 0-5.

Coloma (3-2) tallied all four runs in the third inning in all but ending Dowagiac's title hopes. The Chiefs fell to 4-3 in the league.

Gregg Woodward, who picked up his third win without a loss on the mound, drove in what proved to be the winning run. Woodward fanned eight, as did losing pitcher Harold Prinley.

Rams' Marr Hurls No-Hit Victory Against Comstock

South Haven and Paw Paw both got super-pitching efforts Tuesday afternoon to register easy Wolverine conference baseball victories.

The Rams' Terry Marr hauled a no-hitter as South Haven blanked Comstock 5-0 while the Redskins' Steve Williams fanned 12 in his first varsity start as Paw Paw pounded non-conference foe Maltawan 10-2.

Marr, who almost tossed a perfect game against Three Rivers April 17, struck out six and issued two walks in the masterpiece. The senior lefty is now 2-1 for the year.

"He just did an excellent job out there today," commented

Ram coach Jim McCloughan. "He made them hit the ball up in the air. His curve ball is really starting to break well now."

South Haven scored one in the second on a RBI single by Steve Gaarde and four in the fifth on RBI singles by Dave Decker and Perry Palanen, a RBI by Gaarde and on a passed ball. Gaarde went 2-for-3 with a double, single, two RBIs and a stolen base for the Rams, now 5-2 in the league.

Paw Paw, 2-1 in the hoop, scored four in the sixth frame and five in the seventh. Williams also hit a two-run homer while Rick Kendall went 3-for-5, all singles, and Ron Hushing went 2-for-3 with a homer, single and three RBIs.

Chiefs Nip Comets

DOWAGIAC — Jeff Nale drove in the winning runs with a seventh-inning single as Dowagiac's junior varsity baseball team edged Coloma 5-4.

Nale's hit came after the Chiefs had loaded the bases with two out on a pair of walks and an error. Jim Waalkes was the winning pitcher.

Donley justified his coach's praise Tuesday, sparking Buchanan to a thrilling 6-5 Blossomland conference baseball victory over Brandywine at the Bobcat Field.

The 6-0, 185-pound junior was the offensive sparkplug, helping the Bucks raise their league record to 6-0. Everyone else in the league has at least two losses, including Brandywine which fell to 3-2.

In other Blossomland action Tuesday, River Valley downed Cassopolis 7-3, Edwardsburg trimmed Lakeshore 1-0 and Coloma upset Dowagiac 4-3.

"Donley may not have the best arm around, but he has a lot of the other tangibles," Hecklinski said. "He's a very intense competitor and is very consistent as far as making contact."

"He got the key hits so I have to give him all the credit in the world. His home run did more for us than anything else. It added a great deal of confidence to our hitting. He also saved a lot of pitches in the dirt behind the plate."

Donley's home run came with two out in the fourth inning and Buchanan trailing 5-0. It was only the second hit off losing pitcher Jim Burrow (3-1) at the time, but seemed to put a spark into the Bucks play.

Buchanan then came back with three more runs in the sixth to close the gap to 5-4 and finally pulled the game out in the seventh. Again it was Donley to the rescue.

With one out, Kevin Vanderbush singled and went to second on a passed ball. After Bryan

Virgil bounced out to short, Donley slammed a single between third baseman Greg Gallas and shortstop Pat Grounds to drive in Vanderbush with the tying run. Dan Pinkerton went in to run for Donley and scored the winning run moments later on an error.

Walt Vanderbush went the distance for his fourth Blossomland win without a loss. Vanderbush struggled through the first three innings, allowing five runs, three hits and walking five. But the Bucks ace settled down after that and did not allow a hit over the final four frames. Vanderbush fanned 14 to bring his Bud total to 57 in 28 innings.

Leftfielder Mark Bates and Grounds each drove in two runs to help stake Brandywine to the early 5-0 lead before Donley took over.

Jeff Jackson pitched River Valley to its win over Cass. The victory moved the Mustangs into second place in the league with a 4-2 mark, while Cass slipped to 0-6.

River Valley tallied four times in the second frame and added three more in the sixth. Bob Watkins drove in two runs with a pair of singles and Mark Francis added a double and a single.

Lakeshore's Mike Mason yielded just one hit, but still lost a heartbreaker to Edwardsburg. The hit, a sixth-inning single by winning pitcher Dan Correll, did not even figure in the scoring.

The Eddies tallied their only run in the first inning when Correll walked, advanced to second on a throwing error and then to third when Dennis Mock reached on an error. Correll and Mock then engineered a successful double steal with Correll scoring.

Correll fanned four and walked none in helping Edwardsburg even its record at 2-2. Mason struck out 11 and walked just one as Lakeshore fell to 0-5.

Coloma (3-2) tallied all four runs in the third inning in all but ending Dowagiac's title hopes. The Chieftains fell to 4-3 in the league.

Gregg Woodward, who picked up his third win without a loss on the mound, drove in what proved to be the winning run. Woodward fanned eight, as did losing pitcher Harold Primley.

Rams' Marr Hurls No-Hit Victory Against Comstock

South Haven and Paw Paw both got super pitching efforts Tuesday afternoon to register easy Wolverine conference baseball victories.

The Rams' Terry Marr hurled a no-hitter as South Haven blanked Comstock 5-0 while the Redskins' Steve Williams fanned 12 in his first varsity start as Paw Paw pounded non-conference foe Mattawan 10-2.

Marr, who almost tossed a perfect game against Three Rivers April 17, struck out six and issued two walks in the masterpiece. The senior lefty is now 2-1 for the year.

"He just did an excellent job out there today," commented

Ram coach Jim McCloughan. "He made them hit the ball up in the air. His curve ball is really starting to break well now."

South Haven scored one in the second on a RBI single by Steve Gaarde and four in the fifth on RBI singles by Dave Decker and Perry Palanca, a RBI by Gaarde and on a passed ball. Gaarde went 2-for-3 with a double, single, two RBIs and a stolen base for the Rams, now 5-2 in the league.

Williams, only a sophomore, didn't walk a batter in posting his mound win.

Paw Paw, 3-4 in the loop, scored four in the sixth frame and five in the seventh. Williams also hit a two-run homer while Rick Kendall went 3-for-5, all singles, and Ron Rushing went 2-for-3 with a homer, single and three RBIs.

Chiefs Nip Comets

DOWAGIAC — Jeff Nate drove in the winning runs with a seventh-inning single as Dowagiac's junior varsity baseball team nipped Coloma 5-4.

Nate's hit came after the Chieftain's had loaded the bases with two out on a pair of walks and an error. Jim Waalkes was the winning pitcher.

Trillo Leads Cubs Past Padres, 4-2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Manny Trillo drove in two runs to spark the Chicago Cubs to a 4-2 victory over the San Diego Padres and snap a three-game losing streak Tuesday night.

Along with Trillo, Rick Monday and Jose Cardenal also collected two hits to pace a 10-hit Chicago attack against four hurlers.

Ray Burris, who was 3-0 last year against the Padres, picked up the win. He went 7 1/3 innings before giving way to Oscar Zamora and Buddy Schultz.

Burris allowed only five hits, including a second-inning home run by Hector Torres, who paced the Padres attack with two hits.

Trailing 4-1 after seven innings, the Padres scored in the eighth on a walk to Dave Winfield and singles by Doug Rader and Mike Ivie. Schultz came on to strike out pinch hitter Gene Lucklear and leave the tying runs on base. Schultz then polished off the Padres in the ninth to record his first major league save.

Elsewhere in the National League Tuesday, Lynn McGlothen returned from his suspension and pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Other results saw the Los Angeles Dodgers down the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3, the Cincinnati Reds trim the Philadelphia Phillies 7-3 and the New York Mets nip the Atlanta Braves 6-5.

McGlothen, returning from a five-day suspension for last week's beanball incident with the New York Mets, was nipped for 10 hits but only one run.

His audience included National League President Chub Feeney — the league offices are in San Francisco — who meted out the suspension that delayed McGlothen's scheduled start by two days after the pitcher admitted throwing at New York's

Crucial ABA Game Tonight

DENVER (AP) — The Kentucky Colonels, last year's champions, meet the Denver Nuggets, the league's winningest team over the past two seasons, in the deciding game of their semifinal playoff series tonight before an expected American Basketball Association record crowd.

The Nuggets placed standing room tickets on sale at the McNichols Sports Arena late Monday after more than 17,000 reserved seats were sold out for the seventh game of the series.

The winner of the game meets the New York Nets, victors over San Antonio in the other semifinal playoff series, for the ABA championship.

The Colonels' hopes to repeat as league champions depend in large measure on guard Bird Averitt, who has played key roles in his team's three wins so far.

It was Averitt who sparked the Colonels to a 119-115 doubleovertime victory in game 6 of the series on Sunday after he shook off an attack of tonsillitis and a fever.

This time, Averitt is going to have to overcome a slight pull of an achilles tendon to play, but the team's doctors say the star guard will be healthy enough to be in the lineup.

Denver's concern is not so much injuries as officiating, which Coach Larry Brown has repeatedly criticized.

Brown has expressed concern over the way rookie star David Thompson has been treated by the officials in the six games of the series.

"They've (the officials) got to let David play," Brown, the league's coach of the year, said. "He's been called for charging at one end of the court and then draws the defensive foul at the other when his team does the same thing."

The Nuggets, who won 66 of 84 games during the regular season and finished in first place for the second year in a row, are trying to head off a repeat of last year's playoff failure, when they were eliminated in the semifinal round.

Derby Dream Comes True For Trainer Tony Battaglia

LOUISVILLE, KY. (AP) — About 16 years ago, Tony Battaglia was working part-time in a doctor's office in Kansas City and was enrolled in a pre-med course. But he decided to give it up and get into the thoroughbred racing business.

Today, the 28-year-old Battaglia is among the elite as a trainer for one of the probable starters in Saturday's 102nd Kentucky Derby. He trains Bidson, a colt with an undistinguished career who became a surprise added starter Monday.

"I always thought some day I would like to have a Derby horse," said Battaglia, who arrived with Bidson aboard a chartered plane Tuesday. "I got my start as a groom and exercise boy with Calumet Farm after I left Kansas City. I wrote them a letter and they told me to come down. I hung around a few days, then got a job."

"There always was Derby talk around Calumet," said Battaglia of the Lexington farm which has produced eight Derby winners starting with Whirlaway in 1941. "And I used to see all the trophies. I brought a horse a few years ago and have been a trainer for four years."

The decision to race Bidson at Churchill Downs was made Sunday by Battaglia and Ed Wasy, the 67-year-old owner from Des Plaines, Ill. Their Sacred Stable is as little known as Calumet is famous.

"Originally, the plans were to run Bidson in the Illinois Derby Saturday," Battaglia said. "But we changed our minds because, Sportsman's Park is too hazar-ous with its sharp turns and we saw that a small field was shaping up for the Kentucky Derby."

Bidson has yet to race in a stakes race, having broken his maiden March 31 at Gulfstream Park. The son of Bold Bidder Regal Royal, who raced only once as a 2-year-old because of bucked shins, finished third and first in two 1-1/8 mile tests, coming off the pace to win by five lengths April 22 at Gulfstream.

Battaglia said Don MacBeth, who rode Bidson in his last three outings and twice has ridden in the Derby, would be aboard the colt on Saturday. With Honest Pleasure, winner of nine in a row, expected to be the heavy favorite, Bidson figures to be the longest shot in the probable field of nine.

Meanwhile, the remainder of the Derby contenders just galloped Tuesday.

It was revealed that Bold Furber, regarded as Honest Pleasure's top rival, has a slight cut on his right heel. Trainer Laz Barrera said the cut originated during the winter at Santa Anita and opens when the colt galloped on a wet track. The cut opened Monday but did not bleed, Barrera said.

In addition to Honest Pleasure, Bold Furber and Bidson, other 3-year-olds who apparently will go in the 1 1/4-mile Derby are Elucationist, On the Sly, Play The Red, Cojak, Inca Roca and Amaro.

Tuesday's Derby Trial, a mile test which drew only a field of four, failed to produce a Derby starter. Justa Bad Boy rallied to overtake front-running Here Comes Jo and Easy to score a 2 1/4-length victory. Winning owner E.A. Dust said Justa Bad Boy would not be entered in the Derby. Justa Bad Boy paid $2.40 and was clocked in 1:38, almost four seconds off the track record.

Mandy Smith led the Lancers (8-1) with two singles, a double and three RBIs. Jamie Sinkiewicz added a single and triple for three RBIs. Kathy Mensinger a single and triple and Val Vincent a single and double. Patty Hoge took the mound win.

Del Unser.

McGlothen fell behind on Von Joshua's leadoff triple and Derrel Thomas' single in the first inning. But the Cardinals bounced back with four in the second off John D'Acquisto, who was wild. St. Louis collected two hits and five walks in the rally.

A walk to Reggie Smith, Willie Crawford's double and Keith Hernandez' infield single made it 1-1 and Crawford scored the go-ahead run on Hector Cruz' sacrifice fly. Lee Richard's bases-loaded walk and Don Kessinger's sacrifice fly capped the rally.

Doug Rau, with last-out help from Charlie Hough, hurled his ninth straight victory over two seasons. The Dodgers, who have won four straight and six of eight, jumped on Bruce Kison for three runs in the third inning with the help of an error by catcher Manny Sanguillen and added two more in the fourth.

Ted Sizemore, who had three of the Dodgers' nine hits, Steve Garvey and Ron Cey drove in runs in the third inning.

Cincinnati pounded Tom Underwood for five runs in the first inning, two on Johnny Bench's double. When the Reds added two runs in the second inning the game became a breeze for Jack Billingham, who scattered eight hits until giving way to Will McEnaney in the eighth.

Pete Rose led off the first with a single. After Dave Concepcion struck out, George Foster and Tony Perez singled for the first run. Bench's double drove in two more. Bob Bailey singled to score Bench and Joel Youngblood tripled to score Bailey.

Rookie Bruce Boisclair drilled a two-run, two-out double off reliever Pablo Torrealba in the ninth inning to cap a three-run rally. Dave Kingman, who hit his eighth homer of the season in the seventh inning, singled to lead off the ninth and one out later Jerry Grote legged out an infield single. With two out, John Milner delivered a run-scoring pinch single and Boisclair doubled to knock in the tying and winning runs.

Derby Dream Comes True For Trainer Tony Battaglia

LOUISVILLE, KY. (AP) — About 10 years ago, Tony Battaglia was working part-time in a doctor's office in Kansas City and was enrolled in a pre-med course. But he decided to give it up and get into the thoroughbred racing business. Today, the 29-year-old Battaglia is among the elite as a trainer for one of the probable starters in Saturday's 102nd Kentucky Derby. He trains Bidson, a colt with an undistinguished career who became a surprise added starter Monday.

"I always thought some day I would like to have a Derby horse," said Battaglia, who arrived with Bidson aboard a chartered plane Tuesday. "I got my start as a groom and exercise boy with Calumet Farm after I left Kansas City. I wrote them a letter and they told me to come down. I hung around a few days, then got a job.

"There always was Derby talk around Calumet," said Battaglia of the Lexington farm which has produced eight Derby winners starting with Whirlaway in 1941. "And I used to see all the trophies. I brought a horse a few years ago and have been a trainer for four years."

The decision to race Bidson at Churchill Downs was made Sunday by Battaglia and Ed Ways, the 67-year-old owner from Des Plaines, Ill. Their Sared Stable is as little known as Calumet is famous.

"Originally, the plans were to run Bidson in the Illinois Derby Saturday," Battaglia said. "But we changed our minds because Sportsman's Park is too hazar-

Crucial ABA Game Tonight

DENVER (AP) — The Kentucky Colonels, last year's champions, meet the Denver Nuggets, the league's winningest team over the past two seasons, in the deciding game of their semifinal playoff series tonight before an expected American Basketball Association record crowd.

The Nuggets placed standing room tickets on sale at the McNichols Sports Arena late Monday after more than 17,000 reserved seats were sold out for the seventh game of the series. The winner of the game meets the New York Nets, victors over San Antonio in the other semifinal playoff series, for the ABA championship.

The Colonels' hopes to repeat as league champions depend in large measure on guard Bird Averitt, who has played key roles in his team's three wins so far.

It was Averitt who sparked the Colonels to a 119-115 doubleovertime victory in game 6 of the series on Sunday after he shook off an attack of tonsillitis and a fever.

This time, Averitt is going to have to overcome a slight pull of an achilles tendon to play, but the team's doctors say the star guard will be healthy enough to be in the lineup.

Denver's concern is not so much injuries as officiating, which Coach Larry Brown has repeatedly criticized.

Brown has expressed concern over the way rookie star David Thompson has been treated by the officials in the six games of the series.

"They've (the officials) got to let David play," Brown, the league's coach of the year, said. "He's been called for charging at one end of the court and then draws the defensive foul at the other when his man does the same thing."

The Nuggets, who won 60 of 84 games during the regular season and finished in first place for the second year in a row, are trying to head off a repeat of last year's playoff failure, when they were eliminated in the semifinal round.

Mustang Girls Still Unbeaten

CASSOPOLIS — River Valley's girls softball team remained unbeaten with a 21-4 win over Blossomland conference foe Cassopolis here Tuesday afternoon.

Janice Zabel led the winners, now 8-0 overall and 7-0 in the league, with three hits, including a three-run homer. Wendy Shearn also had three hits and Cathleen Smith got the win.

Top-Standing Rocks, Lakers Win

Berrien Springs and Luke Michigan Catholic both took triumphs Tuesday afternoon to continue to run one-two in the Red Arrow baseball standings. The Shamrocks polished off Gallen 5-2 while the Lakers scored a run on a passed ball in the bottom of the seventh inning to edge New Buffalo 3-2. Berrien is 5-0 in the league and Catholic 6-1.

In the only other game Tuesday, Watervliet downed Hartford 5-2. The Bridgman at Eau Claire game was moved to this afternoon due to wet grounds and cold weather.

Berrien Springs scored four runs in the second inning after two were out to take the Gaels. Joe Lunneen slugged a bases-loaded double for three RBIs for the key hit of the frame. Tim Sunday scored Lunneen with a single. Barry Adams doubled home Tony Sammons, who had singled, for the last Shamrock run in the fifth.

Gallen scored on a passed ball and on a sacrifice fly by Rudy Chase.

Rick Sanders was the winning hurler, fanning six and allowing three hits. Dale Luther took the loss for the Gaels, now 3-3 in the Red Arrow.

The Lakers kept pace with the Shamrocks with their late win. With the bases loaded and two outs in the last frame, the Lakers pushed across the winning run on a passed ball on a two-strike pitch to John Reinhardt.

Rick Smith, who had doubled in the seventh, took the win in relief of Tim Driscoll. Remmie Robinson suffered the setback.

The Lakers, who had five hits, scored twice in the fourth on a throwing error and a suicide squeeze hunt by Mickey Ashbrook. Robinson had a sacrifice fly RBI for the Blains, who managed three hits.

Lake Michigan has won three of its five league games by now. New Buffalo is now 1-5.

Watervliet was out 12-5 but still came out on top, as Hartford stranded 11 runners and had three runners picked off first base by winning tosser Frank Gargano, who finished with seven fans.

Bill Lindemann stroked a bases-loaded single for the Panthers while Dunne Tunney, Rick Winans and losing pitcher Jim Paskel all clubbed two hits for the Indians.

Watervliet is now 3-2, Hartford 2-3.

MSU Cage Staff Completed

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State's basketball coaching staff was completed Tuesday when school officials said veteran high school coach Don Monson would be an assistant coach on June 1.

Monson, 42, has the best 10-year record of any high school coach in the state of Washington, where he compiled 271 victories and 132 losses.

Monson will join assistant

Vernon Payne, kept on from former head basketball coach Gus Ganakas' staff. New basketball coach Jud Heathcote has been on the job about two weeks.

Also appointed Tuesday by MSU athletic director Joe Kearney was Eric Hays, 24, as a graduate assistant coach who will work with the junior varsity team at MSU.

Hays played under Heathcote at the University of Montana and will work on a master's degree in math at MSU.

Both appointments need approval of the school's board of trustees.

CASSOPOLIS — River Valley's girls softball team remained unbeaten with a 21-6 win over Blossomland conference foe Cassopolis here Tuesday afternoon.

Janice Zabel led the winners, now 8-0 overall and 7-0 in the league, with three hits, including a three-run homer. Wendy Schwark also had three hits and Cathleen Smith got the win.

Decatur falls to 3-1 and trails Bloomingdale and Martin, both with 3-0 marks. Bloomingdale and Martin postponed their game Tuesday due to wet grounds. In another game, Gobles blanked Lawton 9-0.

Decatur pitcher Jim Overley incredibly walked in four of the runs when he walked six batters in a row in the fateful seventh inning.

The Wildcats, now 2-1 in the league, played without regulars Richard Collier, Jerry Cornwell and Nick Gray, who were all injured Monday in an auto accident.

Al Kent slammed two singles and drove in three runs for the winners. Kurt Wiese collected a triple and two singles and drove in a pair of runs for Decatur. Jim Hansen hurled a three-hit shutout in Gobles' win. Hansen struck out 10 and walked just one as the Tigers picked up their first league win after two losses.

John Lepley, the first of two pitchers, took the loss for Lawton (0-5).

Brian Clement slammed three singles, scored two runs and drove in two others for the winners. Hansen, John Hunt and Doug Adams each added a pair of RBIs.

Pistons Have Nothing To Lose But Glass Slippers

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons have nothing to lose but their glass slippers in the National Basketball Association playoff series against the Golden State Warriors.

"They're still a lot fresher than us. It seems like we've been travelling or playing every day for the past three weeks," says Pistons center Bob Lanier.

whose size 22 feet are aching at this stage of the NBA grind.

Detroit crashed the playoff party as a Cinderella team with a shabby 36-48 regular season record but stands 2-2 with the NBA defending champion Warriors going into tonight's game No. 5 of the best-of-seven second-round series.

The sixth game will be played back in Detroit Friday night, keeping the Pistons on the go, and if a seventh game is necessary it will be played here Sunday in the only NBA game last night, Phoenix did away with Seattle 123-112. The win enabled the Suns to capture their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal playoff series 4-2.

One other series resumes tonight: The Boston Celtics, leading 2-1, go against the Buffalo Braves in Buffalo.

The remaining quarterfinal series will be resolved Thursday night, when a record crowd of more than 21,000 will jam the Coliseum in Richfield, Ohio, to watch the Washington Bullets meet the Cleveland Cavaliers in the seventh game of their hard-fought series.

"It's down to a three-game series now," Warriors Coach Al Attles remarked after Monday night's 106-102 loss in Detroit. Lanier helped square the series by scoring 30 points, including two in the final minute.

"We still have the homecourt advantage because two of the games are at our place," said the Warriors' Rick Barry, who hopes to regain his lost shooting touch soon.

Golden State, by virtue of its 56-23 record which was best in the league, got 10 days off before its playoff opener. Detroit, meanwhile, had to play its final two regular season games and then defeat Milwaukee in a three-game series to earn the dubious privilege of facing the Warriors.

The Warriors came off their long layoff to destroy Detroit 127-103 in the playoff opener, and Barry's poor shooting in that game could be overlooked. But no more.

"Shooting poorly? That's the understatement of the year. When we win it doesn't bother me," said the 6-foot-7 former NBA scoring champ who has made only 35 per cent of his shots (28 for 80) against Detroit.

Guard Phil Smith, who outscored Barry over the last half of the regular season and finished with a 20-point average, is going at a 28-point pace in the playoffs and has a 52.4 shooting average.

The Warriors outrebounded the Pistons in each of the first three games, but it was 49-41 in Detroit's favor Monday night. The Pistons also led in steals, 8-7.

The team that was 0-5 versus Golden State in regular season play appears every bit the Warriors' equal right now.

"It was definitely one of our better games," said Coach John MacLeod, in an understatement, after Phoenix's victory over Seattle.

"I thought we played good solid team ball and did a much better job on the boards," added MacLeod Tuesday night. "Now we're going to take the playoff against either Golden State or Detroit one game at a time."

Keith Erickson came off the bench to lead the Suns with 20 points and was followed by Paul Westphal, Ricky Sobers and Gar Heard with 18 each.

Bruce Seals and Slick Watts led the Sonics with 24 points each while Tom Burleson and Fred Brown had 22 apiece.

"They just outplayed us," said Seattle Coach Bill Russell. "They played consistent ball throughout the playoff. They were just playing better."

The victory assures Phoenix of its best season in the eight-year history of the franchise, beating the 1969-70 record when the Suns lost to the Los Angeles Lakers in a seven-game playoff.

Shooting 61 per cent from the floor in the first quarter, the Suns built an 11-point lead with 2:31 to go, before Seattle narrowed it to 25-23 at the horn.

The Suns stretched it out by 14 points in the second quarter and ended the half with a 60-50 advantage. Phoenix shot 59 per cent to 46 for Seattle and outscored the Sonics 33-27 in the quarter.

Westphal led the way to intermission with 14 Suns' points while Bruce Seals had 12 for the Sonics.

Sparkplug Ernie DiGregorio of Buffalo and veteran captain John Havlicek of Boston were the focus of much pro-game speculation in Buffalo. DiGregorio ignited the Braves to their only victory of the series; a 96-90 decision in Game Three Sunday; and there was speculation he may regain the berth in the starting lineup he lost early in the season.

Braves' Coach Jack Ramsay was not saying.

Havlicek suffered a torn muscle in the arch of his left foot in the series opener and sat out the other two games. He said the foot had improved considerably, but it is still questionable whether he'll be able to play tonight.

Detroit Fans Still Jab At Winning Herb Brown

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit fans haven't let up their jabs at Herb Brown, even though the Pistons' coach has his team playing on equal terms with Golden State in the quarterfinal round of the National Basketball Association playoffs. The fans have been taunting Brown ever since the popular Ray Scott was fired by Piston management at mid-season. Brown was the assistant then, and he stepped right up into the top coaching job.

Messersmith Case Not Closed Yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Hang on, baseball fans. You haven't heard the end of the Andy Messersmith affair quite yet.

The free agent pitcher was signed, sealed and delivered to the Atlanta Braves earlier this month after a knockdown, dragout series of negotiations in which he came close to signing with the New York Yankees.

When Messersmith signed with Atlanta, that seemed to end the matter.

Then reports surfaced last weekend that during negotiations with him, the Yankees had pressed the pitcher to sign an extra document apart from the contract the team offered.

The document involved division of any income Messersmith might earn in New York from advertising or commercial ventures. It was suggested that the side agreement was illegal, contrary to baseball law. The Yankees reacted angrily to that charge.

"Absolutely false," stormed George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the team.

Steinbrenner said Tuesday he was considering taking legal action over that charge as well as a widely circulated quote from Dick Moss, attorney for the Major League Players Association. Moss was quoted as saying the Yankees had paid Herb Osmond, Messersmith's agent, with drinks throughout the day-long negotiations. Then, at a two-day hearing before Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Moss said he was misquoted on that matter.

The Yankees were particularly angered by the charge that they had pursued an illegal document with Messersmith.

"The only reason that side agreement was not to be included in the contract was that Osmond requested it be separated," Yankees President Gabe Paul said. In his testimony under oath before the commissioner, Paul said that Osmond said he didn't want the reference to endorsements in the contract because, "Marvin Miller wouldn't like it; and as a matter of fact, he said Marvin Miller will not like this entire contract."

The contract with the Yankees would have paid Messersmith $100,000 per year for four years and a $100,000 bonus to be split with $36,000 paid upon signing and $64,000 in the fifth year. Additionally, the pitcher was to receive $500,000 amortized at the rate of $25,000 per year from the sixth year until the 18th year of the agreement. There was a dispute over interest on that money, and Steinbrenner finally agreed to pay it provided Messersmith okayed the outside income split.

The split was to have paid Messersmith 50 per cent, the Yankees 40 per cent and Osmond 10 per cent of any endorsement income.

whose size 22 feet are aching at this stage of the NBA grind.

Detroit crashed the playoff party as a Cinderella team with a shabby 36-46 regular season record but stands 2-2 with the NBA defending champion Warriors going into tonight's game No. 5 of the best-of-seven second-round series.

The sixth game will be played back in Detroit Friday night, keeping the Pistons on the go, and if a seventh game is necessary it will be played here Sunday in the only NBA game last night, Phoenix did away with Seattle 123-112. The win enabled the Suns to capture their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal playoff series 4-2.

One other series resumes tonight. The Boston Celtics, leading 2-1, go against the Buffalo Braves in Buffalo.

The remaining quarterfinal series will be resolved Thursday night, when a record crowd of more than 21,000 will jam the Coliseum in Richfield, Ohio, to watch the Washington Bullets meet the Cleveland Cavaliers in the seventh game of their hard-fought series.

"It's down to a three-game series now," Warriors Coach Al Attles remarked after Monday night's 106-102 loss in Detroit. Lanier helped square the series by scoring 30 points, including two in the final minute.

"We still have the homecourt advantage because two of the games are at our place," said the Warriors' Rick Barry, who hopes to regain his lost shooting touch soon.

Golden State, by virtue of its 59-23 record which was best in the league, got 10 days off before its playoff opener. Detroit, meanwhile, had to play its final two regular season games and then defeat Milwaukee in a three-game series to earn the dubious privilege of facing the Warriors.

The Warriors came off their long layoff to destroy Detroit 127-103 in the playoff opener, and Barry's poor shooting in that game could be overlooked. But no more.

"Shooting poorly? That's the understatement of the year. When we win it doesn't bother me," said the 6-foot-7 former NBA scoring champ who has made only 35 per cent of his shots (28 for 80) against Detroit.

Guard Phil Smith, who outscored Barry over the last half of the regular season and finished with a 20-point average, is going at a 28-point pace in the playoffs and has a .524 shooting average.

The Warriors outrebounded the Pistons in each of the first three games, but it was 49-41 in Detroit's favor Monday night. The Pistons also led in steals, 8-7.

The team that was 0-5 versus Golden State in regular season play appears every bit the Warriors' equal right now.

"It was definitely one of our better games," said Coach John MacLeod, in an understatement, after Phoenix' victory over Seattle.

"I thought we played good solid team ball and did a much better job on the boards," added MacLeod Tuesday night. "Now we're going to take the playoff against either Golden State or Detroit one game at a time."

Keith Erickson came off the bench to lead the Suns with 20 points and was followed by Paul Westphal, Ricky Sobers and Gar Heard with 18 each.

Bruce Seals and Slick Watts led the Sonics with 24 points each while Tom Burleson and Fred Brown had 22 apiece.

"They just outplayed us," said Seattle Coach Bill Russell. "They played consistent ball throughout the playoff. They were just playing better."

The victory assures Phoenix of its best season in the eight-year history of the franchise, besting the 1969-70 record when the Suns lost to the Los Angeles Lakers in a seven-game playoff.

Shooting 61 per cent from the floor in the first quarter, the Suns built an 11-point lead with 2:31 to go before Seattle narrowed it to 25-23 at the horn.

The Suns stretched it out by 14 points in the second quarter and ended the half with a 60-50 advantage. Phoenix shot 59 per cent to 46 for Seattle and outscored the Sonics 35-27 in the quarter.

Westphal led the way to intermission with 14 Suns' points while Bruce Seals had 12 for the Sonics.

Sparkplug Ernie DiGregorio of Buffalo and veteran captain John Havlicek of Boston were the focus of much pre-game speculation in Buffalo. DiGregorio ignited the Braves to their only victory of the series, a 98-93 decision in Game Three Sunday, and there was speculation he may regain the berth in the starting lineup he lost early in the season.

Braves' Coach Jack Ramsay was not saying.

Havlicek suffered a torn muscle in the arch of his left foot in the series opener and sat out the other two games. He said the foot had improved considerably, but it is still questionable whether he'll be able to play tonight.

Detroit Fans Still Jab At Winning Herb Brown

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit fans haven't let up their jabs at Herb Brown, even though the Pistons' coach has his team playing on equal terms with Golden State in the quarterfinal round of the National Basketball Association playoffs. The fans have been taunting Brown ever since the popular Ray Scott was fired by Piston management at mid-season. Brown was the assistant then, and he stepped right up into the top coaching job.

"Ray Scott for Pres," read one sign at Saturday's playoff game in Cobo Arena against the Warriors.

Monday night there were others. One said, "We love the Pistons, but Herb Brown can't coach."

Others suggested that Brown let Piston star Bob Lanier run the team. The two reportedly had a shouting match recently over team matters.

But Brown tries not to let the jibes get to him.

He shouldn't have to worry much tonight, since the Pistons play in Oakland in the fifth game of the best-of-seven series — which is knotted 2-2. The sixth game will be Friday night in Detroit and the seventh, if needed, will be Sunday in Oakland.

"It seems that the Warriors have more respect for the Pistons than the fans do," said Golden State owner Franklin Meuli after his squad took a 106-102 setback Monday night at Cobo.

"Our job is to win and not satisfy people (in the stands)," Brown said.

His players have a habit of complaining openly at the bench when Brown pulls them from a game. They were particularly animated at Saturday's nationally televised game.

"I believe in give-and-take," Brown said, but, "We had a meeting about it, and I told the players they shouldn't ... moan in front of a national TV audience."

However, he added, "I think it's right to allow players to express their feelings."

Several signs at the last game were critical of Piston forward Al Eberhard, who didn't play Monday. Brown said the signs had nothing to do with Eberhard's remaining on the bench.

According to one reporter, Eberhard's wife left the arena crying.

"Is that right?" Brown asked. "I'll have to speak to Al."

Could Detroit's surprising success in the playoffs assure Brown he'll return next season as Pistons coach?

"Come hell or high water, I'll coach somewhere next year," he said.

Messersmith Case Not Closed Yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Hang on, baseball fans. You haven't heard the end of the Andy Messersmith affair quite yet.

The free agent pitcher was signed, sealed and delivered to the Atlanta Braves earlier this month after a knockdown, dragout series of negotiations in which he came close to signing with the New York Yankees.

When Messersmith signed with Atlanta, that seemed to end the matter.

Then reports surfaced last weekend that during negotiations with him, the Yankees had pressed the pitcher to sign an extra document apart from the contract the team offered.

The document involved division of any income Messersmith might earn in New York from advertising or commercial ventures. It was suggested that the side agreement was illegal, contrary to baseball law. The Yankees reacted angrily to that charge.

"Absolutely false," stormed George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the team.

Steinbrenner said Tuesday he was considering taking legal action over that charge as well as a widely circulated quote from Dick Moss, attorney for the Major League Players Association. Moss was quoted as saying the Yankees had lied Herb Osmond, Messersmith's agent, with drinks throughout the day-long negotiations. Then, at a two-day hearing before Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Moss said he was misquoted on that matter.

The Yankees were particularly angered by the charge that they had pursued an illegal document with Messersmith.

"The only reason that side agreement was not to be included in the contract was that Osmond requested it be separated," Yankees President Gabe Paul said. In his testimony under oath before the commissioner, Paul said that Osmond said he didn't want the reference to endorsements in the contract because, "Marvin Miller wouldn't like it; and as a matter of fact, he said Marvin Miller will not like this entire contract."

The contract with the Yankees would have paid Messersmith $100,000 per year for four years and a $100,000 bonus to be split with $36,000 paid upon signing and $64,000 in the fifth year. Additionally, the pitcher was to receive $500,000 amortized at the rate of $35,000 per year from the sixth year until the 19th year of the agreement. There was a dispute over interest on that money, and Steinbrenner finally agreed to pay it provided Messersmith okayed the outside income split.

The split was to have paid Messersmith 50 per cent, the Yankees 40 per cent and Osmond 10 per cent of any endorsement income.

HUNTING OWN ISSUES

Ford Dotes On Defense

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — Decriing "simple solutions to complex problems," President Ford expressed determination today to keep Americans safe from crime at home and from war and aggression abroad.

Trying to stake out his own issues in the face of challenges to his defense leadership by GOP challenger, Ronald Reagan, Ford emphasized anti-nuclear efforts in his text for a speech to three law groups.

But he wound up with the pledge to "continue to insure that the United States of America is unsurpassed in military capability" — a pledge he seems compelled to make everywhere because of Reagan's persistent campaigning on that issue.

Ford's talk to the lawyers in Fort Worth was to follow a public forum in Tyler and a meeting with campaign workers.

Although the President devoted the bulk of his Fort Worth speech to crime, he concluded, "Let us remember that crime is just one threat to peace and security of all Americans. At the federal level, we must fulfill our obligation to provide national security as well as personal security."

On preserving peace at home and abroad, Ford said, "There are no easy answers, no simple solutions to the complex problems of personal and national security. But our determination to solve these problems is in itself a source of strength. And our warning to those who threaten our security at home, home or abroad is the same: Americans will never be intimidated and Americans will keep the security and independence we have had for 200 years."

Ford flew to Texas on Tuesday night to campaign up to the eve of a Saturday primary in which he says Reagan is the front-runner.

The President came to Texas via Louisiana, where he went through a heavy round of public activity in the Shreveport area, whose television and radio stations have large audiences in East Texas.

Ford does not face a primary test in Louisiana.

The first stop on Ford's four-day trip, the longest he has made during the campaign season, was at Barksdale Air Force Base, La. There, with 332 bombers lined up nearby, he declared, "I pledge to you today that as long as I hold this honored office, I intend to see to it that the United States will never become second to anybody."

Reagan has been arguing that the Ford administration has permitted the Soviet Union to gain military supremacy.

Without mentioning his challenger's name, Ford tried to lay Reagan as a Johnny-come-lately on defense, telling a Barksdale crowd:

"My own record in supporting a strong national defense does not go back merely a few days, a few weeks or even a few months, but all the way back to January of 1949 when I first went to the Congress of the United States. For 25 years in Congress, I stood for, I spoke for and I voted for a strong national defense capability."

Farm Tour Clouds PBB Issue

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

MASON, Mich. (AP) — A state show-and-tell Tuesday of a healthy dairy cow herd once labeled PBB-tainted only drew more questions from some legislators and loud protests from angry farmers.

It led a few lawmakers, however, to say the display discredited claims by farmers that their sick cows are actually contaminated with low levels of PBB.

Fourteen legislators were bused 10 miles from the Capitol in Lansing to the Mason farm of Frank McCulla, where they used plastic bags to protect their shoes from the barnyard muck.

The 94-head herd has been cured for and studied here for six months by the State Agriculture Department and Michigan State University, who concluded it was not PBB-tainted, but instead was mismanaged and suffering from malnutrition.

But farmers, who shouted questions at lawmakers and agriculture officials as they inspected the cows, disputed state and MSU tests that showed only three cows contaminated with very low PBB levels. The farmers and Rep. Donald Albosta, D-St. Charles, said the herd is really "loaded with PBB" and presents a health hazard, if marketed as the department intends to do.

Albosta heads a special House committee probing the PBB poisoning and was one of the first to blow the whistle on the herd, once owned by Richard Edmondson of Pickford in the Upper Peninsula. Slaughterhouses refused to buy the cows after media reports of their contamination.

State agriculture director B. Dale Ball defended state testing of the cows, saying he would fire anyone who told analysts to fudge test results — a charge sometimes leveled by farmers and implied by Albosta.

An independent laboratory, Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, found PBB at low levels in 10 of 13 cows tested, while state and MSU tests found no contamination in those cows. That, said Sen. John Ottobacher, D-Grand Rapids, raises questions about the agriculture department's entire presentation Tuesday.

Ball refused to drink a cup of milk from the herd which was offered him by protesting farmer Louis Trumbley of Hersey. The milk contained very low levels of PBB, according to MSU tests.

But Ball said he wasn't sure it was from that farm and later admitted he thought "there might have been things in it that weren't in it when it came from the cow."

"I don't know what they put in milk when they want to get rid of a man," he said. Telephone threats on his life have been made in the last three weeks, he said, "and I don't feel like giving them an opportunity if I can avoid it."

Trumbley then offered the cup to a Michigan State University professor, who helped nurse the sick cattle back to health. The professor quaffed the milk without hesitation.

Farmers Kill 92 Cattle

CADILLAC, Mich. (AP) — Nearly 100 cattle, allegedly suffering from PBB contamination, were destroyed Tuesday by a group of 10 farmers.

The 92 animals were shot with rifles after they were herded into a burial pit, said Robert Giering of Falmouth, one of the 10 farmers.

The exact site of the incident was not disclosed and those involved would only say it happened on a farm near Cadillac. They said they were keeping the location secret because they fear their action might jeopardize legal action taken by farmers against the state.

The farmers said produce from the animals would have been unsafe for human consumption.

"They were so sick they couldn't be put on the market," Giering said, adding their bodies contained more than the federally allowable limit of .3 parts per million of PBB, a toxic fire retardant.

denied an accusation by Albosta that the display of the healthy herd was an effort to effectively kill a bill he is sponsoring to ban sales of PBB-tainted meat for 60 days. They said no one should imply that other sick herds are necessarily mismanaged rather than contaminated by PBB.

But special PBB committee member Sen. Gary Byker, R-Hudsonville, said Tuesday's barnyard tour and an accompanying slide show by MSU scientists "would definitely negate or invalidate the assumptions" behind Albosta's bill. Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, agreed that the state's conclusions on Edmondson's herd could apply to other herds which farmers claim are PBB-tainted.

The bill, which has passed the House, is scheduled for consideration before the Senate Agriculture Committee Wednesday.

claims by the state and farmers on the danger of low PBB levels. The toxic fire retardant, polybrominated biphenyl, was accidentally mixed with livestock feed in 1973, and led to the slaughter of thousands of cattle and poultry and the destruction of produce.

Now, farmers say even livestock tainted with low amounts of PBB which the federal government calls safe may be dangerous. The farmers say the state agriculture department has covered up for the Farm Bureau who mixed the feed.

But critics have said the farmers with herds contaminated at low levels just want part of a multi-million dollar fund established to reimburse farmers for their losses due to PBB.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has ruled that PBB concentrations of less than three-tenths parts per million are safe for human consumption.

Farm Tour Clouds PBB Issue

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

MASON, Mich. (AP) — A state show-and-tell Tuesday of a healthy dairy cow herd once labeled PBB-tainted only drew more questions from some legislators and loud protests from angry farmers.

It led a few lawmakers, however, to say the display discredited claims by farmers that their sick cows are actually contaminated with low levels of PBB.

Fourteen legislators were bused 10 miles from the Capitol in Lansing to the Mason farm of Frank McCalla, where they used plastic bags to protect their shoes from the barnyard muck.

The 94-head herd has been cared for and studied here for six months by the State Agriculture Department and Michigan State University, who concluded it was not PBB-tainted, but instead was mismanaged and suffering from malnutrition.

But farmers, who shouted questions at lawmakers and agriculture officials as they inspected the cows, disputed state and MSU tests that showed only three cows contaminated with very low PBB levels. The farmers and Rep. Donald Albosta, D-St. Charles, said the herd is really "loaded with PBB" and presents a health hazard if marketed as the department intends to do.

Albosta heads a special House committee probing the PBB poisoning and was one of the first to blow the whistle on the herd, once owned by Richard Edington of Pickford in the Upper Peninsula. Slaughterhouses refused to buy the cows after media reports of their contamination.

State agriculture director B. Dale Ball defended state testing of the cows, saying he would fire anyone who told analysts to fudge test results — a charge sometimes leveled by farmers and implied by Albosta.

An independent laboratory, Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, found PBB at low levels in 10 of 13 cows tested, while state and MSU tests found no contamination in those cows. That, said Sen. John Otterbacher, D-Grand Rapids, raises questions about the agriculture department's entire presentation Tuesday.

Ball refused to drink a cup of milk from the herd which was offered him by protesting farmer Louis Trombley of Hersey. The milk contained very low levels of PBB, according to MSU tests.

But Ball said he wasn't sure it was from that farm and later admitted he thought "there might have been things in it that weren't in it when it came from the cow."

"I don't know what they put in milk when they want to get rid of a man," he said. Telephone threats on his life have been made in the last three weeks, he said, "and I don't feel like giving them an opportunity if I can avoid it."

Trombley then offered the cup to a Michigan State University professor, who helped nurse the sick cattle back to health. The professor quaffed the milk without hesitation.

Farmers Kill 92 Cattle

CADILLAC, Mich. (AP) — Nearly 100 cattle, allegedly suffering from PBB contamination, were destroyed Tuesday by a group of 10 farmers.

The 92 animals were shot with rifles after they were herded into a burial pit, said Robert Gerring of Falmouth, one of the 10 farmers.

The exact site of the incident was not disclosed and those involved would only say it happened on a farm near Cadillac. They said they were keeping the location secret because they fear their action might jeopardize legal action taken by farmers against the state.

The farmers said produce from the animals would have been unsafe for human consumption.

"They were so sick they couldn't be put on the market," Gerring said, adding their bodies contained more than the federally allowable limit of .3 parts per million of PBB, a toxic fire retardant.

PBB, or polybrominated biphenyl, was accidentally mixed with cattle feed in 1973, causing what some have called the nation's worst livestock poisoning.

denied an accusation by Albosta that the display of the healthy herd was an effort to effectively kill a bill he is sponsoring to ban sales of PBB-tainted meat for 60 days. They said no one should imply that other sick herds are necessarily mismanaged rather than contaminated by PBB.

But special PBB committee member Sen. Gary Byker, R-Hudsonville, said Tuesday's barnyard tour and an accompanying slide show by MSU scientists "would definitely negate or invalidate the assumptions" behind Albosta's bill. Rep. Quincy Hoffman, R-Applegate, agreed that the state's conclusions on Edington's herd could apply to other herds which farmers claim are PBB-tainted.

The bill, which has passed the House, is scheduled for consideration before the Senate Agriculture Committee Wednesday.

Tuesday's display was just another in a long series of claims by the state and farmers on the danger of low PBB levels. The toxic fire retardant, polybrominated biphenyl, was accidentally mixed with livestock feed in 1973, and led to the slaughter of thousands of cattle and poultry and the destruction of produce.

Now, farmers say even livestock tainted with low amounts of PBB which the federal government calls safe may be dangerous. The farmers say the state agriculture department has covered up for the Farm Bureau who mixed the feed.

But critics have said the farmers with herds contaminated at low levels just want part of a multi-million dollar fund established to reimburse farmers for their losses due to PBB.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has ruled that PBB concentrations of less than three-tenths parts per million are safe for human consumption.

It's Claudine's Diary That Has Aspen On Edge

Q: Did the shooting of skier "Spider" Sabich by actress Claudine Leung shake up the town of Aspen? — P.A., Colton, Calif.

A: Aspen has become quite a swinging resort of late and not easily shocked, but what might been recorded by Claudine. Q: With Barbara Streisand apparently running the whole show on the set of her new movie, "A Star Is Born," isn't she afraid she'll fall on her face if it's a flop? — R.V., Akron, Ohio

A: Self-confidence is not one of Barbara's lacks. It is even rumored that she now wants co-directing credit on the picture. But Barbara feels her daily contributions are making the film "real and alive." When she recently had a spat with boy friend-producer Jon Peters, which turned into a real spitting match, she couldn't wait to put the episode into the picture because she thought "it was so sexy."

Q: What do you think of the Brenda Vaccaro-Mike Douglas romance? Do you think there's a marriage in sight? — S.D., Little Rock, Ark.

A: Doubtful. We think Brenda,

PETERS: Barbara wanted it on film who is everybody's favorite person, can do better. Particularly now since Douglas has gotten rather fat-headed as a result of his success as producer of the Oscar-winning "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

Q: Who was that beautiful woman who was the first meal for the shark in "Jaws"? — T.D., Norwalk, Conn.

A: That was Susan Backlin, 29, who got the job because she had such a fine body and was an excellent swimmer. Though she has been little previous acting experience she is now reported to be signed for three new films. Hopefully she will not be typeset as food for the animals, but the press release announces that her upcoming co-stars will be a grizzly bear, a tiger and a leopard. Q: Is Mia Farrow's sister also an actress? — L.B., San Antonio, Tex.

A: Tisa Farrow, 24, and seven years younger than her sister, has naturally grown up in the shadow of the famous Mia but she is determined to make it as an actress in her own right. She will soon begin work in her first major film called "Vicky," which is about Victoria Woodhull, the first woman to run for the presidency of the U.S.

Q: You mentioned that Carrie Fisher is resuming her acting career, but what is her brother doing? — G.S., Canaan, Conn.

A: Todd Fisher has just turned 18, and his mother Debbie Reynolds, and sister Carrie threw a surprise party for him at a Beverly Hills restaurant complete with the old girl-coming-out-of-the-cake routine. Also on hand to wish the boy well was TV producer Robert Fallon, 59, who will soon be cutting a wedding cake with Debbie Todd, a record company producer, was named after his father, Eddie Fisher's good friend, the late Mike Todd.

Inflation Blacks' Big Issue

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Galloping inflation is causing more bitterness among South African blacks than their lack of political rights, the director of the Institute of Race Relations warns. "I estimate the increase in the cost of living for blacks is running at about 15 per cent, compared with 11.5 per cent for the country as a whole," Fred Van Wyk said Tuesday. His comment was prompted by a government announcement that the consumer price of maize, the staple food of most blacks, is to be increased 18 per cent on May 1.

Ghana Cancels Visit

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — The government of Ghana has called off Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's visit to it on Thursday and Friday, and U.S. officials blame Soviet diplomats. One member of Kissinger's staff said a formal protest to Moscow was contemplated. "We know for a fact that the Soviets have been agitating with the Ghanaian government and with Ghanaian students over the visit," he said. U.S. Ambassador Shirley Temple Black sent a telegram Tuesday from Accra saying Ghanaian officials had requested cancellation because the chief of state, Col. Ignatius Acheampong, was sick.

Strike Saves City Money

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A four-week strike has crippled public transportation and dirtied Golden Gate Park. But it has saved the city more money than the planned pay cuts which precipitated it, the city's controller says. Controller John Farrell said Tuesday the strike has brought a net savings of nearly $7.5 million. That is nearly $2 million more than the planned $5.7-million pay cut for about 1,800 laborers, carpenters, plumbers and street sweepers. The city employees struck March 31 after the Board of Supervisors approved pay cuts of several hundred to several thousand dollars a year for each worker. Carpenters' salaries, for example, were cut from $21,800 to $17,240, some street sweepers from $17,300 to $12,100.

Union Chief Sees Long Tire Strike

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock predicted Tuesday there will be a long rubber strike which eventually could force shutdowns in the auto industry.

"I think it will be a long one," Woodcock said of the week-old strike by the United Rubber Workers against the Big Four tire makers. "Both sides are so far, far apart."

Woodcock, addressing a UAW-Ford Council meeting here, said he was surprised at reports from the auto companies that they had only a 30-to-45-day supply of tires at the start of the strike. "There was plenty of advance notice that this was coming," he said.

The UAW leader noted that lengthy rubber strikes in 1967 — ranging from an 11-day walkout at Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. to a 45-day strike at Uniroyal Inc. — had no impact on the auto industry.

On Taxes And 'Survival'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — If state revenues continue to rise, Michigan will "be able to survive" without increasing current income or business tax, says House Speaker Bobby Crim. But the Davison Democrat refused on Tuesday to rule out the possibility of new nuisance taxes on beer, cigarettes and liquor. Crim has said in the past the state cannot afford to roll back the income tax from 4.6 per cent to 4.4 per cent as scheduled for July 1, 1977. Lawmakers wrote the rollback provision into law when they raised the tax last May. "Survival is one thing. Meeting needs in a responsible way is another," Crim said, indicating he thinks "survival" will not mean operating the state at maximum benefit for citizens. Revenue sharing, mental health and education programs might be hurt without an interim increase in nuisance taxes, he said.

School Issues Defeated

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pair of school ballot proposals in northern Lower Michigan went down to defeat this week. In the Twin Valley School District of East Jordan and Boyne City, voters partially accepted a $3.4 million bond issue that was intended for construction of two new high schools. The question was approved in East Jordan by a vote of 537 to 551. But Boyne City voters rejected the issue 1,048 to 533. Both communities must ratify the issue. In northeastern Lower Michigan, voters in the Chuboyan-Osogo-Presque Isle Intermediate School District rejected a 1.2-mill request for an area vocational education center by a vote of 3,001 to 2,099. The center would have been built near Indian River with satellite programs at Gaylord, Chuboyan, Rogers City and Ontonagon.

Pro-Sun, Wind Power

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee has reached agreement on legislation to encourage the development and use of solar and wind energy. The main bill offers property tax exemptions for solar or wind energy devices installed in existing or new residential or commercial buildings. The other bills, all sponsored by Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, would provide sales and use tax exemptions for material used in installing such devices. The bills went to a conference committee when the two houses passed different versions. The committee removed a Senate-proposed property tax exemption for nursing homes, and changed the expiration date of the law from 1981 to 1985. The agreement must be approved by the House and Senate again before going to Gov. William Milliken for his signature.

Rise In Status, Salary

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Fourteen part-time northern Michigan probate court judges would rise in status and salary under legislation headed for the Senate. Base salaries for other probate judges in small counties would also rise under the legislation, and part-time probate court judges would be barred from appearing as attorneys in probate courts. The House passed the bill 75-22 with no debate this week. The measure would become law immediately after the governor signs it. Rep. Paul Rosenbaum, D-Battle Creek, sponsor, said the bill will help eliminate conflict of interest in probate courts by preventing judges from representing clients in probate court matters. He said it would also increase the quality and integrity of probate courts by making more judges full-time and adequately paid.

New Jury Approach Works

DETROIT (AP) — A new one-day, one-trial approach to jury duty has saved Wayne County about $66,000 and resulted in fewer disgruntled jurors, says a study released this week. The study shows that the savings resulted because 102 more trials were held between last Oct. 1 and April 1 under the new system than had been held during the same period under the old system. The new practice allows jurors to return to their jobs if they are not called to hear a trial on the first day of jury duty. If they are called to be on a jury panel, they serve only the length of the trial, which averages three days in criminal cases and four days in civil cases. Previously jurors were called to serve for 30 days and many complained this disrupted their lives and jobs.

Michigan Brothers Begin 2,957-Mile Bicentennial Run

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Two Jackson brothers who believe in foot power have set out on the first leg of a 2,957-mile Bicentennial run from San Francisco to the White House steps.

The 51-mile-a-day run is the third major effort by Joel Ahlstrom, 38, and his brother, Tony, 27.

In 1970, they tuned up with a 250-mile, 10-day jog from Chicago to Detroit in what was called a "Pollution-to-Pollution Run," designed to call attention to ecological problems.

They followed in 1971 with a "Save America Run" from Long Beach, Calif., to Long Beach, N.Y. The 2,958-mile run took 94 days with each brother wearing out five pairs of shoes.

This time their transcontinental effort has a Bicentennial flavor as they hope to arrive at the White House on July 3, a day before the nation's 200th birthday.

The pair is accompanied by a motor home, driven by a friend, Robert Preston. They also have an advance man, Charles Cardella, who keeps a day ahead of them to set up local welcomes or convince Boy Scouts or other groups to run with the brothers for brief distances.

The brothers carry a Bible and a copy of the Declaration of Independence, two items which they said "symbolize the role of faith in God in the nation's history."

Tony Ahlstrom is an ordained minister and director of the Plymouth Foundation, an evangelical organization in Chicago. Joe is on leave from his job with a grocery chain.

Along the way, the Ahlstroms plan to collect signatures from the public and give out thousands of copies of the Declaration of Independence.

The enduring pair plan to leave their schedule on three or four occasions in which they will be flown to state capitals for special ceremonies and then fly back to rejoin the motor home expedition.

Wives of the two men saw them off in San Francisco but are not due to see them again until June 16 in Chicago.

The run is a $50,000 project which was underwritten by private businesses and religious groups, the brothers said.

Today In MICHIGAN

Aimed At Hazards

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill that supporters say would reduce hazards from abandoned or unoccupied dwellings with housing code violations is headed for the state Senate. The House approved the measure Tuesday, 89-12, with immediate effect. Under the bill, local agencies would have to seek injunctions to stop uncorrected Housing Code violations in unoccupied dwellings if the public health and safety were endangered. Current law requires this action only for occupied dwellings with dangerous violations of the code.

Malpractice Topic

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A public hearing will be held in Lansing May 12 on proposed rules to tighten state regulation over medical malpractice insurance companies. The rules would require the companies to disclose their profit figures and underwriting practices, expenses, risk classifications and other information before state Insurance Commissioner Thomas Jones can act on their rate increase requests. The Physicians Crisis Committee, a group of Michigan doctors, asked Jones to hold the hearings. Following the public hearing in the Law Building, the staff of the state Insurance Bureau will make recommendations, which will be discussed at a second hearing June 30. Jones will make the final decision on whether to implement the new requirements.

Delayed Until Today

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday continued to struggle with the governor's program to balance Michigan's current budget, losing a vote on a key bill to provide an extra $50 million. The vote came on a measure to borrow the money from the Veterans Trust Fund. The bill is a product of a House-Senate conference committee which resolved minor differences in their respective versions. A second vote on the bill was delayed until today since the 18-7 tally — two votes short of the 20 needed — indicated there weren't enough members to guarantee approval. A second failure would kill the bill, which would be a major blow to Gov. William Milliken's fiscal plans.

Moonlighting Restrictions

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Civil service commissions can restrict moonlighting by police and firemen if the limitations are aimed at more efficient public service, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley ruled this week. Kelley also said that rules on outside employment are "terms and conditions of employment" which are mandatory subjects of collective bargaining. In his opinion, requested by Rep. Richard A. Young, D-Dearborn Heights, Kelley said state law empowers local police and fire civil service commissions to adopt rules relating to the hiring and firing of police and firemen. He also noted a 1959 opinion held that a municipality "may adopt rules limiting the right of employees to engage in outside employment provided that the regulations reasonably relate to efficient service." Rules limiting outside employment, he added, must be "reasonably based and not arbitrary and actually contribute to efficient service."

Iodine, Not PBB?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan State researcher says he suspects that too much iodine, not PBB, may be causing some of the illnesses which plague Michigan farm animals. Dr. David Hillman, an extension specialist in dairy cattle nutrition and feed management, said research on 20 dairy herds revealed iodine and PBB cause similar symptoms. And there are indications the iodine might be causing at least some of the problems, he said. PBB, a fire-retardant chemical which was accidentally mixed with cattle feed in 1971, is blamed for the contamination of farm animals and products and the destruction of thousands of livestock and tons of produce. Hillman, however, said his research indicated that iodine may also be involved in the illnesses. He cautioned against using PBB as the scapegoat for ailments which may have other origins.

$6 Million Fight

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The fight against swine flu in Michigan will cost more than $6 million in federal money, state health officials report. The Michigan effort, which will cover inoculations for some 9 million people, is part of the national fight against an expected epidemic of the virus. The national fight was ordered by President Ford. Public health clinics and private physicians would administer the vaccine, which will be provided at no cost to recipients. However, some doctors might charge for their services. State health officials have begun discussing how to distribute the vaccine, with tentative plans calling for inoculations in large factories and schools.

Getting Their Attention

DETROIT (AP) — The City of Detroit hopes to catch the attention of some 8,000 persons with parking tickets by sending them Western Union mailgrams. City officials hope the mailgram — a cross between a telegram and a letter — will succeed where other repeated warnings have failed in getting people to pay parking fines.

Ann Weber, an administrator for Traffic and Ordinance Court, says the city has 160,000 unpaid parking tickets and 15,000 people account for more than half of the tickets.

Bound Over For Trial

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit judge has bound over Vesta Johnson for trial on a first-degree murder warrant stemming from the death of a heart attack victim. Miss Johnson, 28, of Detroit, is charged in the death of Ralphe Porter, 72, of Royal Oak Township, who police said died of a heart attack following a robbery attempt on April 10. After listening to nearly three hours of testimony, District Court Judge Benjamin Friedman ordered Miss Johnson to face arraignment charges on May 11 in Oakland County Circuit Court.

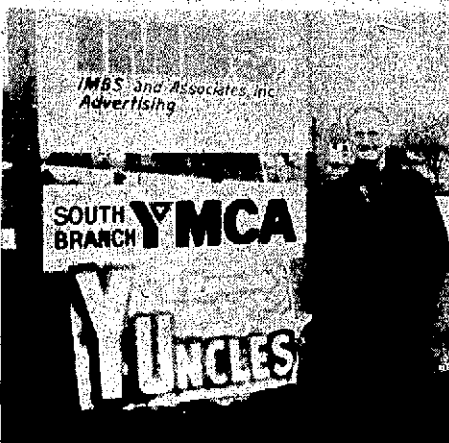

"I WISH THOSE TWO WOULD STOP FEUDING."

Two Herds Quarantined

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Two dairy farms, one in Fremont and the other in Zeeland, have been quarantined by a state veterinarian because high levels of the chemical PBB were discovered in milk. Quarantined were herds at the A&R Farms in Fremont and the Arin Meekhoff farm in Zeeland, said Duane Deming, a veterinarian for the state Department of Agriculture. Deming said the milk came from cows purchased two years ago, from the Peter Crum farm in Coopersville. The purchases, he said, were made before the problem with PBB, or polybrominated biphenyl, became widely known. He said the cattle now quarantined were calves when purchased and had the PBB contamination passed on to them by their mothers. He said the milk from the animals contained from one to five parts per million of PBB. Federal regulations require that in order to be safely consumed, food products contain no more than three-tenths of one part per million. Deming added that despite the high PBB levels found in the milk, the cattle showed no evidence of illness but will be destroyed and buried at a state burial site near Kalkaska.

Bad For Tadpoles

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — The Navy has denied it suppressed results of a study, associated with Project Seafarer, which showed a high mortality among young tadpoles used in experiments. Opponents of the Seafarer Project contended effects of Extra Low Frequency (ELF) tests on tadpoles could indicate similar effects on humans. People Against Sanguine-Seafarer (PASS) said a study between 1970 and 1974 at the Navy Air Development Center at Jonesville, Pa. was significant. "When all the facts are known, this may be the most blatant and outrageous example of Navy deception yet," said Kathy Brahney, a PASS spokesman. She also has accused the Navy of covering up results of similar experiments with rats. PASS said the Navy discontinued the tadpole study and similar ELF studies when it became evident their conclusions would adversely affect Project Seafarer. Seafarer is a proposed project to install a huge underground communications system to be used especially for submerged submarines. The western Upper Peninsula is among several sites being considered as a possible home for Seafarer — despite objections from many residents.

NEW Y-UNCLES BRANCH. Twin City YMCA has opened Y-UNCLES program at its south branch office on John Beers road west of Cleveland avenue to provide services to Lakeshore area and recruit more Y-UNCLES and nephews. Y-UNCLES Director Robert Pennypacker (pictured) said program seeks men who will give one hour per week to boys, 6 to 12, who are fatherless or without male adult. South branch will be open Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday for recruiting, and main office in Benton Harbor will handle same functions on Tuesday and Friday.

Sex Change Cost 'Not State's Duty'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state does not have to foot the bill for a prison inmate's sex change operation, the attorney general has ruled.

The unnamed inmate who requested the operation has attempted self-mutilation and has threatened to do so again unless given the operation. But he must wait until he is released to have the sex change, said Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley on Tuesday. Although the state is required to provide essential medical treatment to prison inmates, a sex change operation does not qualify for state payment, Kelley said. Kelley made the ruling in an opinion requested by Perry Johnson, director of the Department of Corrections. The inmate, who has adopted the name "Cheryl," is currently serving a 25-to-50-year sentence at Southern Michigan Prison in Jackson for assault with intent to commit armed robbery.

Prison officials have reported that he has adopted feminine behavior and wears some feminine clothing. "If this person wants such an operation, he can have it," Kelley said, "but only after he is released and at his own expense." Johnson said Tuesday the sex change was recommended by a psychiatrist hired by the corrections department "as something that might be helpful from the therapeutic standpoint."

Johnson said the attorney general's opinion was sought to clarify what treatments the state must finance. For the inmate's future, Johnson said, "All we can do is provide clinical support and the help of psychiatrists if this individual is disturbed and distraught about his desire to become a female."

Union Chief Sees Long Tire Strike

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock predicted Tuesday there will be a long rubber strike which eventually could force shutdowns in the auto industry.

"I think it will be a long one," Woodcock said of the week-old strike by the United Rubber Workers against the Big Four tire makers. "Both sides are so far, far apart."

Woodcock, addressing a UAW-Ford Council meeting here, said he was surprised at reports from the auto companies that they had only a 30-to 45-day supply of tires at the start of the strike. "There was plenty of advance notice that this was coming," he said.

Prison officials have reported that he has adopted femi behavior and wears some feminine clothing. "If this person was such an operation, he can have it," Kelley said, "but only after is released and at his own expense." Johnson said Tuesday the change was recommended by a psychiatrist hired by the corrections department "as something that might be helpful from therapeutic standpoint."

Johnson said the attorney general's opinion was sought to clear what treatments the state must finance. For the inmate's father Johnson said, "All we can do is provide clinical support and help of psychiatrists if this individual is disturbed and distraught about his desire to become a female."

More Firms Are Listening To Consumer

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

I found a stem in my green beans.

"There aren't enough shopping carts."

"I was shortchanged at the checkout."

The complaints are typical of those received by a large East Coast supermarket chain. A store spokesman, who refused to be identified by name or store, said they are among thousands and thousands which come in each year.

Road prices and quality have been the focus of consumer discontent in the 1970s, prompting supermarket chains to pay greater attention to complaints.

But the food stores are not alone in trying to keep the customer happy. A survey by the Conference Board, a business research group, found a growing number of companies establishing full-time consumer affairs departments.

The board mailed questionnaires to 1,250 companies for its survey, published early in 1974. It got responses from 450 firms and of these, 180 reported having a consumer affairs department.

Asked how many companies now have such divisions, E. Patrick McGuire, a senior research analyst for the board and author of the original study, said, "I would guess it has to be close to the 500 mark."

Some consumer groups, including the Consumer Federation of America, have argued that many of these departments are window dressing, designed to take the sting out of complaints without actually making any changes in basic policy.

"They are owned by the other side," said Carol Tucker Foreman, the federation's executive director, in discussing the company-employed consumer affairs personnel. "They are quite literally in an untenable position."

The Conference Board, in its original study, said: "It would be an overstatement to assert that simply because a firm has a consumer affairs unit, it has necessarily launched an effective consumer relations effort."

McGuire said there is "some merit to the charge" of window dressing in that a few companies "commit an amount of resources to the task that is in no way commensurate with the task."

"One can argue that not enough is being done," he said, but to dismiss the whole thing is "to ignore what a lot of well-intentioned people are doing."

McGuire said it is in the company's own interest to make sure that complaints are handled effectively because Conference Board studies have shown that "in many instances, when you get one complaint, that represents up to 40 unserved customers."

Five hundred complaints could mean 20,000 disgruntled customers ready to turn to the competition if they aren't satisfied, McGuire said.

Businesses are still touchy when it comes to talking about customer dissatisfaction, partly because complaint information can give the competition an advantage.

They are reluctant to give specifics about the number of complaints and whether they are increasing or decreasing.

The supermarket spokesman quoted above did say that about 40 per cent of the letters and phone calls the chain receives concern products. That's the stem in the green beans. If the store gets enough complaints about a particular item, it's removed from the shelves. "It happened recently with a tuna chronic complainer to shop elsewhere? "You can't afford to lose a customer," the spokesman said. "Assume the average shopper spends $50 a week. She shops in the store for a five-year period. She brings two friends with her."

The loss of that customer and her friends could mean a potential loss of almost $40,000 in sales. With supermarket profits running at about 1 per cent of sales, the lost customer could mean $400 in lost profits over five years. It may not seem like much, but it can add up.

Not all complaint departments — or customer relations offices, as some companies prefer to call them — are new. General Motors Corp. set up a formal corporate procedure for handling owner complaints in 1928. The basic complaint procedures have remained generally unchanged for the past decade. Grievances are handled through GM's six divisions — five car and one truck.

Customers are told to follow a three-step procedure: first, complaint to the dealer; if you don't get satisfaction; call the nearest zone office for your type of vehicle; if you're still not happy, write to the customer service office at the division headquarters.

Glen Warren, manager of customer relations, said the complaint procedure, with addresses, is explained in the owner's manual — "which everybody gets and nobody reads" — in the warranty pamphlet and on a placard at the dealer.

Warren said GM's car and truck divisions get 80,000 to 75,000 complaints a year; depending on the number of vehicles sold and whether there is a lot of publicity about a particular problem. He declined to be more specific.

GM sold about 4.7 million domestically produced cars and trucks in the United States last year so 80,000 complaints would work out to one gripe for every 78 vehicles.

Warren said the number of complaints in relation to the number of vehicles sold "has decreased over the past five years." In fact, he said, the ratio of complaints to vehicles is lower today than it was in the 1930s.

Why then do state and local consumer agencies say they get more complaints about automobiles than any other item? "Cars are exposed to such varied conditions and people make such demands on them that it's not surprising you get complaints," said Warren.

He said General Motors dealers handle 200,000 transactions a day, including sales and repairs. "Every one is an opportunity for someone to make a mistake."

Warren said people have become increasingly aware of their rights. They know what they are entitled to. They also know "what they're not entitled to." Warren said, "but they are encouraged not to accept that concept." By whom? "So-called consumerists."

The greatest number of GM complaints "has to do with failure to get the job done right the first time" at the dealership, Warren said. He said the average complaint is resolved in about two weeks.

TODAY in History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, April 23, the 119th day of 1975. There are 247 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1952, war with Japan officially ended as a treaty which had been signed by the United States and 47 other nations went into effect.

On this date:

In 1796, the fifth President of the United States, James Monroe, was born in Westmoreland County, Va.

In 1788, Maryland ratified the U.S. Constitution.

In 1780, the mutinous crew of the British ship Bounty set Capt. William Bligh and 18 sailors adrift in a launch in the South Pacific.

In 1870, Britain's Queen Victoria was declared Empress of India.

In 1945, in World War II, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini and his mistress were captured and executed near Lake Como as they tried to escape from Italy to Switzerland.

In 1945, U.S. Marines were ordered to land in the Dominican Republic during a revolution.

Two years ago: The wreckage of a Peruvian airliner was found in the Andes, and the search party reported all 49 persons aboard had been killed.

Five years ago: The FBI took 19-year-old Leslie Bacon into custody as a material witness in the bombing of the U.S. Capitol on March 1.

One year ago: Gunmen invaded the Israeli consulate in Johannesburg, South Africa. They killed two passers-by and took more than 20 persons hostage, before surrendering and releasing the hostages.

Today's birthdays: President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia is 52. Playwright Robert Anderson is 58.

Thought for today: Determine that the thing can and shall be done, and then we shall find the way. — President Abraham Lincoln, 1868-1869.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Gen. George Washington wrote from New York to Col. Richard Gridley in Boston and firmly commanded a speed-up in bolstering city defenses against a possible attack by the British.

Five hundred complaints could mean 20,000 disgruntled customers ready to turn to the competition if they aren't satisfied, McGuire said.

40 per cent of the letters and phone calls the chain receives concern products. That's the stem in the green beans. If the store gets enough complaints about a particular item, it's removed from the shelves. "It happened recently with a tuna fish product," the spokesman said.
The rest of the communications are split between store operations — too few carts — and miscellaneous issues, including compliments.
"The most rapidly burgeoning category of miscellaneous queries deals with product information," the spokesman said. People want detailed facts about nutrition and ingredients.
They read about problems with Red Dye No. 2, recently banned by the Food and Drug Administration, and they want to know which products contain it. They are concerned about fluorocarbons in aerosols. They write: "I'm allergic to this. Can I eat that?"
The chain spokesman said the search for specific information has grown in the last two or three years. "It's much more scientific and detailed than: 'Hey, I don't like your green beans.'"
Customers with a complaint about an individual product generally get a refund in the form of a gift certificate good at any of the chain's outlets. Proof of purchase usually is not required.
The relatively liberal refund policy can lead to abuse. "We have to have faith in our customers," the spokesman said, but conceded that the chain does have problems with chronic complainers who will write as often as 20 times. Once the complainer is identified, he or she frequently gets a follow-up phone call asking what is wrong. The complaints drop off. Why not simply tell the chronic complainer to shop elsewhere? "You can't afford to lose a customer," the spokesman said. "Assume the average shopper spends $50 a week. She shops in the store for a five-year period. She brings two friends with her."

The loss of that customer and her friends could mean a potential loss of almost $40,000 in sales. With supermarket profits running at about 1 per cent of sales, the lost customer could mean $400 in lost profits over five years. It may not seem like much, but it can add up.

Problem-Solving First

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major problems must be resolved before final judgment is made on the practicality of using the St. Lawrence Seaway in winter, says the General Accounting Office. In a report on efforts for year-round navigation on the Great Lakes and Seaway, the auditing arm of Congress said the Army Corps of Engineers has not yet passed on the merits of a permanent extended season for shipping.

Want Rule Ensed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for Pasadena, Calif., school officials are asking the Supreme Court to rule that school districts are not required to alter their desegregation plans because of constant changes in the racial composition of the city's population.

Don't Imitate, Says Scientist

WASHINGTON (AP) — An atomic scientist told Congress today that the United States has no reason to imitate the Soviet Union's increasing emphasis on civil defense against nuclear war.

Dr. Wolfgang K.H. Panofsky, director of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, testified there is no evidence the Soviets' civil defense program is any more effective in decreasing possible casualties than the current "low profile" U.S. program.

RADIO NEWSMAN DIES

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Allan Jackson, a former CBS News correspondent, died Monday following gall bladder surgery. He was 60 and had retired last June after 32 years with CBS to become part owner of WAKC here.

Problem-Solving First

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major problems must be resolved before final judgment is made on the practicality of using the St. Lawrence Seaway in winter, says the General Accounting Office. In a report on efforts for year-round navigation on the Great Lakes and Seaway, the auditing arm of Congress said the Army Corps of Engineers has not yet passed on the merits of a permanent extended season for shipping.

Don't Imitate, Says Scientist

WASHINGTON (AP) — An atomic scientist told Congress today that the United States has no reason to imitate the Soviet Union's increasing emphasis on civil defense against nuclear war.

Dr. Wolfgang K.H. Panofsky, director of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, testified there is no evidence the Soviets' civil defense program is any more effective in decreasing possible casualties than the current "low profile" U.S. program.

Interest Worries Investors

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved generally lower again today, plagued by concern over the course of interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined nearly three points, and stocks falling in price outnumbered gainers by nearly a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted continued concern that the Federal Reserve was clamping down on the supply of money, which has been rising rapidly in the past three weeks. They said Wall Street has been holding back on its stock buying until it sees what this week's money supply figures look like after the close Thursday.

Another sharp rise in those figures could lead the Fed to clamp down even further on credit, a move that might bring on a new rise in interest rates.

In economic news today, the government said its index of leading economic indicators fell 0.4 per cent in March, the first monthly drop since October. The index is supposed to provide a clue to where the economy is headed in the coming months.

Among today's prices, Federated Department Stores declined a point 1/4, Digital Equipment 1 1/4 to 177, and Halliburton was off 1 1/4 to 151 1/4.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones Industrial average fell 7.25 to 985.51.

Losers led gainers by an 8-5 margin among NYSE-listed issues. Big Board volume totaled 17.9 million shares.

The NYSE's composite stock index was down 0.29 to 54.25, while the American Exchange's market value index dropped 0.54 to 102.82.

Kellogg To Lay Off 130 Workers

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — The Kellogg Co. says it will lay off 130 workers today because railroads which serve the cereal-maker aren't providing enough box cars.

"We've experienced less cars than we've needed for the past four days to the point where we've got to lay off 130 people," said Kellogg Vice President Paul Kehoe, who is in charge of manufacturing.

Kehoe said on Tuesday that Conrail officials told the cereal company the shortage of railroad cars is "temporary." Conrail told Kellogg the shortage is due to a general shortage of railroad rolling stock.

Kehoe said the cereal-maker needs 70 box cars a day, but only is getting 35.

Grand Trunk Railroad Co., one of Kellogg's haulers, denied through a spokesman that his railroad is part of the problem.

The Grand Trunk spokesman said, "We're giving Kellogg the regular number of cars (between 25 and 40 a day). They (Kellogg) have an adequate amount of cars. We know that we have an adequate supply for Kellogg's at the present time. I don't know why we're getting all this publicity."

Kehoe said if the problem continues, more layoffs will occur. The company employs 3,500 workers in Battle Creek.

Target Is Film's Top Producer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dayton Hudson's discount chain, Target, increased sales 20 per cent in 1977 to become the corporation's largest operating unit, the firm's annual report says.

The report, mailed to stockholders Tuesday, showed that Target sailed past Detroit-based Hudson's department stores to take the top spot in the company in terms of revenues.

However, Hudson's retained its top profit producing position in the corporation with a 56 per cent jump in earnings contribution, the report said.

The report disclosed the annual revenues of each of Dayton Hudson's 10 retail operating companies, but did not break down profit contributions by company.

Third in terms of revenues was Dayton's, the firm's Minneapolis-based department store operation, which raised its 1977 sales 8.5 per cent. Fourth was B. Dalton, Bookseller, a chain that started 10 years ago and last year increased revenues 33.5 per cent.

As previously reported, the Dayton Hudson earned $31.3 million, or $3.22 a share, on revenues of $1.7 billion in 1977. This more than doubled 1974 earnings of $25.2 million, or $1.37 a share, on revenues of $1.5 billion.

Congress Eyes Bank Health

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concerned about the health of U.S. banks, congressional investigators are making their first examination of the federal government's bank regulators with cooperation from at least two of the three regulatory agencies. The survey follows criticism of federal banking regulators in the wake of some major bank failures and other problems in the banking industry. Two agencies, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, agreed Tuesday to allow auditors from the General Accounting Office of Congress to look over confidential records and examination reports, two congressmen announced. The third, the Federal Reserve Board, continued its refusal to turn over its records.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Interest Worries Investors

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved generally lower again today, plagued by concern over the course of interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined nearly three points, and stocks falling in price outnumbered gainers by nearly a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted continued concern that the Federal Reserve was clamping down on the supply of money, which has been rising rapidly in the past three weeks. They said Wall Street has been holding back on its stock buying until it sees what this week's money supply figures look like after the close Thursday.

Another sharp rise in those figures could lead the Fed to clamp down even further on credit, a move that might bring on a new rise in interest rates.

In economic news today, the government said its index of leading economic indicators fell 0.4 per cent in March, the first monthly drop since October. The index is supposed to provide clue to where the economy is headed in the coming months.

Among today's prices, Federated Department Stores declined a point 54 1/4, Digital Equipment slid 1 1/4 to 177, and Halliburton was off 1 1/4 at 151 1/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.25 to 995.51.

Losers led gainers by an 8-5 margin among NYSE-listed issues. Bag Board volume totaled 17.76 million shares.

The NYSE's composite stock index was down 0.29 at 54.25, while the American Exchange's market value index dropped 0.54 at 102.82.

Kellogg To Lay Off 130 Workers

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — The Kellogg Co. says it will lay off 130 workers today because railroads which serve the cereal-maker aren't providing enough box cars.

"We've experienced less cars than we've needed for the past four days to the point where we've got to lay off 130 people," said Kellogg Vice President Paul Kehoe, who is in charge of manufacturing.

Kehoe said on Tuesday that ConRail officials told the cereal company the shortage of railroad cars is "temporary." ConRail told Kellogg the shortage is due to a general shortage of railroad rolling stock.

Kehoe said the cereal-maker needs 70 box cars a day, but only is getting 35.

Grand Trunk Railroad Co., one of Kellogg's haulers, denied through a spokesman that his railroad is part of the problem.

The Grand Trunk spokesman said, "We're giving Kellogg the regular number of cars (between 25 and 40 a day). They (Kellogg) have an adequate amount of cars. We know that we have an adequate supply for Kellogg's at the present time. I don't know why we're getting all this publicity."

Kehoe said if the problem continues, more layoffs will occur. The company employs 3,500 workers in Battle Creek.

Target Is Film's Top Producer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dayton Hudson's discount chain, Target, increased sales 20 per cent in 1975 to become the corporation's largest operating unit, the firm's annual report says.

The report, mailed to stockholders Tuesday, showed that Target sailed past Detroit-based Hudson's department stores to take the top spot in the company in terms of revenues.

However, Hudson's retained its top profit producing position in the corporation with a 56 per cent jump in earnings contribution, the report said.

The report disclosed the annual revenues of each of Dayton Hudson's 10 retail operating companies, but did not break down profit contributions by companies.

Third in terms of revenues was Dayton's, the firm's Minneapolis based department store operation, which raised its 1975 sales 8.5 per cent. Fourth was B. Dalton, Bookseller, a chain that started 10 years ago and last year increased revenues 33.5 per cent.

As previously reported, the Dayton Hudson earned $51.3 million, or $3.22 a share, on revenues of $1.7 billion in 1975. This more than doubled 1974 earnings of $25.2 million, or $1.57 a share, on revenues of $1.5 billion.

Congress Eyes Bank Health

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concerned about the health of U.S. banks, congressional investigators are making their first examination of the federal government's bank regulators with cooperation from at least two of the three regulatory agencies. Two agencies, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, agreed Tuesday to allow auditors from the General Accounting Office of Congress to look over confidential records and examination reports, two congressmen announced. The third, the Federal Reserve Board, continued its refusal to turn over its records.

1st QUARTER

Sales, Earnings Dip Off In Roadmen At Clark Equipment Allegan

BUCHANAN — Clark Equipment company today reported decreased sales and earnings for the first quarter of 1976 compared to the same period a year ago.

Net income declined to $11.1 million or 82 cents per share compared to $12.8 million or 94 cents per share for the first three months of 1975.

Sales were $312 million for the 1976 first quarter against $353.5 million reported in a similar period in 1975, according to Bert E. Phillips, Clark president and chief executive officer.

Sales in most operating divisions were lower than a year earlier reflecting the declining order rate that had been experienced throughout most of 1975.

Clark's material handling group reported some profit improvement during the quarter primarily due to better performance overseas and profit realized from sale of branch inventories and rental fleets to newly formed independent dealerships. The lift truck order rate increased during the quarter, Phillips said.

Despite a drop in sales, the general products group was able to maintain its margin.

The Melroe division order rate for both Bobcat loaders and agricultural implements continued to improve.

Business in axes and transmissions was down slightly. Demand in the off-highway market continued soft although there is some indication that the on-highway trucks market is beginning to pick up, he said.

The construction machinery market demand also remained soft across most product lines.

While the first quarter has been somewhat of a disappointment, he said, all indications are that the downturn in business has bottomed out and the second half of 1976 should show improvement. The capital goods sector as a whole which usually lags the general economy by six months or more is expected to return to a healthier state as the year progresses.

Clark Equipment is a major world-wide manufacturer of axes and transmissions, construction machinery, industrial lift trucks and material handling systems.

Budd Chief Urges U.S. Cooperation

TROY, Mich. (AP) — The nation's economy cannot survive unless American companies receive cooperation from the government in developing the world market, according to the chairman of Budd Co.

Gilbert Richards said Tuesday he hasn't heard any presidential candidates discuss ways to increase export sales, an essential step if the United States is going to maintain its competitive international position.

He said constraints placed on U.S. multinational corporations have kept them from having the same economic and competitive advantages as foreign companies, such as those in Germany, Japan and France.

Roadmen Sales, Earnings Dip Off In Roadmen At Clark Equipment Allegan

ALLEGAN — Almost all of Allegan county's 80 road commission employees used a day of vacation this morning to stay away from their jobs, according to Fred Neils, road department manager and engineer.

The action was seen as a show of support for the employees' contract negotiating committee which was scheduled to meet with the county road commission this afternoon to continue talks on a new contract.

The road commission employees have been working without a contract since Jan. 1. Eleven previous bargaining sessions since last October have been unproductive, Neils said.

The road commission employees have rejected a previous offer of a four per cent pay increase, according to Neils.

He said the road workers' pay ranges from $4.60 to $4.92 an hour.

Neils said he expected most of the vacationing workers would be standing by this afternoon in case their six-man negotiating committee wanted a vote on a proposed contract.

Niles Policeman's Son Asks Hearing In Shooting Case

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau
NILES — A preliminary examination has been scheduled Tuesday, May 4, in Fifth District court here for the son of a Niles police officer arrested in connection with the April 17 shooting of a Niles man.

Brian Shephardson, 17, the son of Niles police Lt. Max Shephardson, has been charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder in connection with the shooting of former-Niles high school basketball standout John Harrington, 18.

Harrington received minor wounds when struck in the back by four shotgun pellets on April 17. The shooting followed early morning fighting between groups of young black and white men, Niles police said. Police said a vandalism spree occurred after the shooting.

Shephardson was arrested last Wednesday, April 21, and arraigned in Fifth District Court in Niles on the assault charge the same day. He was released on a personal recognizance bond, according to court records.

Judge John Iwanuk ordered the court file on Shephardson, including information pertaining to the charge and court transactions, suppressed the day of the arraignment. The order was lifted yesterday by Judge Iwanuk.

Police said they were told the April 17 fight broke out when two young black men left a party at 509 North Seventh street and walked some two blocks past a house at 521 North Fifth street. A party for young whites was in progress at the Fifth street residence, police said.

Two young white men, fearful that their autos were being tampered with, told police they followed the young black men back to the Seventh street residence, where a fight broke out. One young white man, Tim Ramsey, 17, of Niles, told police he received a cut lip when struck by a baseball bat during the fight.

Soon after the fight broke up, the Seventh street residence told police that three young white men, one carrying a gun, approached the residence.

Harrington, who was treated and later released from Pawling hospital, told police he was struck in the back as he and others standing on the porch of the Seventh street residence attempted to scramble back into the house.

Police said the windows of autos and homes, about a mile from the shooting scene, were broken in a wave of vandalism that followed the shooting. Roving groups of both blacks and whites participated in the vandalism, police said.

Van Buren Defendant Bound Over To Trial

PAW PAW — William Hennefert, 25, rural Dowagiac, was bound over to Van Buren circuit court yesterday after having Seventh district court preliminary examination on a charge of breaking and entering.

The charge grew out of a break-in April 14 at Lake Lodge on Runkel lake, Keeler township, in which an undetermined amount of change was taken from three coin-operated machines, according to Van Buren sheriff's deputies.
In other cases, Lacey Castillo, 27, Ennis, Tex., was placed on two years probation and fined $300 by Judge William C. Buhl on a charge of possession of marijuana. Mrs. Castillo had been charged with possession of marijuana with intent to deliver after state police had stopped a car on I-94 near Lawrence April 5, 1978, and seized some 710 pounds of suspected marijuana from the trunk.

Mrs. Castillo's husband, Richard, 29, still faces a charge of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver in connection with the case.
A charge of receiving stolen property, a car, against William Ibbotson, 17, Decatur, was dismissed at the request of the prosecution.

Police Move Quickly In Arrest Of Suspects

St. Joseph police said three Indiana men were arrested Tuesday just six minutes after a cigarette machine was reported broken into and the coin box taken at Mr. Steak restaurant, 2808 Niles avenue.

Police said witnesses reported seeing three men leave the restaurant with what appeared to be a coin box at 4:55 p.m. Patrolman Dave Aday stopped a car at 5:02 p.m. in the 2800 block of Morton avenue that matched the description of the one that the men got into.

The cigarette machine, was located in the foyer of the restaurant, police said, and contained about $5 in change. The coin box was reportedly found in the 2700 block of Morton and turned in to police.

Booked at the Berrien county jail on charges of breaking and entering were Jeffrey K. Adams, 19, Michigan City, Ind.; Barrett E. Doyle, 21, and Craig O'Brien, 19, both of Chesterton, Ind.

Five thefts were reported Tuesday in Benton Harbor police including an unknown amount of change from two coin-operated machines at C&W Skate-O-Rama, 453 Highland avenue. Police said thieves unsuccessfully attempted to pry open a filing cabinet in addition to taking the change from a cigarette machine and a pinball machine.

Other thefts reported to city police were:
—An antique arm chair, valued at $200, from the garage of Mrs. Homer Warren, 670 East Main street.

Suspect Bound Over In Buchanan Slaying

NILES — Otis Wakes Jr., 24, a former Buchanan resident now living in South Bend, was bound over to Berrien county Circuit court here yesterday on an open charge of murder.
Wakes, arrested in connection with the shooting death of Sylvester Dixon Jr., 38, 963 Victory street, Buchanan, on April 17, waived preliminary examination in Fifth District court here yesterday.

Wakes was lodged in the Berrien county jail after failing to post bond that Judge John Iwanuk reduced from $250,000 to $25,000.
Buchanan police said the shooting took place in front of 322 Elizabeth street, the residence of Josephine Wakes, 22, and her mother, Ruth Crittle. Police said Mrs. Wakes, who had been seeing Dixon, is the estranged wife of the arrested man.

The two men had quarrelled in the past, police said.

the alleged 1973 murder of a South Bend woman by her former boyfriend, Gerald Libertowski.

St. Joseph county Circuit Court Judge John Montgomery ruled yesterday in favor of a defense motion, asking that the prosecution specify the date and time of the alleged murder.

St. Joseph county Deputy Prosecutor Edward Chapleau said he will now allege that Libertowski killed Janeice Langs by beating her with a blunt instrument sometime after 8 p.m. on the night of Wednesday, Nov. 7, 1973.

When Libertowski was arrested on April 9, the warrant charged the murder occurred a day earlier, on Nov. 6. The Nov. 6 date was a mistake, Chapleau said.

Libertowski, 34, a South Bend contractor, has been held without bond since his arrest.
He is also facing an open charge of murder in Michigan in connection with the disappearance of Mrs. Janis Sanders of Niles in August, 1975.

Police have said both women lived with Libertowski at his South Bend home and had left him before disappearing.

Both women are still missing.
A former Libertowski business associate, Myron Hunsberger, has told police in a statement that Libertowski admitted killing both women.

Hunsberger has been given immunity in return for his statement and testimony should there be a trial.

Niles Policeman's Son Asks Hearing In Shooting Case

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau
NILES — A preliminary examination has been scheduled Tuesday, May 4, in Fifth District court here for the son of a Niles police officer arrested in connection with the April 17 shooting of a Niles man.

Brian Shephardson, 17, the son of Niles police Lt. Max Shephardson, has been charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder in connection with the shooting of former Niles high school basketball standout John Harrington, 18.

Harrington received minor wounds when struck in the back by four shotgun pellets on April 17. The shooting followed early morning fighting between groups of young black and white men. Niles police said. Police said a vandalism spree occurred after the shooting.

Shephardson was arrested last Wednesday, April 21, and arraigned in Fifth District Court in Niles on the assault charge the same day. He was released on a personal recognizance bond, according to court records.

Judge John Iwanik ordered the court file on Shephardson, including information pertaining to the charge and court transactions, suppressed the day of the arraignment. The order was lifted yesterday by Judge Iwanik.

Police said they were told the April 17 fight broke out when two young black men left a party at 509 North Seventh street and walked some two blocks past a house at 521 North Fifth street. A party for young whites was in progress at the Fifth street residence, police said.

Two young white men, fearful that their autos were being tampered with, told police they followed the young black men back to the Seventh street residence, where a fight broke out. One young white man, Tim Ramsey, 17, of Niles, told police he received a cut lip when struck by a baseball bat during the fight.

Police said they are still seeking the identity of Ramsey's alleged assailant.

Soon after the fight broke up, those attending the party at the Seventh street residence told police that three young white men, one carrying a gun, approached the residence.

Harrington, who was treated and later released from Pawling hospital, told police he was struck in the back as he and others standing on the porch of the Seventh street residence attempted to scramble back into the house.

Police said the windows of autos and homes, about a mile from the shooting scene, were broken in a wave of vandalism that followed the shooting. Roving groups of both blacks and whites participated in the vandalism, police said.

RONALD EPP
His quit? Never!

Retiree, 71, Not Ready To Quit Work; Builds Autos And Airplanes

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Senior citizen Ronald L. Epp has turned his back on the hectic workaday world and has settled down to a quiet life of building airplanes and cars.

Epp, 71, also remodels houses in his spare time — when he isn't busy acting as a volunteer worker at a nearby hospital.

"I like to keep busy," said the lean septuagenarian as he stretched glass cloth tightly over the unfinished rudder of the airplane he's building in his suburban backyard.

"But I also enjoy being a so-called 'senior citizen,'" he said with a wink. "You'd be surprised at the advantages it gives you."

Epp, silver haired and mustached, with a jaunty beret, grew up on a Minnesota farm, which he left at the beginning of World War II to help make

for five years as a ranger in the St. Louis County park system, from which he retired three years ago.

Then he began building and customizing automobiles. An example of his handiwork is parked in his driveway, a kowslung, two seat roadster of unrecognizable origin.

The basic chassis and engine is Volkswagen, he said, but Morgan, Harley-Davidson, Maytag, Frigidaire and Coldspring parts are also used in the final product. Most of the sheetmetal came from discarded refrigerators and freezers.

Epp said the car took about 300 hours to build, and cost less than $1,000. He and his wife Vivian have driven it more than 20,000 miles across the United States and Canada.

His latest project, a small airplane, is being built from plans, purchased from a California designer, with some modifications to suit Epp's taste. The plane is about 90 per cent complete, lacking only an engine now on order.

Epp's next projects are a four-seater airplane and another exotic roadster. "I'm going to keep going until I can't move anymore," he said. "I jog a couple of miles each day, and I love to ski. I'm in excellent health and I'm really enjoying myself."

Folklore: A rainbow in the morning is a sign of rain; a rainbow in the late afternoon foretells fair weather. Beauty Hint from Larry Mathews: "For a slimmer facial look use rouge under outer edges of brows above wide-apart eyes."

KITCHEN-SNOOPING: Heat orange juice, honey and soy sauce for a tasty topping for your next steak (Tutti's Shor's, NYC). When storing pears and apples, keep them separated from carrots, celery, cabbage and potatoes. Otherwise vegetables may turn brown (XII Arches, Westbury). Drain and freeze anchovies and add them to hot olive oil or melted butter. Delicious as a spaghetti sauce (Ma Bell's, Shubert Alley, NYC).

Business Tax Under Study

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has named a 37-member task force to determine whether any changes should be made in the new single business tax.

The task force was appointed because many businesses have complained that they pay higher taxes under the new system, Milliken said Tuesday.

"With only four months of experience, we don't know what the real impact of the single business tax will be," he said.

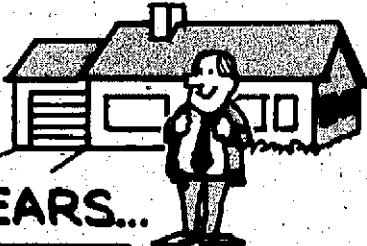

He said the panel is expected to complete its work in a year. The state House and Senate will name members to serve on the task force and state officials will work with the group, Milliken added.

Among those on the task force are Earl Holton of Grand Rapids, senior vice president and assistant general manager of the Meijer Corp.; Don Taylor of Lansing, executive director of the Michigan Food Dealers Association; and Henry Montague of Birmingham, president of the Michigan Association of Restaurants.
